WE'LL DISARM, FRANCE AGREES; SEVERAL "IFS"

Insists U. S. Join in Security Pact.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Paris Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 29.—[Saturday, 3 a. m.]—France is willing to cut its army by reducing the period of military service, but at a price. Premier Herriot made this announcement last night to an agitated chamber of deputies, which was demanding an explanation of his foreign policy and particularly of the French "constructive" disarmament plan which will be handed to the Geneva conference next week. The price France asks is:

1. Dissolution of the reichswehr [German regular army] and all similar professional armies in Europe.

2. Regulation of German police forces.

3. Mutual international check and control of armaments.

4. Extension, or rather completion, of the Locarno accords in eastern Europe.

Wants U. S. in Security Pact.

5. Signature by the United States of a consultative pact putting teeth in the Kellogg treaty outlawing war, such as the "United States herself suggested." Herriot in this connection again brandished Secretary of State Stimson's speech to the Foreign Policy association some months ago, in which Stimson declared that the Kellogg pact implies consultation in case of a threat of war.

6. Engagement of league members to fulfill their obligations, under Article 16 of the covenant, to enforce its observance, as well as an agreement by league signatories to obligatory arbitration.

This plan, thoroughly conditioning disarmament on the "organization of peace," seemed so safe that Herriot was given a free hand to submit it to the Geneva conference by a vote of 432 to 20. The vote was taken long after midnight after hours of debate.

Herriot Under Heavy Fire.

Herriot's insistence on interpreting Secretary Stimson's declaration as an abandonment of the American right to neutrality in the event of war, drew sharp retorts from realists on the floor.

"Well, then when is America going to join the league? Any day now, I suppose," said Pierre Renaudel, Socialist.

"Please remember that Stimson was promptly disavowed by President Hoover," put in Henry Franklin-Bouillon, nationalist.

During the debate, apprehensions of Germany's designs were aired, as well as charges that French policy up to now is responsible for the rise of nationalism in the reich. Herriot, himself, echoed the fears that are abroad in France.

Cites "France's Innocence."

"The German demand for equality in arms is incontestably one for rearmament," he said. "It is vague and mysterious, but the speeches of Gen. Kurt von Schleicher (war minister) made perfectly clear its purpose. We have got to react and the only answer is the organization of peace and international control. If worst comes to worst France will, as in 1914, be protected by her magnificent innocence."

Herriot revealed that the essentials of his plan had been passed by the high defense council this morning. He said the council had asked "only slight changes."

Leon Blum, Socialist leader, intimated, however, that the military had emasculated it. Herriot, who during the long session had to parry many disagreeable thrusts, jumped indignantly to his feet with a denial. The name of Gen. Weygand, chief of staff, was not mentioned, but every one knew who was meant.

MacDonald Is Attacked.

Herriot rose again in indignation when Franklin-Bouillon attacked Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain as follows: "If France only had friends like that Scotsman, she would have been German for fourteen years now."

"I protest such unjust and imprudent language," said Herriot. "How can any one talk like that right after the British note to Germany, for which the French ought to be profoundly grateful?"

Herriot said the world is unjust in accusing France of unwillingness to disarm and of hostility to the Hoover plan.

Hoosiers Cheer as He Hits 'Fake.'

The text of President Hoover's Indianapolis address will be found on page 6.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—In this disputed Hoover territory President Hoover tonight let loose an attack on his Democratic opponent, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, so biting and so bitter that all previous Republican utterances were pushed back into pale insignificance.

Before a yelling, howling crowd of 33,000 persons within the vast field house of Butler university and with 50,000 to 60,000 persons listening through amplifiers outside, the President raked Gov. Roosevelt fore and aft on nearly every issue in the campaign category.

The Indiana managers were particularly delighted with the temper of the crowd because no tickets had been given out; it was, they said, not a hand picked demonstration.

Sees Dangerous Policy.

The picture of the Democratic candidate which the President held up before his exuberant hearers was of a man spreading a policy based on half truths and untruths—a policy insidiously dangerous to the tradition of American government.

His audience fell upon the words with glee and from the packed auditorium and sweltering galleries poured back a tumultuous approval.

It was a welcome that attained the proportions of an ovation. Certainly it was the most enthusiastic reception given the President during the campaign.

Injects New Taunts.

The President himself caught the infection. Into his prepared speech he injected new taunts at his political enemies—and the crowd yelled for more.

High up on the platform, under the glare of a battery of lights, the President stood and time after time fought smilingly to get a word in edgewise.

Shouts of "go to him," "you tell him, Herbie," pelted down from the gallery thick as pop bottles at an umpire.

Herbert Hoover two weeks ago would have stuttered and lost his place. The Herbert Hoover of tonight grinned, stuck out his chin, and handed Gov. Roosevelt another.

He boasted that he had driven Gov. Roosevelt to call a "new deal" on the tariff.

Calls It "A New Shuffle."

"I call it a new shuffle," said the President.

If this campaign could only go on a little longer, Mr. Hoover declared, he could drive his opponent "from every solitary position he has taken in this campaign."

Then on to even more serious business—to denounce Gov. Roosevelt's charge that the Republican party controlled the United States Supreme court as an "atrocious" statement and one calculated to make the country wonder what the Democrats would do with their judicial appointments if they came to power.

The President charged Gov. Roosevelt with the selfish utterance of misstatements, misrepresentations, and untruths concerning what the administration had done to cope with the depression.

He lampooned his opponent as a man hopelessly ignorant on international affairs and matters of broader statesmanship.

Sends Shafts at Advisers.

He sent a barbed shaft at certain unnamed Roosevelt advisers who, he said, had sought to turn the country's financial crisis to their own advantage by seeking personally to withdraw large sums of gold at a time when foreign gold withdrawals were threatening the stability of the gold standard.

The President declared that Gov. Roosevelt's shifting pronouncements on the tariff—his attempts to advocate a downward revision while still maintaining the excises on farm products—recalled the "dreadful position of the chameleon on the Scotch plaid."

For Gov. Roosevelt to blame the tariff for the calamitous condition of the world, said Mr. Hoover, was "nonsense."

At Gov. Roosevelt's promises of

Lieut. Frank Johnson's professional eyes lighted upon the shambling figure of a man at Monroe and Dearborn streets the other night and, after searching his memory, recognized the man as Charles Caulo, a veteran safe blower whom he had sent to prison ten years ago.

Back at the detective bureau, Johnson ordered his aids, Sergts. Harry Busam and Joseph Healy, to trail the man, and arrest him when and if he committed a suspicious move. He described Caulo as seedily attired, and probably loitering at Monroe and Dearborn. Busam was to dress like a tramp, to strike up an acquaintance with the man, and Healy was to stand by.

"Don't hesitate to handle him roughly, if you have to," warned the lieutenant.

Detectives Find Their Man.

The detectives went on their way, Busam garbed like a Madison street derelict. He found Caulo as Lieut. Johnson had suggested, at Monroe and Dearborn streets. The suspect was thin, and his clothes fitted him like a tattered wrapper. For two nights Busam met Caulo, and chatted with him, and met him again last night. But this time, Caulo didn't appear to be so thin. In fact, he bulged out in front, in back, and on the sides. That was enough for Busam. He signaled Healy, across the street. Together they watched and followed the suddenly enlarged safe cracker.

Caulo moved slowly and cautiously, almost pussyfooting his way along the sidewalk. Once a pedestrian almost bumped into him, and he bounded aside in evident fright. At Clark and Madison streets, in view of a comfortable crowd, the detectives closed in on their man. They remembered Lieut. Johnson's admonition to handle Caulo roughly, if necessary. Busam grabbed Caulo's left arm, and Healy his right.

But the prisoner didn't resist; he didn't even move. His lips quivered.

It's Shaky Business.

"For the love of Mike, boys, don't shake me—if you want to live," pleaded the prisoner. Something in the prisoner's eyes, the warning tone of his voice, and a sudden paleness in his face added sincerity to his plea. The detectives searched him, then their faces whitened.

Gently, kindly, and almost respectfully they assisted him into a police car, and drove him slowly on nice balloon tires to the detective bureau. There was a reason. In searching Caulo Busam and Healy had found, among dynamite caps, tools and other paraphernalia, three ounces of nitroglycerin.

HOOSIERS IN GLORY; VAST THRONGS HEAR HOOVER AND RITCHIE

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—This city, capital of the Hoosier state, where bitter partisan politics is a sport and a religion, was in its glory tonight. President Hoover this evening spoke at Butler university fieldhouse. Police estimated his enthusiastic crowd thus:

Inside the fieldhouse.....33,000
Outside the house.....56,000

Two hours later Gov. Albert C. Ritchie made an appeal for the election of Franklin Roosevelt in Cadle tabernacle. Police locked the doors two hours before Ritchie spoke. They estimated his crowd at:

Inside tabernacle.....15,000
In Memorial circle.....50,000

HOOVER RETURNS 20 PER CENT OF HIS PAY TO U. S.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.] — Although immune under the law from pay cuts while in office, President Hoover voluntarily has been returning 20 per cent of his pay to the treasury ever since the provisions of the economy bill went into effect, it was learned today.

Each pay day, according to George O. Barnes, assistant treasurer of the United States, Mr. Hoover receives two checks, one for $5,000 and the other for $1,250. He indorses the latter and returns it to the department. The President's salary is $75,000 a year or $6,250 a month.

Only a "few" of the constitutional judges in the country return a part of their pay under the voluntary remittance clause of the economy act, it was said. Like the President, such judges are immune from pay reductions while in office.

'OLD SUDS' LEARNS ABOUT WOMEN AND WINS DECREE

Aaron Markowitz, 57 years old, 19 South Sangamon street, stood before Superior Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday seeking a divorce from his wife, Dorothy, whom he charged was unfaithful.

"For twenty years before prohibition I was a saloonkeeper at Madison and Des Plaines streets. I'm known as 'Old Suds.' And in my time I thought I had gotten to know about women," he said.

"But how mistaken I was! It took me only six days of married life to find it out. We married on last May 19, and I left my wife on the 19th of that month."

Delivery of Milk Before 8 a.m. Barred

Housewives in Chicago and suburbs will find it impossible to have their milk and dairy products delivered before 8 o'clock in the morning as the result of a rule adopted by the milk wagon drivers' union at its meeting Thursday evening. The rule, which became effective yesterday, imposes the penalty of a week's layoff on any of the 7,200 members of the union found delivering milk before 8 a. m.

"Daytime deliveries have advantages both for the drivers and consumers," declared Robert G. Fitchie, president of the union. "It is more convenient to meet customers during the morning under this delivery ruling, for collections and for increasing orders."

To Meet with Officials.

Fitchie declared that the union's executive committee would meet with Chicago dairy company officials early next week to notify them that the drivers in a massmeeting at Car Men's hall on Ashland boulevard Thursday had refused to accept a wage cut from $45 to $35 a week, to enable the dealers and farmers to make a reduction from 11 to 9 cents per quart in the retail price.

Several officials of the large dairy companies were in conference yesterday, considering the problems of price cutting, a glutted milk supply and other matters.

Milk Cheaper Elsewhere.

Considerable concern is known to exist among the dairy officials over the price of 8 cents a quart in Milwaukee, and prices of 9 and 10 cents being charged in other cities close to Chicago. Several smaller firms in Chicago also are retailing milk at 10 cents a quart, while farmers get 5 to 8 cents when selling direct to consumers.

UNEMPLOYED, HE TRADES PLACES WITH A CONVICT

[Copyright, 1932: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 28. — Ruiz Moreno, serving a four year sentence in the penitentiary here, escaped last night after exchanging clothes with a jobless man whom he had met at a boxing exhibition within the prison walls.

Moreno and Martinez Carrillo were sitting together watching the bouts when Carrillo remarked that he was out of a job and feared starvation during the present cold weather.

He then suggested that they exchange clothes, enabling him to get food and lodging and Moreno to escape. Because of the large crowd and the excitement, the change went unnoticed until the prisoners were returned to their cells.

Roosevelt and Smith Meet as Old Pals

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Al Smith and Franklin Roosevelt held a reunion tonight, all by themselves, in the governor's mansion.

After the pair had chatted for an hour they called in newspaper men and let themselves be judged on their friendly behavior.

Had they linked arms about each other and sung "All Pals Together" the reconciliation could not have been staged more effectively. Al put it thus to the skeptics among the newspaper men when he told them while the governor sat by smiling broadly:

"If we were a couple of Frenchmen we'd kiss each other. Being Americans we can only shake hands."

At another time during the interview Al was asked if all had been harmonious in their chat.

"Well," he said brusquely, "you don't see any blood, do you?"

Three States "In the Bag."

Smith told Roosevelt that at least three of the New England states were "in the bag" for him. He said that his visits to Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut, and the receptions he received all along the way of his travels through those states, made him satisfied these states would go for Roosevelt.

The reunion of the two men was staged in the historic old mansion which has not only housed Al Smith and Roosevelt as governors, but Theodore Roosevelt and Grover Cleveland and Charles Evans Hughes as well.

Al caught the drama of the setting.

"Neither one of us is stranger to this room," he said as his gaze wandered around the study. He puffed on his cigar reflectively for a minute, and then he said:

"Frank shifts the furniture around so much it don't always appear the same. It fits in pretty well now with the modernistic trend of things."

Sitting Together, Chatting.

The two men were sitting together on a divan when the reporters were invited to come in. Gov. Roosevelt sat drawing on a cigaret in an ivory holder. Former Gov. Smith, the Democratic standard bearer of 1928, pulled on his cigar. His brown derby, symbol of all his campaign days, was parked on the table in the entrance hall.

This was the first time since the two men came to an end of their famous Damon and Pythias friendship that Al had set foot in the executive mansion, and it was the first time since the famous handshake of a few weeks ago which marked the end of their estrangement that they had met in such intimate fashion.

Governor Roosevelt, rather uncertainly, said in response to a bid for comment that "we were talking about the campaign."

Tells of New England Trip.

"I explained in great detail to the governor my trip through New England, and told him about the meeting in Boston—let's see was that last night? I get all mixed up on days. I came near to eatin' meat today."

"I came here," he went on, "at the invitation of the governor to report to him on conditions as I found them."

Then Governor Roosevelt broke in for a minute.

"We talked about the campaign in this state, too," he said. "We will both be at the Academy of Music

SWANSON PLANS TO PROSECUTE SECRET 6 TRIO

State's Attorney Swanson yesterday assumed the offensive in the fight started by Robert Isham Randolph and his two associates in the Secret Six, Mrs. Shirley Kub, former police stool pigeon, and Alexander Jamie, former prohibition agent. The Secret Six leaders charged, in a preelection statement, that they had bribed an employé of the prosecutor's office for the abstraction of secret files.

In a statement issued last evening the prosecutor announced that as a result of the admissions made by the three before the grand jury he is planning both criminal and civil proceedings against the trio.

Hunt Bribe Payer.

Meanwhile process servers were unable to find an alleged Lester McKeon, 718 North Lotus street, named by Jamie before the jury as the man who paid the alleged $100 bribe. The address, as supplied by Jamie and checked by one of his own investigators in company with other policemen, was found not to exist.

Another development during the day was the admission by Jamie before the grand jury that he had interceded in an effort to get a parole for George Mueller, Mrs. Kub's latest known husband. He also admitted that following his unsuccessful efforts he and Mrs. Kub sent some city policemen, assigned to the Secret Six, on a mission to get affidavits to be used against the parole agent.

Plan to Call Randolph.

It was also reported that the jury may call Randolph before them again next week as a result of statements attributed to him that there will be further "revelations about Swanson when he [Swanson] has finished with his grand jury." The jurors were reported to have said they resent the implication in Randolph's statement that the grand jury belongs to Swanson. The present jurors, it is reported, are an unusually independent group.

It was also said that the jurors would like to ask Randolph regarding the truth of a rumor that Samuel Insull, the utility magnate, who is now being prosecuted by State's Attorney Swanson and his staff, contributed 10 per cent of the original fund from which the Secret Six operated.

Swanson's Statement.

"As a result of the admissions made to the grand jury by Shirley Kub and the former prohibition agent, Alexander Jamie," said Swanson's statement. "I am proceeding with a view of taking both criminal and civil action against the Kub woman, Jamie and I-Sham Randolph and those associated with them."

"Jamie and the Kub woman both confessed to the jury that they had no personal knowledge of the payment of any money to any employé of my office to get secret information."

The prosecutor's statement then went on to relate the unsuccessful efforts of detectives to find the so-called McKeon:

"When the Secret Six came under the domination of Shirley Kub it abandoned the field of legitimate investigations and turned its attention to politics and began to get money to continue its work by securing rewards for the recovery of stolen property. It was necessary for them to have a friendly state's attorney who would agree to drop prosecutions as requested from time to time by the Kub woman and Jamie. This is something that I could not do.

A Prosecuting Agency.

"The office of the state's attorney is not an agency for blackjacking the return of stolen property in order to help a private investigating agency collect rewards. I was elected to prosecute criminals, have always done so and always will do so."

The prosecutor then detailed the story of the efforts of Jamie to secure the release of Mrs. Kub's husband, and his admission that he introduced Mrs. Kub to Parole Agent William McGrath as a "respectable woman, without giving her previous police and jail record."

"Jamie confessed that after Agent McGrath refused to act he, the Kub woman and an agent for the Secret Six, together with police officers, tried to get affidavits making charges against the parole agent in an effort to have him discharged from the federal service, when he refused to be intimidated into recommending a parole for her husband."

"The law does not leave the victims of these character assassins helpless in such a situation," the prosecutor's statement continued.

"Unable to find the basis for any attack upon me personally, they thought that by striking at the unidentified employé of my office at the last moment they could ruin me.

Political Blackmail.

"Such political blackmail cannot and will not be tolerated. The criminal libel and conspiracy laws and possibly the bigamy statute provide the possibility for effective criminal as well as civil proceedings against these character assassins on the basis of the information which has been unearthed."

Jamie was before the grand jury again yesterday and questioned for nearly two hours by Assistant State's Attorney William A. Rittenhouse. He was not accompanied this time by Shirley Kub, but by several discharged employés of Swanson's office, who are now working for him. Observers remarked that Jamie seemed nervous.

Jamie was reluctant to discuss his efforts to get a parole for Mrs. Kub's husband, who is in the federal penitentiary for violation of the Dyer act, which makes it a crime to transport stolen autos from one state to another. Mrs. Kub had previously denied before the jury that her husband was in a federal prison.

Admits Intercession.

It was reported, however, that Jamie told the jury the reason he interceded was because Mrs. Kub told him the charge was "a bum rap" and that with him "Mrs. Kub's word is law," and therefore he believed her. He gave no reason why he did not apprise the parole agent of Mrs. Kub's real identity.

Prosecutor Swanson ordered an investigation of Mrs. Kub's marital status in view of her statements before grand juries. Before the special police grand jury some months ago it was reported that she was married to Ned Ragland. While hiding from that jury she married Mueller.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Roy Matiga, larceny of auto, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker announced yesterday that Louis M. Becker, owner of a smoked fish store at 3638 Roosevelt road, which was bombed Oct. 22, will be taken before the grand jury Monday and on his testimony indictments will be sought against members of a trade association which he blames for the attack.

Becker asserted that threats had been made to him and to his son, Joel, by three members of the association. Those he named were Samuel Seidman, 4117 Wilcox street, whom he said was the president of the Smoked Fish Peddlers' association; Harry Pekin, 1105 South Richmond street, and Hyman Greenblatt, 4407 West Adams street.

The three men were questioned by Lieut. Treacy. All denied that they had made threats to Becker, although Seidman admitted knowing him.

BOLIVIANS RIOT; DEMAND NATION PUSH CHACO WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 28.—Violent agitation in Bolivia culminated this morning in a popular ultimatum to President Daniel Salamanca to press the war against Paraguay more vigorously, according to private messages to Chile which trickled through the strict censorship at La Paz.

A report from Antofagasta, Chile, said that riots broke out at Cochabamba, Oruro, and Santa Cruz, capitals of Bolivian provinces of the same names. It was also stated that 50,000 Bolivians clashed with troops who were attempting to stop their rush on the government palace at La Paz.

The mob protested against the government's policy and demanded that more troops be sent into the Gran Chaco to retrieve Bolivia's honor.

GOV. ROOSEVELT TAKES LEAD IN PARIS TEST VOTE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Franklin D. Roosevelt is leading in a straw vote of Americans abroad in a poll conducted by the Paris edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Raid Home, Seize Radio that Guides Rum Ships

New York, Oct. 29 (Saturday).—[Special.]—In two raids on supposedly private homes in Coney Island and Manhattan Beach last night federal agents arrested seven men and seized a radio set which they said had guided ships to this port with $7,000,000 worth of illicit liquor in the past year and which was the most powerful set of its kind located in the metropolitan area in several years.

Bridge on Coal Railroad Destroyed by Explosion

La Salle, Ill., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—An explosion last night at Porterfield destroyed a bridge on the Rutland, Toluca and Northern railroad. This line was the means of carrying coal from the Prairie State Coal company. Both the railroad and the mine are owned by J. R. Cox, Mark, Ill., who blames mine labor trouble. All other bridges on the line are now under guard.

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Odds on Gov. Roosevelt to defeat President Hoover in the presidential election were quoted by Wall street betting commissioners today as 2½ to 1. Odds on Roosevelt to carry New York state were boosted from 8 to 5 to 9 to 5.

SMALL DODGES HORNER DEBATE IN EVANSTON

Judge Regrets Inability to Corner Rival.

Before two audiences yesterday, Judge Henry Horner, the Democratic candidate for governor, spoke regretfully of "my great failure in the campaign—my inability to force my opponent [Len Small] to discuss the issues before the Illinois voters."

Both meetings were planned originally as debates between Judge Horner, Small, and the Socialist candidate for governor, the Rev. Roy E. Burt. Mr. Burt was present, but Small declined. The noon meeting was before the City club, while students of Northwestern university gathered in Patten gymnasium on the Evanston campus for the evening meeting.

Small Dodges Debate.

"When I received your invitation to debate on this platform with my opponent," Judge Horner told the students, "I welcomed it eagerly. For months I have attempted to engage my opponent in such a debate, for I feel that the people have a right to know who the candidates are and what they stand for. For months I have tried to force my opponent to come out into the open—into the sunlight—feeling that a little sunburn would do him and his associates no harm. For some reason they do not care to engage in debate or discuss the issues of the campaign.

"I like the sunlight, however, and so, disregarding my opponent's dislike for it, I intend to discuss the issues with you, just as I have discussed them with citizens all over the state."

"Worst Governed State."

Continuing, the judge declared that Brig. Gen. Charles Gates Dawes had once stated in the east that under the Small administration as governor "Illinois was the worst governed state in the Union." He had referred to the former Vice President as Evanston's most distinguished citizen.

To the students Judge Horner promised, if elected, full support of educational measures.

"I believe that wealthy sections of the state should help poorer ones with their school problems," he said. "We cannot make lasting progress if we are half enlightened and half in darkness.'

Judge Horner was introduced by former Probate Judge Charles S. Cutting, who preceded him on the Probate bench. Judge Cutting described himself as "a rock ribbed Republican" but was warm in his praise of the Democratic candidate.

"We must cease to use the pay rolls of the state as a method of political reward," Judge Horner declared. "We must remove the dead wood from the pay rolls and bring down the costs of government. That can be done, and it will be done, when Horner is governor.

Taxes Burden Industry.

"In the last five years there has been a 63 per cent increase in the costs of national government. Twenty cents out of every dollar goes for these costs. We must take off the governmental restraint from industry in this state. At the same time welfare work must be propelled to its highest point, and if the costs of government are sufficiently reduced we can spend more money on these important departments."

Before the City club and again at Northwestern last night, Judge Horner spoke on "unemployment and the distress which arises from this tragedy." "The latest figures show," he said, "that in Illinois alone more than 1,000,000 men and women are without means of earning a livelihood. The charities are supporting 150,000 families in Cook county. This problem alone is one that demands statesmanship of the highest order. It is obviously not a problem to be entrusted to politicians and demagogues for solution, but one that demands the careful attention of men with a high sense of responsibility to their state and the welfare of all its citizens."

Pays Tribute to Roosevelt.

Judge Horner did not claim that his election means "every one will get a job immediately." But he said: "I do feel that there is much that the state government can do to relieve the distress caused by unemployment, provided there is at the head of the government men with real sympathy in their hearts and with the overwhelming desire to tackle this problem.

"The thing that has been lacking is willing and capable leadership. It is my ambition, with the help of my associates and a united people, to supply that leadership. It is my feeling that we will conquer this problem, particularly if we be so fortunate as to have a sympathetic administration in Washington, and the indications are that we will have such an administration, that of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

In a letter read before the City club meeting Small wrote that he was not running for governor "on my appearance or my ability as an orator."

The Rev. Mr. Burt gave a summary of the Socialist platform, stressing unemployment relief, old age pensions, abolition of child labor, and the ratification of the child labor amendment.

At massmeetings in Morton Grove and Arlington Heights, which he addressed after his Evanston appearance, Judge Horner said he is opposed to house bill 275 which has been construed as providing compulsory abolition of country town government functions.

"I am against any proposed legislation that takes away from the people, as does the bill in question, their right to determine their own form of government," he said. "The enactment of such legislation violates the principles of home rule for which I have always stood."

C. H. JUDD TELLS WHY HE WILL VOTE FOR JUDGE HORNER

BY CHARLES H. JUDD.
[Dean of School of Education, University of Chicago.]

I am very glad of an opportunity to indorse Judge Horner. I shall vote for him in the autumn because of the excellent service which he rendered as Probate judge and because of the administrative capacity which he has exhibited in all his public service. I feel sure that his record justifies us in expecting him to conduct the state government at a high level when he is elected to the governorship.

TAXPAYER'S SUIT ATTACKS LAW ON BOND ISSUANCE

Constitutionality of the law permitting taxing bodies to issue bonds to make up a deficiency of tax collections in redeeming tax warrants was attacked in a taxpayer's suit filed yesterday by John R. Watters, 931 Linden avenue, Oak Park, against the village of Oak Park.

Watters seeks an injunction to restrain the village from issuing $111,000 in bonds to take up a like amount of tax warrants outstanding against its 1930 levy. His bill declares that tax warrants are not an obligation of the municipality, but merely a lien on the levy of a particular year, and that therefore the village has no right to issue bonds to retire them.

The ordinance for sale of the bonds was adopted on Oct. 5 by the village board, in accordance with an act adopted at the last special session of the legislature. The case is expected to come to a hearing within a few days.

Envoy, Here, Calls Repeal Attempts Futile.

The Democratic party platform for outright repeal of the prohibition law is "absolutely futile," John M. Moorehead, United States minister to Sweden, told 1,000 Republicans at a banquet last night in the Hotel La Salle, held under the joint auspices of the John Ericsson Central Republican club of Cook county and the Swedish group of the Republican national committee.

"Repeal of the 18th amendment," Mr. Moorhead declared, "would have to be ratified by both houses of the legislatures of 36 states, and that couldn't be done. And even if outright repeal were accomplished in some manner, conditions then would be intolerable.

Calls G. O. P. Plan Best.

"Modification of present statutes in such a way as to prohibit the saloon and allow states wishing to be dry to remain so under the protection of the 18th amendment, as suggested by the Republican party, is the best way out."

The speaker said the most sensible means of liquor control was the Bratt system now used in Sweden. He pointed out that this system removes all incentive to increase sales by limiting profits of firms associated in the business.

Rum Cuts Sweden's Taxes.

The Swedish government, he said, collects about 31 million dollars a year in revenue under its system of liquor control. This pays for one-fifth of the expense of government. The same ratio towards governmental expenses, he asserted, would exist if the Bratt system were employed in the United States.

Any provision for declaring five per cent beer to be nonintoxicating and thus legal under existing laws would be found unconstitutional by the Supreme court, Mr. Moorehead said.

Other speakers were United States Senator Otis F. Glenn and State's Attorney Swanson. They asserted that retention of the Republican party in power offers the only hope for permanent recovery from the depression

Judge Henry Horner, Democratic candidate for governor, was greeted with cheers yesterday afternoon by the German American Democratic Women's club at a rally that filled Wicker Park hall, Milwaukee and North avenues.

Mrs. Marie Eidler, chairman, introduced the judge, declaring: "We need not hang our heads in shame for Henry Horner when we place him in the great chair in Springfield."

"Henry Horner is not going to disgrace you—nor are any of his associates," said the judge, and there followed applause whenever he spoke of himself in the third person in telling of his plans for Illinois.

Congressman William H. Dieterich, Democratic candidate for the senate, declared that if Cook county does as well by Horner as the downstate group "we will win by 500,000 to 1,000,000 votes."

IF BAY STATE IS FOR ROOSEVELT, CREDIT AL SMITH

His Followers Likely to Decide Result.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—A confusing congeries of hatreds, individual and collective, clutters the political landscape in these parts, bewildering even the native political guides from whom the stranger is wont to learn the lay of the land. Which is by way of saying that Massachusetts appears to be a doubtful state, probably a close state, in the Nov. 8 election, whether it is carried by Hoover or Roosevelt.

The first phenomenon one encounters is a paradox. If Mr. Hoover carries Massachusetts, 65 per cent Roman Catholic, and Rhode Island, 72 per cent Roman Catholic, it will be largely because of the workings of that religious bigotry to which Al Smith was indebted in 1928 for the only electoral votes he received north of Mason and Dixon's line.

Smith Following Enormous.

Al Smith has an enormous, idolatrous following in these two states. These followers, who are nearly all Roman Catholics and preponderantly Irish in extraction, deeply resented his rejection by the Chicago convention for the presidential nomination. They felt that having made the fight in the prosperous times of 1928, when no Democrat could have won, Smith was entitled to another chance in the hard times of 1932, when any Democrat presumably could win. They were convinced that the party turned him down because he is a Catholic, whose nomination would have revived the disastrous religious issue of 1928.

Hence for months these multitudinous Smith Democrats have been nursing a violent grudge against the Democratic party in general and against numerous highly placed Democrats in particular.

They hated Gov. Roosevelt and his manager, Jim Farley, for the manner in which they rode rough shod over Smith, Raskob, and Shouse in the convention.

They hated Hearst and McAdoo for engineering the Texas-California deal which brought about the nomination of Roosevelt and the defeat of Smith. They hated John Garner, whose delegates were transferred in this deal, the price of which was his nomination for Vice President.

McAdoo and Garner Hated.

And their hatred of McAdoo and Garner was deepened by association of the former with the Ku Klux Klan's influence which deprived Smith of the nomination in 1924 and by association of the latter with the anti-Catholic wave which swept Texas into the Hoover column in 1928. Their hatred of Garner is such that the Democratic national committee has not deemed it safe to allow the vice presidential candidate to be at large in New England.

It has been universally recognized for weeks that none but Mr. Smith himself could heal this party wound. He alone could lead his followers back into the party fold to vote for Roosevelt and Garner. Not that so many of them were likely to vote for Hoover, but that so many were likely to vote for Thomas or stay away from the polls altogether.

Handshake Helps Things.

In Boston, which is 65 per cent Irish Catholic, an improvement in Roosevelt prospects was noted following the famous handshake at the New York Democratic convention when the brown derby greeted the governor affectionately as "old Potato."

Smith came to Massachusetts and Rhode Island yesterday to complete the job of swinging his followers to support of the party ticket.

At a meeting here last night at which his every utterance was greeted with tumultuous enthusiasm by his worshipers, Smith made a speech which Republican managers were privately admitting today is likely to be profoundly effective. He urged his followers to vote for Roosevelt and Garner, referring to the Democratic candidate frequently as Frank and going farther than ever before in praise of his ability and record. He said Roosevelt had made a record as governor that insured his nomination for President.

Smith's adjuration to vote for Roosevelt was shrewdly designed to appeal to his Catholic followers. He said he was no more satisfied with the Chicago convention than were they, but opined that "we will settle these troubles in our party" without Republican help.

Then he came to the big point which he prefaced with an explanation of his Newark speech in which he was accused of reviving the religious issue. He said his object had been to show that the Republicans who financed the invocation of bigotry against him in 1928 were again "trying to work the religious issue with what we call the reverse English" by seeking to incite Catholic Democrats to knife Roosevelt in order to avenge Smith's treatment at Chicago.

Warns Followers.

Smith urged his co-religionists to avoid this pitfall, saying, "Let there be no resentment in Catholic hearts." He reminded them that "We have been taught that our first consideration is this country" and then went on to say that the "salvation of our country lies in the success of the Democratic ticket under the leadership of Roosevelt and Garner."

This indorsement of the ticket was received with great acclaim by the thousands jamming the hall. Among those on the platform was Mayor Curley of Boston, who led the unsuccessful fight for a Roosevelt delegation from Massachusetts to the Chicago convention and who had not been on speaking terms with Smith for months. Before the meeting, however, Curley called on Smith and the two leaders became reconciled.

Republicans Hopeful.

Smith carried Massachusetts four years ago by 17,000 votes. On the assumption that the Smith Democrats would bolt Roosevelt pretty generally the Republican managers have been expecting Hoover to carry the state by 50,000. There is a great deal of Republican disaffection due to the depression though possibly not so much as elsewhere, and there are factional Republican trouble which have not been entirely ironed out.

But losses from such sources the Republican managers calculated would be more than offset first by the return to the fold of wet Republicans, who voted Democratic in 1928 and 1930, but now find themselves satisfied by Hoover in his acceptance speech, and secondly, by defection of Smith Democrats from Roosevelt.

Whether this latter factor is dependable since the Smith speech of last night is what is now giving the Republican managers the most concern. Some of them confess that if the Smith faction lines up pretty generally for the ticket, Roosevelt will carry Massachusetts.

Ely Helps Roosevelt.

A factor that is operating to bring the Smith Democrats to the polls is the candidacy of Gov. Joseph B. Ely, Democrat, for reelection. Ely won great plaudits for his speech nominating Smith at Chicago, and one of Smith's objects in coming to Boston was to aid Ely's campaign. Like others of his faction, Ely was disgruntled after the convention but eventually got in line for Roosevelt.

Roosevelt is to speak in Boston next Monday, and the turnout for his meeting is looked forward to as a test of the extent to which Smith has succeeded in swinging his followers to the ticket.

The Republican managers have been trying to induce the President to come here, but so far to no avail. One plan was to have Hoover and Coolidge appear on the same platform, but it has come to naught because Mr. Coolidge could not be interested.

WILLIAM A. WHITE REPLIES TO THRUSTS MADE BY AL SMITH

Emporia, Kas., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Commenting on the gibes poked at him by Alfred E. Smith in his Boston speech last night, William Allen White, Emporia editor and author and a Hoover supporter, said today.

"I won't fight a man who goes back four years to fight a woman. Moreover, from now on Smith is gagged by his own party. I may be eager for combat and a hog for punishment, but I can't jump on a cripple."

L. NEUMANN IS STRICKEN WHILE SPEAKING; DIES

Horner Aid Victim of Heart Attack.

Leopold Neumann, one of the organizers of the United Societies and a Cook county jury commissioner, became ill yesterday afternoon while delivering a political speech in the Wicker Park hall, 2040 West North avenue, and died a few minutes later. Death was attributed to heart disease.

Mr. Neumann, who was 69 years old, resided at 1249 Thorndale avenue. He had been active in the campaign of Judge Henry Horner for governor, and was speaking in the latter's behalf when he was stricken.

Former German Editor.

Formerly the editor of a German language newspaper, Mr. Neumann had been a leader of the so-called liberal forces for many years. In the summer of 1915 he created a sensation by appearing in Chicago, where he had long lived, under the pseudonym "Dr. Hugo Meyer of Vienna," and then writing sensational disclosures of episodes in the daily life of "high society."

He claimed to have moved in the highest social circles and to have found the men and women in them addicted to heavy drinking, late hours and other irregularities. He mentioned no names. At the time several society leaders were active in efforts to stamp out or regulate the liquor business and "Dr. Meyer's" complaint was that they were unwilling to accept the same conditions for themselves as were to be the lot of the poor workingman. These leaders denied that he had had any such experiences as those made public.

Fights Sunday Closing.

In the fall of the same year Mr. Neumann denounced the newly elected Republican mayor for closing beer gardens and saloons on Sunday, asserting he had promised a wide open town. The edict, he asserted, prevented 21,000 waiters, 10,000 bartenders and 2,800 musicians from a day's work every Sunday.

Mr. Neumann was appointed to the jury commissioner's post in July, 1931, succeeding Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey. He is survived by his widow.

WINNETKA BABY IS DROWNED IN NEIGHBOR'S POOL

Mary Perry Hardy, 18 month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Hardy Jr., 841 Foxdale avenue, Winnetka, was drowned yesterday in a small ornamental pool in a neighbor's yard.

Mrs. Hardy missed her daughter, who had been playing in the yard, about 10 a. m. yesterday and notified police. She also called her father-in-law, Edward K. Hardy Sr., 1214 Ridge avenue, Evanston, who is trustee of the Ridgecroft Real Estate trust, 8 North Michigan avenue. He and his wife went to the Winnetka home, accompanied by their maid, Emma Larson.

After an hour's search the maid found the child in two feet of water in the pool, which is in the yard of C. M. Hinman at 838 Lincoln avenue, Winnetka, adjoining the rear of the Hardy home. The child had crawled through a hole in the fence separating the two properties to reach the pool.

POLICE KILL 2 WHO ATTEMPT TO ROB THEM

Blackwood, N. J., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Two state troopers in disguise tonight shot and killed two unidentified men in a woods along the Hickstown road near here after, authorities said, the men attempted to hold up the officers.

Police said the shooting climaxed an attempt to break up a series of recent robberies at night in which young couples in parked automobiles along the road had been victimized.

Trooper Henry H. Austin, dressed as a girl, and Trooper Ray Osborn, attired in civilian clothing, had parked their automobile in the woods and waited several hours in an effort to arrest the robbers. Trooper Eric Hoseck also waited in the woods some distance from the car.

The officers reported an automobile drew up to their car and two men emerged, ordering the policemen to hold up their hands. Pistol shots were exchanged and the robbers fell dead. Police said confederates in the robbers' car sped away when the firing began.

SANDERS POINTS TO NEW STRAWS AS G. O. P. OMEN

Sees Strong Indications of Hoover Swing.

From Republican national headquarters Everett Sanders, national chairman, put out a statement, "President Hoover's election is assured," yesterday before leaving for Indianapolis for the President's address. Palmer house headquarters was occupied with straw votes taken hither and yon, while its statisticians applied higher mathematics to some of the nation-wide polls taken by various agencies. The "new straw vote" taken within the last fortnight, they declared, shows Hoover leading in states with more than 266 votes in the electoral college, the number necessary to a choice.

The Republican mathematicians reported that in one nation-wide poll taken by an agency adverse to Hoover the new vote taken this last week and tabulated shows Hoover getting 54 per cent of the ballots. In Wisconsin, they affirmed the new straws have turned to Hoover until he is getting 47 per cent of the ballots. In Indiana, similarly, they claimed Hoover is now getting 52 per cent of the straw votes; in Michigan, 53 per cent; in Illinois, 53 per cent; and in Ohio 60 per cent.

Tells of Recent Trend.

"While straw votes are not a very good criterion because those opposed to the party in power vote more readily than others," said Chairman Saunders, "the last week's straw votes taken alone show that President Hoover would get more than the necessary 266 electoral votes.

"Total straw polls have no value when covering a large period of time because at most they show merely a trend of sentiment and sentiment can only be gained by taking the total for a particular recent period. Such totals for recent periods now show that the President would have more than the necessary 266 electoral votes.

"The momentum is so strong for the President that there is no danger of a reaction. It will swing on to election day.

"The Literary Digest polls are really of very little value. The ballots were sent out many weeks ago. I see the Literary Digest disputes a statement I made several days ago about the dependability of such polls. I will quote the authority for my statement.

"In the morning papers of Oct. 20, 1924, the Democratic national committee issued a statement in which they said: 'In order to have the Literary Digest straw votes accepted as infallible it is first necessary for the Literary Digest to blot from memory a straw vote it conducted in 1916. If the country had voted in the presidential election of that year, as the Digest poll indicated, Mr. Hughes would have been elected by a plurality of 4,593,635 instead of the plurality of 591,385 that President Wilson received."

University Polls Listed.

Republican national headquarters followed this up by giving out the results of straw vots taken at some of the leading universities. Harvard, alma mater of Hoover, gave him a three to one margin. The figures put out were:

	Hoover.	Roosevelt.	Thomas.
Harvard university	1,741	621	484
Leland Stanford	388	281	216
University of Chicago	1,391	604	763
U. of Wis. [students]	1,481	1,003	909
U. of Wis. [faculty]	258	83	148
University of Minnesota	760	284	436
Princeton	1,392	425	283
University of Nebraska	567	224	189
Iowa State university	278	138	..
Doane college	73	65	28
Armour institute	535	219	71
	9,670	3,898	3,587

	Hoover.	Roosevelt.	Thomas.
University of Cal.	993	351	460
Whittier college	83	26	28
University of S. D.	159	134	18
Park college	236	84	..
Presbyterian Theological seminary	95	13	..
Washington State college	478	278	112
Hamilton college	263	98	57
U. of Southern Cal.	290	178	50
Lawrence college	227	202	..
University of Wash.	1,201	550	250
Ohio State university	2,449	1,025	1,900
	6,563	2,891	7,980

Republican headquarters, in one of its mimeograph sheets, likewise pointed out that in a tabulation made public by the Socialist national committee straw votes taken in 29 colleges gave Hoover 10,866; Thomas, 5,009; Roosevelt, 4,864.

DETROIT PLANT OWNER SAYS VOTE AS YOU PLEASE

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 28.—(AP)—A note by Frederic B. Stevens, foundry manufacturer, to employes of his organization today urged them to "vote solely as their conscience dictates" at the November election.

"It makes no difference to you how I vote, and it make no difference to me how you vote," said the note, which was placed in pay envelopes. "Coercion has no place in American politics. As a business man and your employer, I want to say to you that I have confidence in your judgment, and no matter which way the election goes America will go on."

G. O. P. DENIES SEEKING STALIN INDORSEMENT FOR GOV. ROOSEVELT

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—A charge came out of Democratic national headquarters today that "Hoover managers" were trying to get Joseph Stalin, head of the all Russian soviet, to indorse Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential candidate.

Out of Republican eastern headquarters came the prompt retort that this charge sounded there like a "bedtime story."

Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley voiced the Stalin charge as "the latest story that has come to my attention."

Farley thus described "the latest story:"

"Through secret channels their representatives are trying to get in touch with representatives of Stalin, dictator of the soviet government, with the object of securing some sort of statement from him which could be made up as a news story to be published in London newspapers to the effect that he favors Gov. Roosevelt. No American voter, of course, will be fooled by such propaganda."

COST OF STATE ROADS REACHES 243 MILLIONS

Sell Another $2,000,000 in Highway Bonds.

BY HAL FOUST.

The state department of public works sold at auction in Springfield yesterday $2,000,000 of highway bonds bringing the cost of the 9,000 mile state road program to approximately $248,000,000. The successful bid for the bonds was $1,983,000 submitted by a group of Chicago and New York banks.

The price represents a rate of 99.175 and an interest yield of 4.035 per cent. Director H. H. Cleaveland said this is a higher price than has prevailed for several years and that it reflects a healthy condition in the money market.

The $2,000,000 was needed to finance current highway construction costs since $10,000,000 of the road fund from 1932 revenue is held up in tax anticipation warrants purchased from the state's depleted corporate fund.

No Bond Issue Roads Here.

The sale increased to $189,014,000 the amount that Chicago motorists will pay to finance the construction of the Illinois bond issue system of highways that doesn't include a block of pavement in this city.

The system laid out for construction under the $60,000,000 bond issue of 1918 and the $100,000,000 bond issue of 1924 has approximately 9,000 miles of pavement and about 800 miles more of designated routes to be paved next year. The 9,000 miles have cost the state $243,835,000 to build and another $30,000,000 will be needed for the 800 miles of paving in 1933.

This will make a total of $272,835,000 as the cost of building a system that the voters were told would cost $160,000,000. There are now $145,115,000 in bonds outstanding. When these are retired by 1959 the interest charges will total $129,663,000.

Costs Near Half Billion.

This will make a total of $402,493,000 as the cost of building and financing the so-called $160,000,000 state bond issue system.

Chicago motorists are now paying 42 per cent of the state's collections from the gasoline tax and the registration fees for highway expenses. The percentage is increasing rapidly. In 1926, it was 33 per cent. The city's payment to the state road fund in 1932 will approximate $20,800,000, according to the Chicago Motor club.

Boy, 14, Playing "Tag," Falls and Is Killed

Harry Lucas, 14 years old, a student at the Hyde Park High school, was fatally injured yesterday when he fell while playing tag in a lot at 7619 Colfax avenue. His head struck hard soil and he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage. Playmates took him to the office of Dr. Maelyn Kamins, 1702 East 79th street, where he died. Harry was the son of Mrs. Lillian Lucas, 7626 Colfax avenue, owner of a dancing school at 835 West 78th street.

DIES OF 2 STORY FALL.

Mrs. Marie Newman, 30 years old, died yesterday in the Mercy hospital of injuries suffered in a fall from a second story porch at her home, 2906 South Canal street.

VETERAN OFFICE HOLDERS RUN FOR SEC'Y OF STATE

EDWARD J. HUGHES.

Two seasoned politicians are the major party candidates for the office of secretary of state. William J. Stratton of Ingleside, the Republican incumbent, is opposed by Ed J. Hughes of Chicago, former state senator and former member of the old board of review and at present deputy commissioner of public works in Mayor Cermak's "little cabinet."

Mr. Stratton is completing his first term in this important post. He held his first state job in 1917. Mr. Hughes was sixteen years in the state senate, serving as the Democratic minority leader for many of the terms. Both candidates have large followings and are making strenuous campaigns as the election of Nov. 8 nears, Stratton being 42 years old and Hughes 45.

A Veteran in Politics.

The present secretary of state was born in Ingleside, educated in the public schools, and as a young man did farm work. He went into politics early in life as a member of the board of supervisors of Lake county, serving in that capacity for fourteen years.

Mr. Stratton was chairman of the Lake county Republican central committee for eight years, and in 1917 made his entrance into state politics when Gov. Lowden appointed him a deputy game warden. Len Small raised him to the rank of chief game warden in 1921.

The state department of conservation was created by the legislature in 1925 and Small again elevated Stratton, making him its first director. On March 1, 1928, the director resigned to become a candidate for the nomination for secretary of state. He was nominated and elected.

The secretary of state is married and has two sons, Kerwin, 12 years old, and William, 14.

Elected to Senate in 1914.

Mr. Hughes was born in Chicago, educated in the public schools and took courses in law and engineering. In 1914 he was elected to the state senate from the 21st senatorial district, being reëlected in 1918, 1922 and 1926. In recommending his reëlection in 1926, the Legislative Voters' league said Mr. Hughes "was one of the most capable and useful members of the senate."

In 1930 the Cook county Democratic organization chose Hughes for the board of review and he was nominated and elected. He had not served long when the Kelly bill, providing for the reorganization of the Chicago taxing machinery by abolition of the board of assessors and the board of review, was adopted by the legislature, abolishing his job.

Mr. Hughes made two long campaign trips downstate, one before the primary, which resulted in his nomination, and the second during September and most of October. Mr. Hughes is a member of the Western Society of Engineers and the American Society of Engineers. He is married and lives with his wife and daughter at 3339 Fulton boulevard.

NOTES OF THE CAMPAIGN

Two large gatherings in Chicago will provide the "pre-windup" climax of the Democratic campaign. The first will be a luncheon at the Hotel Sherman at noon today given by the Union Labor Club of Illinois, which has indorsed Gov. Roosevelt, Judge Horner, Congressman Dieterich, the candidate for senator, and Senator Thomas Courtney, candidate for state's attorney. The second rally will be held at the Chicago Stadium Monday night. The Democrats expect either John W. Davis, James M. Cox, or Newton D. Baker to be the headliner.

John E. Northup, Republican candidate for attorney general, speaks today at Paris, Charleston, and Mattoon. He has been invited to speak at the noonday luncheon of the Chicago Bar association Monday.

Senator Tom Courtney promised war on all types of "gyps" who prey on the motoring public yesterday in a talk before the Courtney for State's Attorney Nonpartisan Automobile club.

State Treasurer Edward J. Barrett, Democratic candidate for auditor, has received letters from the cashiers of four downstate banks, each presided over by a prominent Republican, commending his office for "fair and courteous treatment." The presidents of the banks whose cashiers wrote the letters are Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, National Committeeman Frank L. Smith, Omer N. Custer of Galesburg, and Congressman B. M. Chiperfield of Canton.

In redistricting a number of precincts because of the law that provides that precincts shall contain as near 400 voters as is practicable, the board of election commissioners has reduced the number of precincts in Chicago from 3,054 to 3,029, a loss of 25. There are 129 precincts in country towns under the jurisdiction of the board of election commissioners, making a total of 3,158 precincts under the commissioners.

The United States Junior Chamber of Commerce in its nonpartisan "get out the vote" campaign will hold 100 first voters' meetings throughout the country tonight, according to Howard S. Davidson, chairman of the program committee. The meetings will hear radio talks by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and Silas H. Strawn.

"The Social Promises of the Two Major Parties" will be the subject of the opening session of the eighth season of the Chicago Forum programs to be held at 3:15 tomorrow afternoon in the Masonic Temple. William E. Dodd, professor of history at the University of Chicago, will speak for the Democrats, and Prof. Arthur J. Todd of Northwestern University will present the Republican side.

A letter signed by five past state commanders of the American Legion has been sent to 20,000 ex-service men in Illinois urging them to support Harry G. Wright, Republican candidate for auditor of public accounts. The letter was signed by Milton J. Foreman, Ferre C. Watkins, David L. Shillinglaw, Howard P. Savage, and Arthur Poorman.

The 7th ward Democratic organization will hold a cabaret reception for Judge Henry Horner and other candidates on the Democratic ticket at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the Southmoor hotel, 67th street and Stony Island avenue.

Plan Part Time Job for Ousted School Bandmaster

A plan to give James Sylvester, ousted as a bandmaster in the public schools because he failed to pass an examination in English, a day and a half's work each week was announced yesterday by Supt. William J. Bogan. Sylvester has been a school bandmaster for 8 years and his student bands have won city contests.

Alfred Rackett, assistant to James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, told Mr. Bogan that Sylvester's parents sent him from Chicago as a youth to study music at Naples, Italy. Besides his musical training Sylvester learned Italian, French and German, although he neglected his English. He served as a bandmaster overseas during the world war.

DU PAGE COUNTY PROSECUTOR IS CALLED UNFIT

Democratic Rival Charges Crime Alliance.

Joseph S. Perry, Democratic candidate for state's attorney of Du Page county, in a speech last night at Bensenville charged the present state's attorney, Chauncey W. Reed, with official incapacity. Reed is the Republican candidate and has been the Du Page county prosecutor for twelve years.

Perry, who lives in Glen Ellyn and is associated in the practice of law with David Dunbar of Wheaton, gave several instances of what he called proof of Reed's unfitness for office. Reed has spent, said Perry, and is spending, far more than the $38,000 salary the state's attorney will receive in the four year term. Perry also charged that an assessment has been levied on public employés and tickets sold to speakeasy owners and criminals.

Calls Dry Law Hopeless.

"I don't comment on Mr. Reed's failure to enforce the prohibition laws because I don't believe they can be honestly enforced," Attorney Perry said. "But I do accuse him of open connivance with bootleggers and charge he has failed to prosecute many criminals.

"Some time ago a constable tried to tell the grand jury about the car stealing ring headed by George Woodruff of Glen Ellyn, who runs a booze and gambling joint. State's Attorney Reed shooed him out of the grand jury room, but things got so hot that recently Woodruff was indicted. Now he is openly boasting that his friend, Reed, will never prosecute him. Reed is disqualified to prosecute in this case because of his relations with Woodruff.

"The chief investigator for the state's attorney lives next door to Woodruff and must have known all the time about the activities in stolen cars. But Reed wouldn't act against him until forced to do so.

"I am told that $10 a barrel is paid for protection on every barrel of beer sold in this county. Protection in bootlegging goes hand in hand with protection for any other crimes a bootlegger commits.

Manager Caught in Raid.

"Recently the federal authorities raided Al Hawker's place in Wheaton and they found Reed's campaign manager there. The government officers turned the gambling paraphernalia over to Reed, who refused to take the proper action.

"Right in the state's attorneys headquarters is a man under indictment for embezzlement. Many people think this man is innocent, but even so, the state's attorney cannot be justified in associating with a man he is in duty bound to prosecute. One of the former officials of Villa Park has been under indictment for four years for embezzlement, but Reed does not bring him to trial."

Attorney Perry said he had been asked by Republicans to run against Reed, and that he is being supported by Republicans as well as Democrats. He is 36 years old, a graduate of the University of Alabama, where he won Phi Beta Kappa honors, and after he was an instructor at the University of Chicago and received the degree of doctor of jurisprudence. He is a member of the American Legion.

NORTHUP PLANS TO NAME STRONG STAFF IF ELECTED

Means to Increase Office Efficiency.

Close coöperation between the attorney general's office and authorities of every Illinois county was suggested yesterday by John E. Northup, Republican candidate for attorney general, as a means of increasing the efficiency of the office and lowering the cost of its operation.

JOHN E. NORTHUP.

Mr. Northup also made suggestions for strengthening the state's legal codes and announced that he would, if elected, "consider the effect of laws elsewhere applied for improvement in economic conditions surrounding farm interests, banking facilities, and stability, transportation problems, public service controversies, and labor conditions."

Believes in Capable Staff.

"If the voters of Illinois name me as their choice for attorney general, I expect to maintain and improve, wherever possible, the efficiency of the office," said Mr. Northup. "I am a firm believer in selecting highly capable attorneys for the staff of such an office. It is obvious that a great legal department like that of the attorney general should be conducted by a staff of skillful lawyers.

"The importance of this will be realized when it is recalled that all other state heads and departments and local subdivisions of the state depend upon the attorney general's office for legal advice.

Duty Confronts Every Official.

"A great duty confronts every official these days. It is not enough to talk about tax reduction. Excessive taxation is one of the burdens which the citizens of today are bearing. The expense of government must be cut and cut ruthlessly and then grent efforts must be made to see that the expense is kept as low as possible.

"We must keep governmental expenditures as low as possible not only in times of depression but in times of prosperity when spending proclivities are greatest. There are many ways to accomplish this end, such as eliminating overlapping forms of government. I shall use the office of attorney general to protect the taxpayer and pledge myself to enforce the law without being influenced by any political pressure."

J. A. REED HERE; SEES VICTORY FOR ROOSEVELT

A forecast of a "tremendous Roosevelt victory" was made yesterday by ex-Senator James A. Reed of Kansas City as he rested in Chicago from campaigning. He came from St. Paul where he made a speech, and tonight he is billed for Milwaukee. The Missourian told a new campaign story.

"A farmer," said Mr. Reed, "was found who had switched from Roosevelt to Hoover. He was asked why The farmer answered: 'It's an economy move. The Republicans are going to take all our farms for taxes and then I'll homestead mine.'"

Mr. Reed continued:

"It looks like a great Roosevelt victory. I won't attempt to say how many states he will carry, because that would be putting myself in the prophet class with Hoover, but my observation is that the country is safely Democratic. Minnesota should go Democratic by 150,000."

HIRAM JOHNSON TELLS WHY HE DESERTS HOOVER

Declares His Prophecies Fail to Come True.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Unleashing an oratorial barrage against President Hoover, Senator Hiram W. Johnson tonight urged all progressives to support Franklin D Roosevelt in the forthcoming election.

Johnson's address, delivered before a massmeeting sponsored by the Progressive Republican-Roosevelt league of California, was a sequel to his recent announcement that he could not and would not support President Hoover.

Bitter Lessons of Politics.

"The angry cry of party regularity," said the senator, "from those who use blind partisanship for their own profit and aggrandizement, neither frightens nor halts progressive Republicans in this memorable contest. The bitter lessons of politics have taught our people that regularity is a fetish for the mentally weak and halt and lame, the only hope of political preferment of mediocrity, the last refuge of the political moron and a means by which the favored few may exploit the unprotected many."

"Almost at an end," said Johnson "is an inept, futile, ineffective, inefficient, disastrous and un-American administration, and the United States of America is about to have governmental a new deal."

Asserting the country had endured three years of "bewildered governmental vacillation, three years of false prophecies and broken promises" and a lack of foresight in government leaders, the California senator criticized the administration for "obvious misinterpretation and childish prophecies."

No Warnings Heeded.

"And now, in a political campaign," he said, "the administration that had heeded no warnings, had not forseen and did not understand, with an audacity unparalleled, preaches a gospel of fear, and with cries it might have been worse, demands that the pilot of a shipwreck be kept at the helm.

"All of us, in more or less degree, have had some costly experience with the promoter of a doubtful enterprise, and the attitude of the administration has been the attitude of the promoter who has bemused and beguiled a gullible public, inducing it to embark in his undertaking, and then, when losses or ruin face the deceived, unwary purchaser, the promoter signs his siren song of salesmanship and unctuously says it might have been worse, and the little which has been salvaged must still be entrusted to his disastrous and precarious leadership.

"It might have been worse? Let the business man, tottering on the verge of ruin, let the farmer, after a lifetime of toil, dispossessed of his home and in the twilight of life beginning again the struggle for mere existence, let the eleven million pounding the pavements in agony of soul begging for only a chance to work . . . answer this hypocritical smugness of men mad to win by any means of a political campaign."

Hits Cajoling of Workers.

Johnson branded as an addition to "the insult of our intelligence" the alleged efforts of some employers to "cajole workingmen to do their will" and "by threats would deprive American citizens of their freedom of choice in an American election."

"It is quite sufficient to say," he went on, "that the fault rests in an erroneous outlook . . . This outlook may not be the deliberate fault of the individual in command, but the misfortune of his training, of his life spent in another environment, the formative period of his career and character passed in England in an atmosphere inimical to progressive principles, and in activities for two decades afforded no understanding of American psychology or American life."

Grant Good Intentions.

Continuing, Mr. Johnson said:

"We may grant the good intentions of the President; we may even say that in the best of faith he always guessed wrong, but the American people are justified in concluding that the man at the head of the government with every source and every means of knowledge at his command, with continuing events accurately reported to him, who always guessed wrong and who was a mine of misinformation and a fountain of misrepresentation, long since exhausted his usefulness in the conduct of their affairs. And with such a record . . . what faith can be put in his prophecies and promises of the future?"

Drawing contrasting pictures of the political philosophies of the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates, Johnson praised that of Roosevelt, asserting his public career had been "as stainless as his private life."

Robbed by Gunwoman in Hallway at Her Home

A blonde woman halted Mrs. Curtis Betts in the hallway of an apartment building at 7034 Sheridan road, in which she lives, late yesterday afternoon. Drawing a pistol from a handbag, the woman took Mrs. Betts' purse, which contained $5.55. She then ran to an automobile at the curb and was driven away by a young man.

6 MORO LEADERS OF PHILIPPINE REVOLT GIVE UP

JOLO, P. I., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Through the intervention of two Moro princesses, nieces of the Sultan of Sulu, six Moro outlaw leaders surrendered today after three weeks of intermittent fighting with the Philippine constabulary which cost 56 lives. Two other leaders were expected to give themselves up tomorrow.

Princess Dayang Dayang negotiated the surrenders. Princess Tarhata, a graduate of the University of Illinois, is the wife of an outlaw leader now in prison, and is arranging for the surrender of another chieftain.

Muhamed, one of the Moro leaders who surrendered, promised that his followers and their rifles would be surrendered tomorrow. The leader said Iman Ibbah, who led an ambush on Oct. 9 in which 10 native constabularymen were killed, was "completely crazy" from wounds.

MAKE FORCED LANDING SAFELY.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Forced down in the inky darkness just before dawn today, Pilot Seabrease landed his ice-coated tri-motored plane safely in a cornfield. He was not hurt.

PRESIDENT HOOVER ATTACKS FOES' ARGUMENTS AS FALSE

REVEALS FLAWS IN TARIFF STAND OF DEMOCRATS

Promises and Record Do Not Agree, He Says.

Gov. Roosevelt, said the President, had yet to meet the bonus issue "fairly and squarely," he had yet to disavow the attempt of the Democratic house at the last session to pass a bill authorizing the issue of 2 billion 300 million dollars of greenbacks.

As for himself, the President said he would continue to oppose immediate payment of the bonus, and the audience cheered him for that pledge. But he would see to it that when the bonus was finally paid it should be paid "in real money."

And again the stadium rang with an applause all the more telling because Indianapolis is the home of the headquarters of the American Legion.

Gov. Roosevelt had accused the administration of furthering the investment of American money in unsound foreign securities, the President recalled. How did it happen, then, he wanted to know, that Gov. Roosevelt was chairman of the board in 1928 of the Federal International Banking company, a corporation "organized for the selling of foreign securities and bonds to the American people?"

Called "Private Promoter."

"The governor as a private promoter for profit during the boom of 1928," said Mr. Hoover, "believed and practiced what the governor, as presidential candidate, now denounces as immoral and a cause of our calamities."

Moreover, the President demanded, if the sale of foreign securities was so heinous a practice, why did not Mr. Roosevelt, as governor of New York, where the largest sales occurred, put a stop to that practice?

It was a hot speech—a "fighting speech" as advertised. It was the most vehement the President has yet delivered.

It could not but bring to mind the simile of an engine that has been gathering steam and gathering it until at last the safety valve flies open. This was the blow-off.

Big Crowd Greets Him.

The President came into Indianapolis for his fourth midwestern speech to be met by such a crowd as the Hoosier capital turns out only in honor of a major event.

His reception was in marked contrast to the hostile boos that followed his appearance in Detroit last Saturday.

If Indiana's welcome to the Republican candidate was exuberant, Ohio's, earlier in the day, was enthusiastic enough to give the party prophets new hope of carrying the state.

Beginning the day with a back platform appearance at Parkersburg, just within the West Virginia line, the President crossed the Ohio river and between breakfast and lunch made seven appearances before cheering crowds that numbered anywhere from Hamden's 500 to Cincinnati's 10,000.

The reception at Cincinnati was particularly rousing. The stop was made at the Winton place station in the heart of the city's industrial area.

"It is heartening," said the President as he looked out over the shifting crowd of faces. "It is an indication of where you will stand on the eighth of November next."

Would Aid Coal Industry.

At Athens, O., the President urged a program of coöperation to reduce the "bitter, destructive competition" in the soft coal industry.

Immediately following the conclusion of his Indianapolis speech, and with the chowd still cheering, the President left for his waiting special train. Tomorrow morning will see him making three more stops at West Virginia and Maryland towns and the afternoon will find him back again in Washington.

HOOVER SPEECH TEXT

"My major purpose tonight is to discuss those long view policies by which we not only cement recovery, but also by which we secure over the years the enlarged comfort and the steady progress of the American people. I propose to contrast them with the ideas which have been developed by the Democratic house of representatives, the Democratic platform, and the Democratic candidate in the course of his campaign.

"When I refer to the views of these groups I say at once that I do not refer to all members of the Democratic party. Many of them, as in 1896 and 1928, have signified their intention to support us against these notions. I also pay tribute to those Democratic members of congress who have supported our measures for combating the depression.

Depression Chief Issue.

"I again reiterate the statement made recently at Detroit, that the most important issue before the American people right now is to overcome this crisis, that we may secure restoration of the normal jobs of our unemployed, recovery to our agricultural prices and to business, that we may extend generous help in the meantime to tide our people over until the fundamental restoration is accomplished.

"I pointed out there that the battle has now changed from successful defense of our country from disaster and chaos to forward marching attack on a hundred fronts through a score of instrumentalities and weapons toward recovery. Since that time I have further positive evidence showing that the measures and policies we have set up are driving the forces of this depression into further retreat.

"If there shall be no change in the strategy of this battle, if there shall be no delay and no hesitation, we shall have the restoration of men and women to their normal jobs and to lift agriculture from its anxieties and losses.

"Before I begin the major discussion of the evening, I shall take a moment of your time to revert to these methods and policies for protection and recovery from this depression in the light of certain recent misstatements of the Democratic candidate in respect to them.

"I presume the governor of New York will announce that I am acting upon the defensive if I shall expose the self-interested inexactitude which he is broadcasting to the American people. I am equally prepared to defend, attack, or expound. I shall not be deterred from my purpose to lay before the people the truth as to the issues they confront; I shall do it in the sense of responsibility of one who has carried and must continue to carry these issues into action.

"The governor of New York in a speech on Oct. 25 stated:

"'The crash came in October, 1929. The President had at his disposal all the instrumentalities of the government. From that day to Dec. 31, 1931, he did absolutely nothing to remedy the situation. Not only did he do nothing, but he took the position that congress could do nothing.'

"Violation of Truth."

"That period constitutes more than the first two years of the depression. It seems almost incredible that a man, a candidate for the presidency of the United States, would broadcast such a violation of the truth. The front pages of every newspaper in the United States for the whole of those two years proclaimed the untruth of such statements. I need remind you of but a few of the acts of the administration to demonstrate what I say.

"The governor dismisses the agreements brought about between leaders of industry and labor less than a month after the crash by which wages of literally millions of men and women were, for the first time in 15 depressions of a century, held without reduction until after profits had ceased and the cost of living had decreased.

"He ignores that today real wages in the United States are higher than in any other depression period, and higher in purchasing power than in any other country in the world. He dismisses the healing effect of these agreements by which the country has been kept from industrial strife and class conflicts.

Division of Work.

"He would suppress from the American people knowledge of the undertaking brought about within two months after the crash among the industries to divide existing work in such fashion as to give to millions of families some measure of income instead of discharging a large portion of them into destitution as had always been the case in previous depressions. He ignores the fact that they have held to these practices to this day.

"If the governor will look up his own files of official correspondence he will find that within a month after the crash I appealed to him for cooperation in creating employment and stabilizing wages, in which I set out to him the gravity of the situation and urged that he should present the great need to all cities and counties. If he says nothing was done, then he violated the promise he gave me at the time.

"Nevertheless, the other states and municipalities entered into the general definite organized campaign to increase construction work in relief to unemployment during the winters of 1930 and 1931.

Agencies Mobilized.

"Not only federal but state, municipal and private agencies were mobilized to this enr. By this, which the governor seems to have forgotten, I succeeded in reversing the whole of the usual process of decreasing construction work in time of depression.

"This type of work was increased during the first year of the depression by over $800,000,000 above normal, thus giving a living to thousands of families who otherwise would have been destitute.

"The governor would suppress the fact of the mobilization of the American people under my leadership for the winters of 1930 and 1931 of private charity and public support to relief of distress in every town, village and hamlet of the United States through which we carried them over those winters without serious suffering or loss, as is proved by the public health statistics day by day.

Additional Federal Works.

"The governor cannot be ignorant of the recommendations I made to the congress within a month after the crash and again in the session a year later for the great increase of federal public works in aid to employment; and he cannot be ignorant of the appropriation made to care for the farmers stricken by drought or the public funds raised under my leadership for those purposes.

"The governor entirely ignores the most patent fact in the history of this depression—that under the wise policies pursued recovery of the United States from this first phase of the depression—that is, collapse from our own speculation and boom—began about a year after the crash and continued definitely and positively until April, 1931, when the European crash took place.

"The governor is probably entirely ignorant of the international measures taken to limit extension of this prairie fire under my leadership. He ignores the German moratorium and standstill agreements in June, 1931, which not only saved Germany from complete collapse but prevented much more extended distress in the United States.

Assistance for Banks.

"He neglects the creation after the collapse in England of the National Credit corporation, with a capital of $500,000,000 in coöperation with American banks, which saved over 700 institutions involving deposits of upward of 10,000,000 of our people.

"The governor entirely misrepresents the fact that the plan to meet this crisis, which swept upon us from Europe, was proposed by me to political leaders of the United States at a White House conference on Oct. 6, 1931, further elaborated in a message to the congress on Dec. 8, and was not the creation of Democratic leaders at the end of December, as he would imply.

"The Democratic leaders produced no plan until they began their destructive program a few months later, not one of which acts he has disavowed. He ignores the fact that the unprecedented measures proposed and carried through by the administration would have put us on the road to recovery eight months ago instead of having to await the adjournment of the Democratic house of representatives.

Charges Reiterated.

"And again the governor, despite every proof, keeps reiterating the implication that measures taken by this administration have brought no fruitful result to the common man. He has been told, at least by some of the men who advise him in his campaign, that the gigantic crisis which the United States faced was escaped by the narrowest margin and that this was due to the unprecedented measures adopted by this administration.

"If some of these very men will tell him the whole truth, they will tell him that they personally sought to buy and withdraw large sums of gold because of their belief that we could not maintain the gold reserves.

"Why can he not be frank enough to recognize the successful care of the distressed in the United States; that a vast amount of employment has been provided; that the savings of more than 95 per cent of the depositors in our banks have been held secure; that the 20,000,000 borrowers who otherwise would have been bankrupt by destructive pressures from forced selling of their assets in order to pay their debts have been protected; that the 70,000,000 life insurance policies which represent the greatest act of self-denial of our people in provision for the future safety of their loved ones have been sustained in their validity; that foreclosure of hundreds of thousands of home and farm mortgages has been prevented?

Currency Sustained.

"He knows that the integrity of our currency has been sustained; that the credit of the federal government has been maintained; that credit and employment are being expanded every day.

"The living proof of these measures, which were conceived from the human heart as well as the mind, can be found in the men and women in every city, every town, every township, and every block in this broad land—for they have been saved their jobs and secured from suffering.

"I have stated my major purpose this evening is to speak upon some of the continuing policies of this administration in contrast with the policies of our opponents.

"Many of these continuing policies are dealt with in our platform. I dealt with many of them in my acceptance speech. Some have developed in the course of this campaign. Having had the responsibility of this office for three and one-half years my views upon such public questions are already set out in many matters in the public record and public action. I do not have to engage in promises. I may point to performance.

Discusses Tariff.

"The opposition has shown its true purposes by the legislation of the last session of the Democratic house of representatives through their platform and through the statements or evasions of their candidate.

"Of these subjects I may refer first to the tariff.

"In a recent speech, in discussing the agricultural tariffs, I pointed out the specific disaster to our farms from the Democratic proposal to reduce these protective tariffs. I pointed out that the Democratic party had, in 1913, not content with merely lowering the tariff, put a large part of farm products on the free list.

"I pointed out that the Republican party had passed an emergency farm tariff bill in 1921, and a Democratic President had vetoed it. I pointed out that the Democratic minority in congress in 1921 had voted against the revival of the emergency farm tariff and the Republican majority had passed it and a Republican President signed it.

Voted Against Increase.

"I pointed out that the Democratic minority had voted against an increase in agricultural tariffs in the Republican tariff act of 1922. I pointed out that most of the Democratic members of congress voted against the bill carrying these increases of tariffs in the special session of congress which I called in 1929 for that purpose, but we passed this bill.

"In the light of their historic attitude it is but natural that our opponents express their bitter opposition to the Republican tariff. They have habitually voted against these tariffs. And now they propose in their platform 'competitive tariff for revenue,' and they denounce the whole Smoot-Hawley bill which is mainly devoted to increase of the farm tariffs. The Democratic candidate from the day of his nomination iterates and reiterates that he proposes to reduce the tariff. He states it was an unwarranted increase of the tariff.

Cadidate Accepts Position.

"During the first seven weeks of this campaign he not only adopts their historic position and constantly repeats their platform but reinforces it by repeated statements that—

"'I support the competitive tariff for revenue.

"'The tariff law of 1932 was a drastic revision of the tariff upward in spite of the fact that the existing tariff levels were already high enough to protect American industries.

"'I condemn the Hawley-Smoot tariff.

"'A wicked and exorbitant tariff.

"'Our policy declares for lowered tariffs.

"Mr. Roosevelt and his party knew that the major increases in the Smoot-Hawley act were the farm tariffs when their platform was drawn, and he knew of them when he made the statements that I have quoted.

Reduction of Farm Tariffs.

"The evidence is complete that they and he intended to reduce farm tariffs.

"During the last three weeks I have reiterated this plain and evident purpose of their party and their candidate. Unquestionably my exposition has given their candidate great anxiety, because on the 25th of this month, just 21 days after my statement, he announced another new deal. I call this a new shuffle. He now announces within two weeks of the election that he does not propose to reduce tariffs on farm products.

"This is the most startling shift in position by a presidential candidate in the midst of a political campaign in all recent political history. What would Grover Cleveland or Samuel Tilden or Woodrow Wilson say to such a shift?

"Does the governor realize that he has overnight thrown overboard the great historical position of his party? That he has rewritten the Democratic platform? That he must withdraw half of his speeches in which he denounced the Hawley-Smoot act as the origin of this world calamity?

66 Per Cent on Agriculture.

"I have the privilege of informing him that 66 per cent of all the duties collected on all dutiable imports are directly on imports of agricultural origin and the reduction of which would affect American farmers.

"Are we to take it that all the diatribes we have heard from the Democratic candidate throughout this campaign are in respect to only one-third of the American tariffs? Just seven days ago he said, 'the Hawley-Smoot tariff law caused the decline in world trade, and what amounted to a minor calamity became a general international calamity.' He must now conclude that the farm tariffs do the world no harm.

"You will further remember that under that act two-thirds of our imports are free of duty, and now he excludes two-thirds of the remaining one-third that are dutiable.

"Does he still pretend that this terrible calamity to the world was caused by tariffs on one-ninth of our imports? And further, does he know that of this one-ninth of imports of nonagricultural commodities less than one-half of them were increased?

Calls Argument Nonsense.

"Does he now pretend that this calamity was caused by increase of tariffs on one-eighteenth of our imports? Does he continue to ignore that our whole imports are less than 12 per cent of the world imports and that thus, in his revised view, increased duties on one-eighteenth of one-twelfth, or less than one-half of 1 per cent, brought on the world calamity? He should now at least search in the aftermath of the world war for the origins of this calamity and stop this nonsense.

"I wish to extend this discussion a little further, that the governor may explain himself on some more tariff questions. Does he include reduction of the tariff on cotton textiles, so largely manufactured in the south? I have included but a part of these in agricultural tariffs, inasmuch as only a part of raw cotton is not protected. Does he propose to close up the southern cotton mills?

"In view of this new light, has he considered the position of the oil industry—in the states of California and Oklahoma, in Texas and in Kansas?

"Has he considered the copper industry—in the states of Arizona, Montana, Michigan, and Utah?

Other Communities Affected.

"Has he considered the tariffs on metal and other products which affect the welfare of the whole of the New England states and New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, California, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and West Virginia?

"Has he considered the tariff on pottery and chemicals—and its effect upon New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and California?

"Has he considered the tariffs on lumber—in their effect on Oregon, Washington, California, and Wisconsin?

"Perhaps if he would give the same consideration to the effect of reducing tariffs for these people, he will come to the same conclusion as that to which he has been forced by this debate in respect to agriculture.

"Now if political exigencies have forced his temporary conversion on agricultural products, how far has he authority to change at will the traditional policies and the platform of the Democratic party? How far can Governor Roosevelt guarantee to bring with him the Democratic members of the house and senate who voted against the bills carrying the increases in agricultural tariffs, and how about the men who wrote the plank in the Democratic platform?

Eleventh Hour Conversion.

"Do you as farmers believe in this eleventh hour conversion? And, finally, I ask you whether or not you, as business men, farmers, and workmen, are prepared to intrust your future occupations and welfare to the gentleman whose fixity of principle and whose knowledge of the subject can be driven out of him in only three weeks? Do you consider that your livelihood is safe in the hands of the traditional and present enemy of the protective tariffs?

"Perhaps the governor and the whole Democratic party will now withdraw and apologize for the defamation to which I have been subjected for the last two years because I called a special session of the congress and secured an increase in agricultural tariffs.

Welcomes Further Debate.

"I myself am taking heart over this debate. If it could be continued long enough, I can drive him from every solitary position he has taken in this campaign. They are all equally untenable. Perhaps I could get him to declare himself upon other evasions and generalities. But even on the tariff he perhaps remembers the dreadful position of the chameleon on the Scotch plaid.

"As to the balance of the protective tariffs, unless his late conversion extends further than agriculture, he proposes to reduce them in the face of the fact that during the last 14 months there has been a violent change in the economy of the entire world through the depreciation of the currencies in 30 European nations and thus lowering of their standards of living and the creation of still greater differences between costs of production in the United States and abroad.

Republican Stand for Tariff.

"Now, the Republican party is squarely for the protective tariff. I refuse to put the American workers and farmers into further unemployment and misery by any such action as the unrepented principles of their members of congress and their platform.

"The governor's new shuffle requires that he give some further assurances to the farmers. The Democratic house of representatives and their allies in the senate passed a bill directing me to call an international conference for purposes of reducing tariffs.

"The governor has supported this in his campaign. That means that we should surrender to foreigners the determination of a policy which we have zealously held in American control for 150 years, ever since the first protective tariff was enacted under George Washington. This would, in this manner, place the fate of American workers and American farmers in the hands of foreign nations. I vetoed the bill.

The governor should now explain to the farmers that if he were to call such a conference he would exempt agricultural tariffs.

Reciprocal Tariff Proposal.

"Beyond this the Democratic party and their candidates propose to enter upon reciprocal tariffs. That idea is not entirely new in our history, although it is a violation of a now firmly established principle of uniform and equal treatment of all nations without preferences, concessions or discriminations.

"It is just such concessions and discriminations that are producing today a large part of the frictions of Europe. I suppose our Democratic friends try to blame these European tariff wars on the Smoot-Hawley bill.

"Though reciprocal tariffs are a violation of American principles, this nation has fallen from grace and at times attempted to do this very thing. At one time 22 such treaties were negotiated for this purpose. Congress refused to confirm 16 of them, 2 of the remaining failed of confirmation by other governments, and 4 others were so immaterial as not to excite notice.

"On another occasion congress conferred on the executive a limited authority to make such treaties, 22 of which were agreed upon, all of which were repealed by tariff acts.

"This all demonstrated just one thing. In an intelligent democracy you cannot surrender the welfare of one industry or locality to gain something for another.

Another Question for Farmers.

"There is, however, an overriding objection to reciprocal tariff upon which the governor's new shuffle requires that he give further assurances to the farmers.

"The vast majority of the wishes of foreign countries about our tariffs is to get us to reduce our agricultural tariffs so that they can enter our agricultural market. The only concessions that we could grant through reciprocal tariffs would be at the cost of our farmers.

"Since the governor's assurance not to reduce farm tariffs it is necessary for him to assure the farmers that he will abandon reciprocal tariffs in relation to agriculture. This, of course, takes away all of the trading value in the reciprocal theory.

"In all this discussion about reducing tariffs it should be remembered that if any one of the rates or schedules of our tariff is too high, it has been open to our opponents during the whole of the last session of the house of representatives to pass a simple resolution and thereby secure its review from the tariff commission. Did they do that? They did not.

Commission Hurts Campaign Trick.

"The establishment of the tariff commission with this authority destroyed one of the campaign methods of the Democratic party, and that was to conduct campaigns by exhibiting kettles or pans to the housewives of the nation and explaining what unjust cost was imposed upon them by the tariff. That maneuver is no longer effective, with the bipartisan tariff commission open to give remedy.

"The Democrats propose, and in fact passed a bill in the last session, to destroy this authority of the bipartisan tariff commission by which it may change the tariff so as to correct inequities or to alter the schedules to meet the changing tides of world economic life. Thus they propose to return to the old log-rolling, the orgies of greed, viciousness, and stagnation of business during general congressional action in review of the tariff.

Greatest Tariff Reform.

"The increased authority to the bipartisan tariff commission to make changes in tariff with the approval of the President, which was brought about by my insistence two years ago, was the greatest reform in tariff legislation in a half of a century. It was originated by Theodore Roosevelt.

"No better example of the vital importance of the flexible tariff exists than today, when we are in the crisis of men and women being thrown out of employment due to depreciated currencies abroad and of low priced farm products moving in over our borders. The commission is today reëxamining the new differences in cost of production at home and abroad that action may be taken to restore to men and women their jobs.

"Sound Republican policy maintains this commission and its authorities. The Democratic policy is to destroy it, but perhaps the governor will offer us a new deal on this also.

"The Democratic candidate proposes to place the payment of the war debts owed to us by foreign countries squarely on the shoulders of the American workman and the American farmer by lowering the tariffs for this special purpose.

"He would let down the bars to the American market for foreign commodities in order that foreign nations may collect from the profits of their manufactures the money with which to pay these debts. Will he now exclude 66 per cent of our dutiable imports, being agricultural products, from this proposal?

"My view in opposition to cancellation of the war debts is a matter of public record through many public statements and messages to congress. I have proposed that we should use the foreign debts, payment by payment, to expand the foreign markets for our labor and for our farmers. This is not cancellation. This is the reverse of the announced policy of the Democratic candidate.

Position on Immigration.

"At no point in this campaign have our opponents stated clearly and definitely their position on immigration. I have stated that I favor rigidly restricted immigration. I endeavored to secure from congress the return of quota bases from national origins to its former base. I have recommended that a more humane provision should be made for bringing in the near relatives of our citizens. I shall persist in these matters.

"I have limited immigration by administrative order during the depression in order to relieve us of unemployment or, alternatively, to save the jobs of our people who are now at work.

"Two years prior to that order going into effect nearly half a million immigrants came to the United States. Since it went into effect more have gone out than have come in. The distressed people with lowered standards of living that would have come in would have been a far greater addition to our unemployed than even that amount.

Transportation Law Revision.

"I have repeatedly recommended to the congress a revision of our railway transportation laws in order that we might create greater stability and greater assurance of this vital service in our transportation. This regulation should be extended to other forms of carriers, both to prevent the cut-throat destruction of their own business now going on amongst them and to prevent their destruction of the other major arm of our transportation.

"I have set this matter out in numerous messages to congress. I have supported the recommendations of the interstate commerce commission, which are specific and not generalities. Our opponents have adopted my program in this matter during this campaign except certain glittering generalizations, as to which they do not inform us how they are to be accomplished and upon which I enter a reservation.

"I have repeatedly recommended federal regulation of interstate power. I stated as early as seven years ago that 'glass pockets are the safety of the industry as well as the public.' I secured the creation of the independent power commission by the congress two years ago. I have opposed, and will continue to oppose, the federal government going into the power business.

"The intention of many men campaigning for the Democratic candidate, under the auspices of and with money provided by the Democratic national committee, is to put the government into the power business, and it would seem that they must have confidence that their notions will be put over by the Democratic candidate.

"The Democratic candidate says he will preserve the great water powers for the people. That is already provided by the law since 1920 and it therefore presents no difficulty to vigorous campaign promises.

Financial Weakness Exposed.

"In my acceptance speech I stated that this depression has exposed many weaknesses in our economic system. It has shown much wrongdoing. There has been exploitation and abuse of financial power. These weaknesses must be corrected and that wrongdoing must be punished. We will continue to reform such abuses and correct such wrongdoing as falls within the powers of the federal government.

"The American people must have protection from insecure banking through a stronger system. They must be relieved from conditions which permit the credit machinery of the country to be made available without adequate check for wholesale speculation in securities, with its ruinous consequences to millions of our citizens and to national economy. This the federal reserve system has proven incapable of doing.

"I recommended to the congress the sane reform of our banking laws. The Democratic house of representatives did not see fit to pass that legislation in the last session. I shall persist in securing its accomplishment.

Depositors of Closed Banks.

"I recommended to the congress an emergency relief to our depositors in closed banks that through the temporary use of the credit of the federal government a substantial part of their assets should be forthwith distributed in order to relieve distress and enable depositors to reëstablish their business.

"The Democratic congress refused to pass such legislation in the last session, except for a minor provision of authority to the Reconstruction Finance corporation which does not reach to the heart of the question at all.

"The Democratic candidate and his corps of orators have not yet disclosed their position on this subject.

"We have listened to much prattle from the opposition about reducing government expenses. Having a record of earnest performance, I naturally exposed their insincerities upon this question at Detroit.

"If I receive a mandate from the American people in this election, I shall be able not only to force upon this Democratic house real economies, but also be able to stop further raids by the Democratic party on the treasury of the United States.

Recommendation Annexed.

"The Democratic candidate has annexed, as if it were a new discovery, the recommendations which I made in 1922 and have continuously advocated ever since for the reorganization of the whole federal administrative structure for the purpose of economy by the consolidation of bureaus and the elimination of useless boards and commissions.

"The candidate in a recent speech misrepresents the present situation, for the congress, having been no longer able to oppose this reform, did pass a measure during the last session granting an authority to the executive to bring this about.

"They, however, denied my request for immediate action, except on minor matters, and made that authority dependent upon the approval of congress which cannot be given before next March under the terms of the law. If the Democratic candidate will read the law and inform himself fully upon the subject he must withdraw that statement.

Specific Proposals Made.

"I gave an address at Des Moines devoted largely to 12 specific measures now in action and to be put into action for agriculture.

"At Cleveland I likewise gave an extended exposition of the measures and policies which we have in action and propose for labor and employment. I am in hopes these statements will be carefully considered.

"One of the most important issues of this campaign arises from the fact that the Democratic candidate has not yet disavowed the bill passed by the Democratic house of representatives under the leadership of the Democratic candidate for Vice President to issue $2,300,000,000 of greenback currency—that is, unconvertible paper money. That is money purporting to come from the horn of plenty but with the death's head engraved upon it.

"Tampering with the currency has been a perennial policy of the Democratic party. The Republican party has had to repel that before now. In the absence of any declaration by the Democratic candidate on this subject for seven weeks of this campaign, no delayed promise now can effectually disavow that policy.

Says Policy Taints Party.

"The taint of it is firmly embedded in the Democratic party. The dangers of it are embedded in this election. If you want to know what this "new deal" and this sort of money does to the people, ask any of your neighbors who have relatives in Europe, especially as to German marks.

"I have stated that I do not favor the repayment of the soldiers' bonus of $2,300,000,000. It was passed by the last Democratic house of representatives. With the aid of the public it was stopped. It will be attempted again. The Democratic candidate has not yet stated to the American people fairly and squarely what his attitude is upon this subject.

"The reasons why I object to it can be illustrated by the father, who in a generous moment, promised his young son a bonus of $100 when he was 21 years old. The boy asked his father for the $100 thirteen years in advance. His father said "Times are bad. I am hard pressed. I have to bring up and educate all of the children, and I haven't the money. I am placing $5 per annum in the savings bank and as it is compounded it will amount to $100 when you are 21 years old."

Threatened with Votes.

"The moral of that story is you can not eat your loaf of compound interest before the dough has had time to rise. And the further political moral of this story is that it was said by the father's political opponents that this son would never vote for his father for public office.

"There is no one high in public office who knows better than I do from personal observation the service given by the youth of our country in the great war. I have insisted upon their care when in distress. But with all my regard and feeling I can not endanger the whole stability of this country in this special demand of a part of the veterans or any other special group. Of one thing I will assure the veterans and that is when they are paid they will be paid in real money.

"During the last few weeks the Democratic candidate has had a great deal to say in endeavoring to establish the idea in the minds of the American people that I am responsible for bad loans by American bankers and investors in foreign countries, he says:

"'This is an unsavory chapter in American finance. These bonds in large part are the fruit of distressing policies pursued by the present administration in Washington. None other, if you please, than the ability of lending to backward and crippled countries.'

Control Is in State.

"The governor does not inform the American people that there is no federal law of regulation of the sale of securities and that there is doubtful constitutional authority for such law; that most of these bonds are issued from New York state, which has such authority, and that the governor has done nothing to reform that evil, if it be one.

"I recollect a Republican governor of New York, who, believing wrong was being done to citizens of his own and other states on their life insurance, found a man in Charles Evans Hughes who cleaned it up once and for all.

"The governor has not stated to the American people my oft repeated warnings that American loans made in foreign countries should be on sound security and confined to reproductive purposes.

"I have defined these as being loans for creative enterprises which of their own earnings would repay interest and capital. In one of his addresses the governor pretends not to be able to understand what a reproductive loan is as yet, as I will show you in a moment, he does know something about it.

Proper Loans Aid U. S.

"I will say at once that when we have surplus capital, properly secured loans for reproductive purposes abroad are an advantage to the American people. They furnish work to American labor in the manufacture of plants and equipments; they furnish continuing demand for American labor in supplies and replacements.

"The effect of such creative enterprise is to increase the standards of living among the people in those localities and enable them to buy more American products and furnish additional work for American labor.

"I have no apologies to make for that statement. It is sound; it makes for the upbuilding of the world; it makes for employment of American workmen and profit to American investors. If it be followed there will be no losses.

"In these statements the governor entirely omits the conditions and warnings with which I have always pointedly surrounded the statements of this subject. Although no federal official has the authority to control the security offered on these loans, none have defaulted where my proposed safeguards have been followed.

Never Interested in Sale.

"It is obvious from the governor's many speeches that he now considers that all foreign loans are wrong. He seems to consider the selling of foreign bonds in our country to be wicked and the cause of our calamities.

"One interesting part of all this tirade is that I have never been engaged in the selling of foreign bonds or foreign loans. The governor has the advantage of me in experience in that particular. As late as 1928 the governor was engaged in that business for profit and actively occupied in promoting such loans.

"At that time he was chairman of the organization committee of the Federal International Banking company, a corporation organized for the selling of foreign securities and bonds to the American people.

Quotes from Prospectus.

"I have in my hand a prospectus of that corporation in which the foreword, written by Mr. Roosevelt before he resigned this position to take the governorship, reads as follows:

"'The organizers of the Federal International Banking company feel that foreign investments are in the nature of alliances. The Federal International Banking company will provide a new source of supply from which American demand for foreign investments may be satisfied. It is intended to promote expansion of American foreign trade. Investments of the Federal International are intended to be self-liquidating. It will put to sound protective uses a part of the surplus wealth of our nation which might otherwise be employed in the purchase of existing stocks and thereby increase present tendencies toward inflation.'

Aid to Debtor Nations.

"The prospectus states that 'its operations will be widely distributed in foreign countries and various industries.' It further states 'that we must aid debtor nations to purchase our products, rehabilitate themselves, expand and develop, and earn money with which to liquidate their debts, that foreign loans should be facilitated to aid the export sale of American products.'

"Throughout the prospectus constant reference is made to the fact that it is organized under the law, and the impression is given that in consequence it has some sort of official blessing from the federal government.

"I have no reason to believe that the governor's enterprise on this occasion was not perfectly proper and soundly founded. I do not wish to convey that impression. But the governor as a private promoter for profit during the boom of 1928 believed and practiced what the governor, as presidential candidate, now denounces as immoral and a cause of our calamities.

Denounces Attacks on Him.

"Two weeks ago at Cleveland I felt it necessary to denounce the calumnies being circulated in this campaign by the Democratic national committee in official instructions to their campaign speakers. That committee privately acknowledges that these have not a shred of foundation. They refuse to take the manly course and withdraw these statements. They have sought to maintain their continuing poison by silence.

"I now have before me other calumnies of the Democratic national committee, circulated in the same fashion by instructions to their campaign speakers. These instructions bristle with such titles as these:

"'How President Hoover has failed the children.'

"'His real interest in the nation's children may be gained by his recorded effort to emasculate and disrupt the children's bureau.'

Indorsement Implied.

"Gov. Roosevelt implies his indorsement of these calumnies by repeating their implications in his speeches when he speaks of what he calls 'attempts that have been made to cut appropriations for child welfare.'

"And again:

"'The United States public health service states that over six million of our public school children have not enough to eat; many are fainting at their desks; they are the prey of disease, and their future health is menaced.'

"In another speech he uttered a slur on the home loan bank system created by this administration.

"These things have importance only as indicating the desperate attempts to mislead the American voter. I am not required to defend my interest in children over the past score of years. But, more to the point, I have a letter from the chief of the United States Public Health service that no such statement as that quoted by Gov. Roosevelt has ever been put out by that service.

Health Not Impaired.

"Further, I have here an address only a week old, by the president of the American Public Health association, who is not a government official, saying 'By and large, the health of the people as measured in sickness and death has never been better despite the depression.' That shows the devoted work of thousands of American men and women whom his statements in this campaign have sought to slur.

"As to the children's bureau, I may demonstrate the untruth contained in this statement by the fact that the first year of my administration, despite the hard times, I increased appropriations for the children's bureau from $320,000 to $368,000; in the second year I recommended appropriations of $399,000, and in the third year I recommended appropriations of $395,000. But the Democratic house of representatives reduced this by $20,000. This scarcely looks like ruin of the children's bureau on my part.

Home Loan Bank Charges.

"In the matter of the home loan banks, the governor states that this idea was brought out in the middle of the campaign, and, like the instructions to speakers, he makes slurs upon it.

"That statement falls to the ground in the same slough of untruth as the others when it is recollected that I had founded the better homes movement in the United States more than ten years ago, whose activities in over 9,000 different communities through the devoted service of thousands of American women finally blossomed into the White House conference on home building and home ownership in December a year ago.

"On that occasion I proposed the plan for the home loan discount banks which I had advanced two years before and secured the support of that conference for the creation of the institution. The bill was drafted and presented to congress on Dec. 8 last.

"The refusal of the Democratic house of representatives to act prevented its passage until the last hour of the session, eight months later, when the pressures from women and men devoted to the upbuilding of the American home had become so great that they did not dare defeat it in the face of this campaign.

"Had that bill been passed when it was introduced, nearly a year ago, the suffering and losses of thousands of small home owners in the United States would have been prevented.

"I consider that act was the greatest act yet undertaken by any government at any time on behalf of the thousands of owners of small homes. It provides the machinery, through the mobilization of building and loan associations and savings banks, by which we may assure to men and women the opportunity to bring up their children in the surroundings which make for true unity and true purpose in American life.

Slur on Supreme Court.

"In Gov. Roosevelt's address delivered on Oct. 25 he stated:

"'After March 4, 1929, the Republican party was in complete control of all branches of the government—executive, senate and house, and I may add for good measure, the Supreme court as well.'

"I invite your attention to that statement about the Supreme court. There are many things revealed by the campaign of our opponents which should give American citizens concern about the future. One of the gravest is the state of mind revealed by my opponent in that statement. He implies that it is the function of the party in power to control the Supreme court.

"For generations Republican and Democratic Presidents alike have made it their most sacred duty to respect and maintain the independence of America's greatest tribunal.

"President Taft appointed a Democrat as chief justice; President Harding nominated a Democratic justice; my last appointment was a Democrat from New York state whose appointment was applauded by Republicans and Democrats alike the nation over. All appointees to the Supreme court have been chosen solely on the basis of character and mental power. Not since the civil war have the members of the court divided on political lines.

Points to Implication.

"Aside from the fact that the charge that the Supreme court has been controlled by any political party is an atrocious one, there is a deeper implication in that statement. Does it disclose the Democratic candidate's conception of the functions of the Supreme court? Does he expect the Supreme court to be subservient to him and his party? Does that statement express his intention by his appointments or otherwise to attempt to reduce that tribunal to an instrument of party policy and political action for sustaining such doctrines as he may bring with him?

"My countrymen, I repeat to you, the fundamental issue in this campaign, the decision that will fix the national direction for 100 years to come, is whether we shall go on in fidelity to the American traditions or whether we shall turn to innovations, the spirit of which is disclosed to us by many sinister revelations and veiled promises.

"My friends, I wish to make my position clear. I propose to go on in faith and loyalty to the traditions of our race. I propose to build upon the foundations which our fathers have laid over 150 years."

VOTERS TO PASS ON UNIQUE BOND ISSUE ON NOV. 8

Tax Increase Will Come Only if It Fails.

Voters of Illinois will pass on a unique bond issue proposition at the election of Nov. 8. In all previous instances the issuance of bonds has necessitated an increase in taxes to retire those bonds and pay the interest on them. In this case the tax increase will come only in the event that the proposed issue fails to win the approval of the voters.

This proposed issue is the 20 million dollars authorized by the general assembly last February for the relief of unemployment throughout the state but particularly in Cook county. The equivalent of the proceeds already has been spent. That expenditure must be covered in one of two ways. The first is through the proposed bonds. The alternative is an unavoidable tax increase that approximately will double the state rate of 39 cents a $100.

Uses Gas Tax Share.

If the bonds are issued there will be no increase in taxes necessary to retire them and pay the interest on them. That money will be taken from the 3 cent gasoline tax now being collected regularly. The state will withhold annually from each county that benefited from the relief funds enough of that county's share of the gas tax to pay off the bonds in 20 years.

This novel situation—this "freak" bond issue—is one of the results of the abnormal conditions that have befallen American governmental units during the depression. Last winter Cook county found itself unable to sell its own bonds because of the tangled tax situation. In effect, it went to Springfield and persuaded the legislature to loan the credit of the state, whose bonds still were marketable.

A Difficult Problem.

The process of using the state's credit for the benefit of Cook county and other counties which also needed aid offered a problem of some difficulty; but after many conferences it was worked out into what was tantamount to three steps. The difficulty arose largely because money was needed at once—it was impossible to wait until a referendum on a bond issue could be held. That could not be had until Nov. 8 without a special state election.

The first two steps were necessary to provide immediate cash. The legislature first voted a tax levy of 25 million dollars as a part of the 1932 levy to be collected in 1933. That big additional levy has been voted. It will be spread and collected unless the bond issue is approved by the voters.

Tax Anticipation Notes.

The levy was the first step. The second was the voting of authority for the issuance of tax anticipation notes—corresponding to the warrants employed in Cook county—up to 75 per cent of the levy. This permitted the sale of notes to the amount of $18,750,000. They were sold and the proceeds were disbursed by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, a statutory body appointed by Gov. Emmerson.

The third step now impends—the bond issue proposition. If the voters approve, the bonds will be issued and the proceeds from them will be devoted to taking up the $18,750,000 in tax notes and paying the interest on them.

Then will come the process of paying off the bonds during a period of twenty years. The counties receive 1 cent from the 3 cent state gas tax, each county's share being in proportion to the number of automobile licenses issued to its residents. If the bonds are issued each county that benefited from the proceeds of the tax notes will pay toward the retirement of the bonds in exactly the same proportion as its share of the relief money bears to the total of $18,750,000.

Pay One-twentieth a Year.

By this method the debtor county will pay annually one-twentieth of its debt. One-twentieth of the total bonded debt would be $1,000,000, to be prorated among the debtor counties, along with the interest on the entire issue, which would be approximately $800,000 the first year, making a total of $1,800,000 to be withheld next year by the state from the debtor counties' share of the gas tax.

All told, forty counties of the state shared in the distribution of the $18,750,000; but Cook county received more than the lion's share—approximately 91 per cent of the total. Therefore, if the bonds are approved, the state next year would withhold about $1,600,000 of Cook county's $4,000,000 and more of gas tax money.

In proposing this program of relief at Springfield Mayor Cermak and spokesmen for the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, headed by Edward L. Ryerson Jr., agreed to do everything in their power to effect approval of the bonds by the voters on Nov. 8. And it is argued that a failure on the part of Cook county to cast a full majority for them would constitute a breach of faith which downstate never would forget. An active campaign has been conducted in the county in favor of the proposition.

Distribution of Tax.

In connection with the diversion of part of the county's 1 cent share of the 3 cent gas tax there has been considerable discussion of a further inequitable distribution of gas tax roads between the metropolis and downstate. Engineers estimate that in 1931 there was 47.68 per cent of the gas tax collections from Cook county that went into downstate roads not used by Cook county motorists.

And it is calculated that if Cook county's share of the fuel tax money is partly diverted to pay for the bonds 58.84 per cent of its payments will go into roads outside the county used little by the motorists of Chicago and its immediate suburbs.

All of the numerous organizations campaigning for the approval of the bond proposition vigorously emphasize the fact that a failure to vote on this question is the same as voting against the bonds. For approval a majority of all the voters who go to the polls must vote "Yes" on the proposition. It will appear on a small ballot separate from the candidates' ballot.

Lawmakers Listen to Pleas of Unemployed for Aid

Scene in city hall council chamber yesterday as leaders of unemployed presented their demands for aid to officials of governing bodies of state. On the platform, in addition to Mayor Cermak and others, are Ald. William Rowan, Senator Richard Barr, Representative A. D. Salvin, Emmett Whealan, county board chairman; State Treasurer Barrett and Ald. James B. Bowler. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

November to Exhaust Relief Funds, Mayor Tells Jobless

Mayor Cermak told 300 representatives of the unemployed at a meeting of the city council committee on unemployment yesterday afternoon that after November there would be no more funds with which to feed them unless some definite program of fund raising is worked out before that time. The meeting was attended by members of the legislature, members of the relief administration, and city and county officials.

"Parading will not raise more money for relief," Mayor Cermak told the unemployed, who propose to parade through the loop on Monday morning. "There is no money in sight with which to provide relief when funds on hand are exhausted at the end of November. Everybody must cooperate to raise more money. Parading will do absolutely no good."

Jobless to Parade, They Say.

Leaders of the unemployed group, which received a permit for the parade from Commissioner Allman on Thursday on the understanding that it was to be peaceful, declared that the parade would not be called off. The column is to gather in three sections at Randolph and Franklin streets at 11 a. m. and proceed through the loop to Grant park, the leaders said.

"The money obtained by subscription and from the government thus far is only a drop in the bucket," Mayor Cermak continued. "Some people suggest a sales tax, but that won't bring immediate relief. It will be attacked in the courts, causing a long delay.

Funds to Be Delayed.

The $2,000,000 to which we are entitled from the gas tax will not be available until February. We might sell bonds, but who will buy them?

"I am more worried about the unemployed than I am about the election. There are more unemployed in Chicago than in New York, which has twice the population. The federal government is the only agency that can help us. The legislature should pass a law allowing municipalities to issue bonds to be deposited with the Reconstruction Finance corporation for loans. If the R. F. C. act is not broad enough to permit this, it should be amended at the next session of congress."

Rations to Be Increased.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, who returned from Washington yesterday after obtaining a loan from the R. F. C. to carry on unemployment relief in Illinois during November, appeared at the meeting. He said the loan will allow full food rations, which have been cut in half in Cook county this month, to be resumed next Tuesday.

"I was told in Washington that Illinois must do something for itself," Mr. Ryerson said. "Of the $52,000,000 allocated so far by the R. F. C. to the states, Illinois has received 23 per cent. I believe the legislature will take action toward providing additional state funds when it reconvenes on Nov. 15. But above all the voters must pass the $20,000,000 relief bond issue at the coming election."

Aid to 62 Counties.

The relief commission yesterday allotted funds to 62 counties, including Cook, for relief work during the period Nov. 1 to 15, it was announced by Mr. Ryerson. Six counties which had not received such help previously were included.

"The commission will require counties requesting funds for the period after Nov. 15 to satisfy it that motor fuel tax and other local funds are inadequate for the existing relief loads," Mr. Ryerson said.

State Senator James J. Barbour said he believed the easiest way to raise additional relief funds would be a state-wide sales tax, as such a tax could be upheld more effectively than the income tax bill, which was declared unconstitutional by the State Supreme court.

Speak for Unemployed.

The unemployed, representing three organizations, the united front committee, workers' committee on unemployment, and Workers' league, were given one hour in which to present their arguments. Warren Lamson of the United Front, Karl Borders, University of Chicago lecturer, and the Rev. Raymond Sanford were among the speakers.

The speakers objected to a state-wide sales tax and demanded that the police force be reduced by cutting the annual appropriation from $17,000,000 to $5,000,000 and using the difference to feed the jobless. They protested against the reduced food rations.

The meeting was adjourned to next Thursday afternoon at 2 p. m., at which time Mayor Cermak said, he hoped a definite program could be presented.

RAISE $1,202,064 IN ADVANCE GIFTS IN RELIEF DRIVE

At a meeting of the preliminary drive committee of the Emergency Welfare Fund of Cook County, held in the Chicago club yesterday, Robert A. Gardner, chairman of the campaign committee, announced that a total of $1,202,064 had been received in advance contributions toward the $7,500,000 quota for this relief fund. Since Wednesday contributions totaling $143,425 had been received, he said. The fund is to be spent for relief work other than unemployment relief.

The largest gifts and their donors were as follows: Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company, $20,000; U. S. Gypsum company, $15,000; Harris Trust and Savings bank, $13,500; Pure Oil company, $12,500, and the Chicago Bridge and Iron Works, $10,000. The leading teams among 21 seeking subscriptions were those of John Stuart, president of the Quaker Oats company, $178,485; James R. Leavell, president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, $135,025, and George A. Ranney, vice president of the International Harvester company, $132,500.

PINCHOT CALLS ON R. F. C. FOR 6 MILLION RELIEF

Points to Illinois Loan as Basis for Plea.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania today paid a personal visit to the Reconstruction Finance corporation to file an application for a new $6,000,000 relief loan and to demand that his state be accorded "equality of treatment" in the matter of relief advances.

GIFFORD PINCHOT.

Pointing specifically to Illinois and the 20 millions advanced to that state for relief, Gov. Pinchot suggested that the corporation directors make relief loans on a "common sense basis." He wanted the corporation, he said, to inform him in advance as to how much Pennsylvania might obtain for relief purposes so that he could plan the state's relief program intelligently."

"Compared with some other states," the governor said, "Pennsylvania has received very little from the corporation. A total of $5,800,000 has been made available for relief of distress in the state, while Illinois has received over 20 millions. What we ask is equality of treatment in proportion to population with any other state, and ask that the Reconstruction Finance corporation will do what Pennsylvania has done, that is, to decide for the next few months how much can be spent month by month."

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—To counteract the radio stations of Warsaw, Moscow, and Czechoslovakia which have been drowning out stations in eastern Germany, the city of Leipzig has erected the most powerful radio station in the republic. It operates on 150,000 watts and its wave length is 390 meters.

RITCHIE GIVES DEMOCRATIC VIEW TO INDIANAPOLIS

Calls Republican Talk of "Peril" Nonsense.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Indiana Democrats staged a state-wide rally here tonight in honor of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, who delivered one of his major addresses in behalf of the Democratic ticket.

Downtown streets were filled early in the evening to witness the red fire torch parade, which passed the reviewing stand on the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument circle. Loud speakers carried the address of the governor to crowds unable to make their way into Cadle tabernacle.

Gov. Ritchie told his audience that Democratic success would save the country.

"The Republican administration has had its opportunity," he asserted. "Its policies are in great measure to blame for the unhappy conditions which exist in this land of plenty. Now its spokesmen profess to fear that Democratic success would imperil the country. I say this is brazen nonsense.

Change of Leaders Best.

"Since when, may I ask, has it been dangerous to change a national administration which has shown itself incapable? The danger lies in continuing such an administration, not in changing it. Since when has it been dangerous to change public officials who do not fulfill their promises and who evade and avoid and then fail when new problems arise? Again the danger lies in continuing such public officials, not in changing them.

"The crash came in October, 1929. That was an unmistakable signal. Almost any one could foresee then that decreased revenues and falling values which were causing deficits in business would soon cause deficits in government, too.

"Did the President of the United States, who is so concerned now for the safety of the country if his administration does not continue, or did anybody in that administration, show any signs of realizing the danger and guarding against it? They did not. What Hoover did in December, 1930, two months after the crash, was give the rapidly falling federal revenues a further push downward. At one stroke he diminished the government's income $130,000,000 by reducing the income tax rates 1 per cent. Then, with less money, he proceeded to increase appropriations.

"By December, 1930, when the next budget was submitted, it was unmistakable that the country was in the red. President Hoover himself saw it. He predicted that at the end of the then fiscal year, June 30, 1931, there would be a deficit of 180 million dollars, but that at the end of the succeeding fiscal year, June 30, 1932, ther would be a surplus of 50 million dollars. But actually this 180 million dollar deficit became a 903 million dollar deficit and the 30 million dollar surplus became a 2 billion 585 million dollar deficit.

In the Red Again.

"Then congress passed the revenue bill for the current fiscal year, which began July 1, 1932. Congress accepted the President's estimate of the amount needed to balance the budget and provided the money. Thereupon the administration informed the country that the budget was balanced. But now after not quite four months of this fiscal year the government is in the red again to the extent of nearly 500 million dollars, with a prospective deficit at the end of this fiscal year of one billion dollars at least.

"There you have the record of mismanagement and failure so far as the fiscal affairs of the federal government are concerned. In three years the United States treasury in the red an aggregate of almost five billion dollars! Nothing can be done about that except tax an already overtaxed people still more to make it up. But must we risk the same experience again? Will the American people face disaster, as Mr. Hoover warns us, unless they have four more years of the same administration which is responsible for these things? What I am afraid of is that the American people will face disaster if they do have four more such years."

ROOSEVELT, CURLEY SUED FOR RENTAL OF LOS ANGELES AUTOS

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 28.—(AP)—A $694 suit naming Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, Mayor James M. Curley of Boston and the Young Democratic clubs of California as defendants was filed today by a motor livery company which asserted it had not received payment for automobiles furnished during visits of Roosevelt and Curley here last month.

The action, brought by the Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd., was followed by a writ of attachment directing the sheriff to seize money and effects of the Young Democratic clubs of California in the banking and escrow departments of a bank here.

The motor livery company's attorney, D. R. Faries, said efforts had been made to collect the money from Democratic officials in Los Angeles and New York, but that all requests had been refused.

He said the money was due for cars rented during the visit of Mayor Curley, who spoke in behalf of Roosevelt Sept. 15, and during the visit of Roosevelt from Sept. 20 to 24.

Reports Corn Yield of 106 Bushels to Acre

Kewanee, Ill., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Forrest Oakes of Laura today reported a 15 acre plot of corn which yielded 106 bushels to the acre. It is the second crop on the field.

WOMAN TO CAST 1ST VOTE AT 73; IT'S FOR HOOVER

Mrs. Annie Godwin, 2401 Pioneer road, Evanston, has not had the opportunity to vote until this year, although she is 73 years old. She formerly lived in the District of Columbia, but is now living with her son, Earl, and expects to cast her first vote for President Hoover. Mrs. Godwin has known all the Presidents since Garfield and has taken part in the official life in Washington.

"I am voting for Hoover because I believe in his sincerity and his Americanism," Mrs. Godwin said. "I think the Hoover ideals are what America needs at this time. If the voters would give thought to fact instead of propaganda they would realize that President Hoover has done a job comparable to that of Abraham Lincoln."

NIXON QUITS TAX HEARING IN HUFF AFTER A QUARREL

Tells Brummel to "Finish the Work Alone."

George F. Nixon, member of the board of tax appeals, stalked from the board's hearing room yesterday after a difference with his colleague, Fred W. Brummel, over objections to two 1931 personal property assessments. As he left the hearing room to go to his own office Mr. Nixon called back to Brummel, "If this is the way we're going to do business go ahead and finish this alone."

Several employes of the appeal board hurried into Nixon's office, where they conferred for half an hour. At the end of that time Nixon emerged and returned to his seat at the table, remarking to Brummel, who had continued to hear protests, "I'll just sit back and listen, you do the work."

Examine Glencoe Protests.

The difference occurred while the board was examining the protests of Charles Sincere, 196 Beach road, Glencoe, head of Charles Sincere & Co., and Mrs. Jessie K. Byerly, 994 Bluff road, Glencoe. Neither taxpayer was present. They were represented by Attorney Abbey Blattberg.

The lawyer, who is said to be a personal friend of Nixon, handed him the papers containing Sincere's objection to a valuation of $5,550 set by the assessor on his property after the schedule Sincere filed had been lost. The lawyer, who had sworn to a knowledge of Sincere's property, said that his client should not be assessed more than $310. Nixon agreed to this after a few questions and handed the papers to Brummel.

"Have you any knowledge of the value of Mr. Sincere's home?" Brummel asked Attorney Blattberg. "Do you know whether he has his furniture insured? Do you know what kind of an automobile he drives, whether his wife has any jewelry, or whether he has any stocks or bonds?"

"Why, no," was the reply, "I'm not sure that I could tell you any of these things."

"Well, I think that your valuation is too low," Brummel told him.

Nixon Interrupts.

"Say, look here now," Nixon interrupted, "this lawyer is a fine chap and a friend of mine. I'm willing to agree to this reduction. This is a case of your taking my word as I'd take yours."

Brummel then asked that the matter be continued until Monday so that the assessor could obtain more information on Sincere's property.

Attorney Blattberg then presented Mrs. Byerly's protest to the assessor's valuation of her property at $1,702. In this case also Attorney Blattberg had sworn to the objection and asked for a $500 assessment. Questioned by Brummel he was unable to describe Mrs. Byerly's property.

"I think we ought to have more information on these assessments before we make a cut," Brummel said. "What's the matter with having both Mr. Blattberg's clients in here Monday morning?"

"He's a Busy Man."

"Now, now," replied Nixon, "this lawyer is a busy man. There's no reason why we shouldn't settle this now. No reason for wasting his time by bringing him back."

Brummel insisted that the hearings be continued. Nixon's face grew red. He scattered the papers on the table and leaped to his feet while a hundred startled taxpayers who had listened to the debate watched. He kicked his chair to one side and ran to the door of his office.

"This is no way to do business. Just a waste of good time," Nixon shouted as he left the room. "We'll have another of those worthless appraisals the assessor makes. Well, if this is the way it's going to be I'm through. You can go ahead and finish alone."

Thirty minutes later he returned, still red of face. With a mumbled, "I'm just a listener here. You go ahead with the work" to Brummel he took a seat. The work of the board continued.

Pawnbrokers See Jacobs.

During the day a dozen pawnbrokers and their attorney, David Froehlich, conferred with Assessor J. L. Jacobs. Admittedly seeking special treatment in their personal property assessments, Attorney Froehlich refused to allow reporters to attend.

During the hearing the attorney demanded that his clients be given the benefit of depreciation of their goods since April 1, 1931, the day as of which the assessment must be made. The assessor replied that he had received only one schedule from the 44 pawnbrokers in Chicago, whose property amounts to more than $8,000,000. All of them must file, he said, and expect the same treatment accorded other taxpayers.

Last evening representatives of 4,500 gasoline filling station owners appeared before Assessor Jacobs and the appeals board members to protest their personalty assessments. No decision was reached and the hearing was continued until Nov. 2.

BEAUTY PARLOR BANDIT CAUGHT ON NORTH SIDE

Morris Silver, 42 years old, 3906 Ainslie street, arrested yesterday in the attempted robbery of a beauty parlor at 4811 North Ashland avenue, was identified later as a bandit by nine other women operators of beauty shops. Several of the women charged that Silver had attacked them.

A police squad, attracted by the screams of Mrs. Jean Chivalisz, seized Silver yesterday afternoon as he fled from the Ashland avenue shop. Silver attempted to tie her to a chair, Mrs. Chivalisz told the policemen, Daniel Mangan and Edward Carey of the accident prevention squad. When she screamed, Silver, who weighs 220 pounds, fled into the arms of the police.

Silver watched for advertisements of women who offered to sell north side beauty parlors, police said, and used the advertisements as leads for his robberies.

ROOSEVELT AND SMITH VISIT AS PALS AT ALBANY

A question was put as to whether they would sit on the platform together, and Al broke in.

"We'll be there together all evening. Don't you know that meeting is the big piece de resistance [how he rolled that out] of the campaign, put on in the biggest population county in the whole Empire state?"

Thinks New York Won.

Mr. Smith was asked what he thought about the New York state situation.

"There's no question about it," he said. "I don't see where any arises. In Greater New York I look for at least a 600,000 majority; a clean sweep along the Mohawk valley and in all the big cities, which will add to the majority in New York City, or at least stand off any losses in the country."

"Frank," he said, "you'd better go to bed and get yourself some sleep."

Reports on New England.

Former Governor Smith had come to Albany tonight from Boston, where in a speech last night he had pleaded with the Bay state voters, whom he asked to "forget me" and to support the Roosevelt-Garner ticket.

Mr. Smith stopped overnight in Albany for the purpose of visiting with his daughter, Mrs. Emily Warner, who was at the station with her two children to greet him. He went directly to the home of Mrs. Warner and he wasn't there ten minutes before Gov. Roosevelt was calling him.

"That was a great speech you made last night," Roosevelt said. "I listened to every word of it."

Then, inviting Smith to come to the mansion, the governor was asked by Smith:

"How late do you stay up?"

"O, midnight or any time," Roosevelt replied, and Smith said he would be along before 11. He was there by 9:30, accompanied by his son-in-law, Maj. John A. Warner and by Charles Hand, a press representative of the national Democratic committee. Warner and Hand withdrew after a few words of greeting to Roosevelt, and Swager Shirley, former Kentucky congressman, who was with Roosevelt at the time, also left the study, and the two men, Frank and Al, were alone for their hatchet burial.

Starts Tour Monday.

Leaving here at noon tomorrow, the governor will proceed to the Massachusetts state line, where he will be joined by Gov. Joseph Ely and an escort of state leaders. From that point a regular schedule has been drawn, and the governor will make brief stops at Williamstown, North Adams, Greenfield, Orange, Athol, Gardner, Fitchburg, Ayre, and Groton.

Spending all of Sunday at Groton, where his son John is in school, in meeting leaders in conference there, the governor now plans to go to Portland, Me., Monday morning. His speech at Boston is planned to be delivered at 10:30 o'clock Monday night.

POLITICAL CASH SCARCE, REPORTS OF PARTIES SHOW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The dearth of political cash during the 1932 elections was reflected today in the October reports of the Republican and Democratic senatorial campaign committees. Reporting to the clerk of the house today, the two committees stated their aggregate expenditures were $69,026.27 for the period from Sept. 26 to Oct. 26. This figure represented less than half the normal expenditures.

The Republican committee receipts were $37,518.89 and its expenditures $36,801.02. The receipts collected by the Democratic senatorial committee amounted to $33,442.11. Of this amount $32,225.25 was expended. William Nelson Cromwell of New York, I. E. Wright of Hot Springs, Va., and Charles Hayden of New York were the largest Republican contributors, each giving $5,000. Barney Baruch, prominent New York Democrat, contributed $15,000 to the Democratic committee.

$5,000 to Aid Watson.

Four Republican veterans now engaged in stiff fights for reelection received $5,000 each from the Republican senatorial committee. This group included Senators James E. Watson [Ind.], majority leader of the senate; George H. Moses [N. H.], Reed Smoot [Utah], chairman of the senate finance committee, and Wesley L. Jones [Wash.], chairman of the senate appropriations committee. John B. Chapple of Wisconsin, the man who overturned Senator John J. Blaine [Rep.], also received $5,000 for use in furthering his election.

The Democratic senatorial committee distributed from $1,000 to $3,000 to senatorial candidates in 21 states.

Chief G. O. P. Contributors.

The chief contributors to the Republican senatorial campaign fund were William Nelson Cromwell, New York, $5,000; Joseph M. Wills and other associates in the potter industry, $1,500; I. E. Wright, Hot Springs, Va., $5,000; Max C. Fleischman, New York, $1,000; Charles Hayden, New York, $5,000; E. T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia, $2,500; H. G. Lloyd, Philadelphia, $1,250, and Jasper E. Crane, Wilmington, Del., $1,000.

The chief contributors to the Democratic senatorial fund were B. M. Baruch, New York, $15,000; M. L. Schwartz, New York, $10,000; Democratic national committee, $7,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 28.—A ministerial council was held here today regarding the formal status of Princess Helen, divorced wife of King Carol. Premier Juliu Maniu and Foreign Minister Nicholas Titulescu visited Carol at Sinaia palace this morning and then returned to Bucharest.

Parliament circles are demanding that Princess Helen receive all the rights awarded her when the divorce was granted. They are stressing that the education of Crown Prince Michael be placed in his mother's hands.

CERMAK ASSAILS HIS PREDECESSOR IN MAYOR'S CHAIR

Recalls His "Vile Attacks" on City.

Speaking over the radio in support of Judge Henry Horner, Democratic nominee for governor, Mayor Cermak last night assailed Len Small and his associate, Mayor Cermak's predecessor in office. Mayor Cermak described Small as the most discredited public official who ever served the state. He called his own predecessor in the mayor's office a man devoid of any sense of public responsibility.

Most of Mayor Cermak's denunciation was against the former mayor. He declared that the people of Chicago had honored the ex-mayor by electing him thrice to the chief magistracy of the city, and that he then exhibited his sense of gratitude by spreading a campaign of vilification against the city.

No Sense of Responsibility.

"My predecessor is now showing his true colors," said Mayor Cermak. "He is not only devoid of any sense of public responsibility, common decency, and sportsmanship, but does not possess even the virtue of the meanest politician—the quality of gratitude."

No greater honor could be bestowed on a man than electing him three times to the mayoralty, continued Mayor Cermak, yet when his predecessor was finally defeated he did not take his defeat in the manner of a sportsman, but revealed himself as "a sore loser who turned all of his venom and all his poison against the city to which he is so much indebted."

"This ex-mayor," said Mayor Cermak, "is trying to get back to the public trough, to lay his hands upon the public treasury, and he is trying to accomplish that by sneaking into the governor's chair under the shadow of the most discredited public official who ever served the state, Len Small.

"Two of a Kind."

"I have no objection to an alliance between them. They are two of a kind. They belong together. My predecessor, of course, could not say Small was honest, because he could not erase the record of the Supreme court by which Small was convicted of defrauding the state of more than $1,000,000."

"But with all the poison that he is capable of spreading he could not find a blemish upon the character of Judge Horner. So, being able to successfully laud his candidate or to attack his opponent, this ex-mayor conceived the idea of attacking the good name and reputation of the city in which Judge Horner lives.

"I became the special target of his poisonous tongue. And among the vile attacks upon Chicago he charged that the city is bankrupt, and he has the gall to attempt to put the responsibility for it upon me.

"Instead of being insolvent the county has $300,000,000 taxes owed it from 1928, 1929, and 1930 levies. With the breaking of the tax strike most of this will be collected, and with that the teachers, policemen, firemen, and other unpaid employes will get their back salaries.

"Our only trouble is due to the fact that he has so injured the credit of the city and of the board of education that we cannot borrow enough to carry us through until we can collect the money due us," the mayor explained.

"And when Appellate Court Judge Otto Kerner is elected attorney general he will compel Small to pay the $650,000 he still owes the state," Mayor Cermak concluded.

MAYOR RELATES PLANS FOR A PAY DAY FOR SCHOOLS

City Workers Are Given a Half Month's Salary.

As distribution of half a month's pay to city employes was begun yesterday, Mayor Cermak announced that he had conferred with bankers and had hopes of selling enough tax warrants to give all school employes a pay day, perhaps by Monday.

The city pay day was accomplished without help from the bankers, part of the funds being obtained from tax warrant sales Thursday to the Chicago Surface lines. Employes working in the city hall got their checks yesterday. Police and firemen will be paid today.

Discuss Warrant Plan.

The committee of school board executives appointed to consider Trustee Orville J. Taylor's plan for placing school tax warrants in a trusteeship for the purpose of seeking loans from banks with the warrants as collateral held its first meeting yesterday. President Lewis E. Myers of the school board was deputized by the committee to seek the reaction of banks to the proposal. If the banks approve the plan, the school trustees hope to pay off nearly $20,000,000 in back salaries and to obtain from 50 to 60 per cent of this sum through loans on the warrant trust.

Mayor Cermak made no further appointments yesterday to the Chicago emergency commission, which will seek to force large tax strikers to pay their back taxes by turning off the water from their properties and revoking city permits granted them.

Tax Cases Delayed.

County Judge Jarecki was still confined to his home yesterday with an attack of influenza, delaying the hearing of the first tax cases in which Hayden N. Bell, county tax attorney, is seeking judgment against properties whose owners objected to tax payments on the grounds invalidated by high courts in the Bistor and Cisar cases. Mr. Bell had a number of other cases, involving unpaid taxes totaling $1,270,991, set for hearing upon Judge Jarecki's return, however.

The largest of the new cases is that of the Beach Hotel company, owners of the Chicago Beach Hotel, for which B. F. Lindheimer, one of Mayor Cermak's appointees as president of the board of local improvements, is receiver. Objections were filed for 1928 taxes on the property, but no objections were filed and no payments made for 1929 and 1930. The tax bill against the hotel is $618,803.

Sues Hotel Corporation.

Suit for $90,321 was started against the corporation owning the Seneca hotel, 200 East Chestnut street Ulysses S. Schwartz, attorney for the bondholders' committee which now controls the hotel, said that the committee is not in favor of the tax strike, and has made a partial payment on the 1930 taxes, but that the hotel is operating at a loss of $9,000 a month. The 1928 and 1929 taxes were not paid.

Suit for $367,194 was filed against the building at 6 North Michigan avenue, on which partial tax payments were made for 1928 and 1930, but none for 1929. Attorney John H. Cummings, representing the Ridgecroft Real Estate company, said that his clients recovered title to the property recently after a long term lease had been forfeited by the Michigan-Madison Building corporation, which was bound to pay the taxes. The partial payment on 1930 taxes was made after title was recovered.

Other suits were started against the Shoreland Hotel building, 5454 South Shore drive, on which partial tax payments were made for 1928, 1929 and 1930, to set aside the objections to payment of the remainder of those tax bills, totaling $161,587, and against the Majestic building, 22 West Monroe street, of which Anna L. Sears is listed as owner. An objection protects the 1928 tax payment on this building, but no objections were filed and no payments made for 1929 or 1930. The unpaid taxes total $164,917.

BANK MESSENGER ROBBED OF $1,000, $7,000 IN CHECKS

Two armed men yesterday afternoon halted Thomas McGrath, 2436 Rosemont avenue, at Ashland avenue and Harrison street and compelled him to surrender $1,000 and checks for $7,000.

McGrath is a messenger for the Madison-Kedzie State bank and had collected the money and checks from the Milk Wagon Drivers union at 220 South Ashland avenue. He was taking the funds to the bank.

He had held up as he approached the headquarters of the Laundry Wagon Drivers union at 629 South Ashland avenue, where he was to get more deposits. The bandits forced him into their car and after taking the money beat him with pistol butts. He was released at Madison and Leavitt streets.

HIGH PRESSURE METHODS BARED IN STONE TRIAL

Woman Finds It Pays to "Make Trouble."

High pressure methods used in the sale of the stock of H. O. Stone & Co., defunct real estate investment concern, were described yesterday by government witnesses in the court of Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. Mrs. Ida B. Vogelei, 2454 Smalley court, was called by Prosecutor Thomas Dodd Healy to testify against Henry F. Norcott, president of the Stone company, and eight associates on trial on charges of using the mails to defraud.

She told of buying 700 shares of Brooks Building corporation stock for $50,000 in 1928, and said the purchase was made through H. O. Stone & Co. In August, 1929, the witness said, she went to the Stone office to sell the stock and 100 shares of Stone common stock that she owned.

Goes to Sell, but Buys.

A conversation with David A. Coleman, a defendant and president of the Stone Finance company, a subsidiary, caused her to change her mind, Mrs. Vogelei said. As a result she not only gave up the thought of selling the stock, the witness said, but purchased an additional 200 shares of the Stone common stock, giving her note for $20,000. The note was secured with 300 shares of the Brooks stock.

Prosecutor Healy managed to introduce into evidence over defense objections a letter concerning the transaction. The letter was written by Coleman to Henry Nussle, a Stone employé, and suggested that "the best policy would be to return the note to Mrs. Vogelei and cancel the stock, as she was making trouble."

Coleman explained that he had "stalled off" Mrs. Vogelei because he did not want to tell her that the Brooks stock was of "little value." He did not want her to sell the Stone stock, the letter said, because it was to be listed on the market. For that reason, Coleman said in the letter, "I induced her to buy 200 shares of common stock." The deal was ended, testimony showed, when Mrs. Vogelei was given her Brooks stock, her note, and the company canceled the Stone stock.

Salesmen Stay Till 1 A. M.

William Beyer, keeper of a rooming house at 6627 Kenwood avenue, was called by the government and told of accepting two shares of H. O. Stone & Co. preferred stock as rent.

"I went to the Stone company and tried to sell the stock, but they wouldn't take it," Beyer said. "Then two of the Stone salesmen came to my home."

"How long did they stay?" Prosecutor Healy asked.

"We couldn't get them out," the witness replied. "We wanted to go to bed, but they stayed till 1 o'clock in the morning. They told me that there were only 235 shares of common stock left. It was selling for 33 and they offered to let me in for 27. So I took the whole lot, gave my note, and put up as security 20 shares of Commonwealth Edison, then worth $9,900. Then they bothered me until I was forced to borrow money and pay off the note."

A lien of $110,878 for income tax in 1928 was filed yesterday in the District court against Mrs. Lulu G. Norcott, wife of the Stone company president. Norcott transfered the income on which the tax is claimed to his wife, the government charged. The tax, according to usual computation, would be levied on an income of nearly $1,000,000 for the year. The lien automatically ties up all of Mrs. Norcott's property until the tax is paid.

DEPOSITIONS IN INSULL FAILURE ARE COMPLETED

Taking of depositions necessary for extradition of Samuel Insull from Greece and his brother, Martin, from Canada, on charges of larceny and embezzlement, was completed yesterday before Chief Justice John Prystalski in Criminal court.

State's Attorney Swanson's deposition, certifying him as the prosecuting officer of Cook county, was signed by Judge Prystalski. Other depositions were those of Oliver E. McCormick, treasurer of the Middle West Utilities company; Washington Flexner, president of the Lincoln Printing company; Frank Webb, former chairman of the board of the Terminal National bank, and minor officials of two brokerage houses.

Assistant State's Attorneys John O'Hora and Voyle Johnson planned to be in Springfield today to obtain Gov. Emmerson's signature to a requisition asking President Hoover to seek extradition of the Insulls. The requisitions then will be forwarded to Washington, where Assistant State's Attorneys John Vlachos and Charles A. Bellows are awaiting issuance of a presidential warrant before starting for Greece.

An extradition hearing on Martin Insull, arrested on a provisional warrant at Orillia, Ont., and released on $50,000 bail, is scheduled for a hearing Nov. 4 at Barrie, Ont.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Oct. 28.—Samuel Insull, who is a fugitive here from trial in Chicago on charges of larceny and embezzlement in connection with the bankruptcy of his utilities interests today heard words of praise for the "great American family of Insull."

The occasion was a picnic in his honor given by members of the Greek-American league. The outing was held at Cape Sunion, 30 miles south of Athens. Nineteen Greeks accompanied Insull in five automobiles. A police bodyguard also accompanied the party at the request of Insull.

"All Greece with Insull."

The remarks about Insull's greatness were made by M. C. Veremis, a Greek engineer who formerly worked for Insull in Chicago. The former Chicagoan also was pictured as "an unfortunate man who ought to be befriended" in an announcement by the Greek-American league. Veremis in his address praised Insull for the way in which he was "always looking out for the welfare of his employés."

"Despite his genius," Veremis continued, "he could not ward off from America the universal crisis. Nevertheless, the storm will pass and Mr. Insull will work again for the good of the American people. I salute a member of the great American family of Insull. All the Greek people are with him."

Son Reaches Paris.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Samuel Insull Jr. reached Paris tonight. He said he and his mother will change hotels tomorrow, giving up residence at the Hotel Lincoln for transient quarters elsewhere. It is possible that Mrs. Insull Sr. may leave if the weather in Paris gets worse and seek the sun either in Italy or southern France. Friends said they thought it improbable that the setting would be Greece.

BULGARIAN REDS HECKLE KING IN DIET; TOSSED OUT

When King Boris began reading the declaration of the crown 31 communist deputies interrupted him by shouting, "Down with the Fascist régime." Other members, totaling 242, threw out the communists bodily while the king stood, pale and nervous, on the speaker's stand.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The trial of Torsten Kreuger, brother of the late Ivar Kreuger, on a charge of fraud in connection with the affairs of the Hogbrofors Wood Pulp company, started today. Three auditors of the Kreuger & Toll company, the parent company of the Kreuger interests, received sentences today of three months' imprisonment each. They were found guilty of neglect.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Col. John Thomas Taylor, vice chairman of the legislative committee of the American Legion, also its Washington representative, charged today that the veterans' administration and the National Economy league had given out statements containing "half truths and misinformation" on money going to world war veterans.

Col. Taylor spoke at the 14th annual convention of the Capital District Kiwanis International. He referred to recent statements by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, veteran administrator. He also took up the National Economy league statement that it would be possible to lop $450,000,000 off the annual veterans' bill. Col. Taylor asserted National Economy league "leaders receive government pensions."

Col. Taylor told his audience that Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, head of the league, receives $4,500 retirement pay; that Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord gets $6,000 retirement pay; that Admiral William T. Sims draws $6,000; that Gen. John J. Pershing receives $21,000 annually in retirement pay and that Alfred E. Smith is paid $6,100 a year by the state of New York.

Col. Taylor said the costs for veterans' relief in the coming year were figured by Gen. Hines at one billion dollars, while only 356 million dollars of that goes to world war veterans.

ORDER INQUEST IN THE DEATH OF EGBERT SPENCER

Egbert Hughes Spencer, a member of the firm of Small, Spencer & Levings, newspaper representatives, died yesterday in the Evanston hospital. He was 42 years old and lived in Barrington.

An inquest to determine the cause of his death will be held at the hospital at 1 p. m. today. It is believed that death resulted from injuries which he suffered recently in a fall from his horse. Mr. Spencer, it was said, had not told his family of the injury because he wished to spare them worry.

Mr. Spencer was a graduate of Yale university and a world war veteran. He served as a captain of infantry. Surviving him are his widow, Frances; two daughters, Susan and Sally; his mother, two sisters, and two brothers. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Monday in the Trinity Episcopal church of Highland Park, with burial following at North Shore cemetery.

Gives Excellent Picture of Stirring Days.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

THERE is always one perfect time and one perfect place and one perfect mood in which to read a book. They almost never coincide. When they do an experience stamps itself upon memory and remains forever as alive as though it were lived yesterday. "Peter Ashley" will always be alive for me in that fashion for the reading of it was blessed triply by fate.

DU BOSE HEYWARD.

I read it during superb, languorous days visiting Julia Peterkin where life still retains the grace and luxury and ease of the days of the great plantations like the Wakefields in the book, during days of holiday unmarred by waiting eager presses, and I took it still glowing in unforgotten lines to Charleston which is the actual scene of the book, a Charleston still richly alive with everything inherent in the book, a strangely lovely and fragrant reality which time and modernity have in no essential sense changed from the reality of the stirring days which Mr. Heyward records in the book.

Those days on the plantation had served to give me the south as no sudden plunging into Charleston could have done, for the culture of the old south was not built on the foundations of cities, but on the foundations of just such baronial life in the wilderness plantations as is still lived at Lang Syne, the Peterkin acres.

When I reached Charleston in a very real way I somehow understood the south, and the whole spirit of "Peter Ashley" seemed as real as if Peter and his charming uncle and Damaris had been as actual as the James Petigru whose epitaph one reads in the graveyard of St. Michael's and the other historical personages who appear in its pages.

Mr. Heyward has in a very vivid sense succeeded in recreating a period physically by minute accuracy in all of the details of material things and spiritually by a deep understanding of the glamorous charm of the most gracious civilization of its period, and of the strength of purpose under that lilting charm.

"Peter Ashley" is the story of a young man born on a vast plantation near Charleston, adopted by a charming and ultra-intelligent uncle who found in Peter a sentient and lovable being, sent in the aristocratic custom to England for the finishing touches to his education and returning to Charleston just as the last glorious burst of elegant assurance in its power bore the south into secession. There is a paragraph in the book which states the essence of that moment. Mr. Heyward says: "A thousand petty but insoluble Gordian knots in as many homes are instantly severed by the bright blade of war . . . It is at this moment that the civilization which has grown slowly through centuries of patient cultivation pours its life into a last incomparable flowering. For those who have tended it, and watched it spread and bud, it is all too often the moment of delirium that precedes the oblivion of death."

In that paragraph is inherent the whole saga of "Peter Ashley." In his pages Mr. Heyward has caught that moment of delirium, he has caught the incomparable flowering that preceded—and made possible—the delirium; he has captured the tensity of a people and the tragedy of an individual unable to share that delirium. For Peter Ashley is through most of the book a Unionist—like the famous James Petigru—although his yound blood cries in agony to be able to believe in secession, to be one with his fellow men until love and the popular delirium conquer his convictions.

Despite Peter's struggle with his conscience, however, "Peter Ashley" is rather a brilliant and exciting historical romance than the study of deep inner urgencies. It is a costume drama in the most spectacular and finest sense of the word, for not only has the author pictured life in its minutest physical details but he has brought back to life the intangible essence, the fragrance, and the tang of the period.

"Peter Ashley" is utterly unlike "Porgy." There is nothing about Negroes in it except incidentally, save for a slave sale which is gorgeous in its delineation and tenderly memorable in the implications of the feeling of the great southern gentry toward their slaves. "Peter Ashley" is as vivid a pageant of the white Charleston of 1861 as "Porgy" was of the black Charleston of the nineteen hundreds.

I, old Dr. Butcher, prescribe as a sure cure for these drizzly day blues, a trip to Charleston with its hot sunshine, fragrant with blooming roses and opopanax, and "Peter Ashley" to be read on a shaded piazza. Or if that's not possible, then "Peter Ashley" alone as a palliative.

Form League to Select Poet Laureate of U. S.

The Poet Laureate League of America has recently been organized for the purpose of crowning a national poet laureate and bestowing recognition upon those poets in America who are significant, promising or already distinguished. Some of the requirements necessary to the national poet laureateship are that the poem must be set in the United States, and that it must be written in English [not a translation]. It can be either published or unpublished. The award to be given and the duration of the laureateship have not as yet been determined. The judges will be chosen from well known literary critics and non-competing poets. All those who are interested in the activities of the league, including poets who are eager to submit their work, may address the Poet Laureate League of America, Southern building, Washington, D. C.

What Women Think of Men Told in One Book

A sweet young thing went into a book store the other day and asked for "The More I See of Men," edited by Mabel Ulrich [Harpers]. After she received that she asked to see the companion piece, which, she insisted, was "Women Live Too Long," by Vina Delmar. "The More I See of Men" is a series of sarcastic, penetrating and debunking portraits of the male sex written by G. B. Stern, Mary Borden, Rebecca West, E. M. Delafield, Storm Jameson, Susan Ertz, Isabel Paterson, Margaret Culkin Banning, and Sylvia Townsend Warner. Women who have something against men or want to know what other women have against them as well as men who care to know what talented and brilliant women think of them certainly ought to look between these covers.

English Trade Editor Offers 2 New Works

Swinnerton Describes Enigma of London Letters

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Holbrook Jackson is one of the enigmas of London literary life. He began as one of a group of young men whose passion was the improvement of the world by politics. He was a Shavian and a rebel. Then he assisted in editing a popular literary weekly, started by the late T. P. O'Connor, called T. P.'s Weekly. When this paper suffered its first death, he continued to edit a small literary monthly. He is now editor of one of the great trade periodicals in this country, the Drapers' Record, and attends trade conventions and criticizes fashions as if those were the only things in life he cared about. But they are far from being the only things.

LION FEUCHTWANGER.

Mr. Jackson has remained throughout a lover of books. And a scholar in the matter of books, their editions, and their contents. His latest work is a sumptuous study entitled "The Anatomy of Bibliomania," and this work has been widely praised by those who are capable of appreciating its solid qualities of research and understanding.

Nor is this all, for Mr. Jackson has lately achieved an ambition which he must long have cherished. He has prepared for inclusion in Everyman's Library a new and much needed edition of Burton's "Anatomy of Melancholy." In this edition various textual corruptions have been corrected, a new translation has been made of all the innumerable Latin quotations, and many new notes have been added to Burton's own. For a man to be so versatile is rare; for him to be so useful is even rarer. Mr. Jackson deserves our wondering thanks.

Lion Feuchtwanger's new novel, "Josephus,"* is to be published here in November. In this book the author has gone back to ancient times for his rich theme and the Josephus of the title is the Jewish historian of the first century of the Christian era. Again Herr Feuchtwanger has taken an enormous canvas and as far as one can judge from early news of his book it may be a sort of modern "Ben Hur." Certainly, owing to the fact that the scenes range from Rome and Alexandria to Jerusalem, there will be no lack of picturesque detail, and we are promised rich and glorious contrasts between the luxury of courts and the simple lives of the poor, the gladiatorial combats of the Roman arena and the dreams of the Jewish prophets. Those who relished "Jew Suss" should relish equally a similar panoramic novel about the ancient world, and, although the book comes late in the season, it will probably be one of the outstanding romantic novels of the year.

Miss Margery Sharp, who was one of the English university girls to tour the United States three years ago for the purpose of debating with students at American colleges and who published subsequently a very cheery, lively novel called "Rhododendron Pie," has made a hit here with another novel, the first production of a new publisher, Arthur Barker, called "Fanfare for Tin Trumpets." This is a satirical picture of young literary lions and has caused a little annoyance to the persons ridiculed but much innocent pleasure to those who are glad of a little laughter in hard times.

*Published in the United States Oct. 7.—Ed.

RECORDS SHOW FIRST NOVELS RARELY GAIN GREAT POPULARITY

Most of the best seller novels come to the publisher after the author has written several other, and usually unsuccessful, books. "Main Street," by Sinclair Lewis, was his sixth novel and was an experiment. "If Winter Comes," by A. S. M. Hutchinson, was the author's fourth book. Pearl Buck had brought out a book that had achieved little popularity before she wrote "The Good Earth." Vicki Baum had written and published several books in Germany before the successful "Grand Hotel."

"All Quiet on the Western Front," by Erich Maria Remarque, had rough sledding in Germany and was rejected by several American publishers before it was finally recognized and heralded. Both J. B. Priestley and Charles Morgan had several books to their credit before they won success respectively with "The Good Companions" and "The Fountain." One notable exception to the rule was A. J. Cronin's "Hatter's Castle," which was accepted and published by the first English publisher to whom it was submitted.

Young German Makes Jungles of Africa Real

"The Journey Inward," by Kurt Heuser. [Viking Press.]

KURT HEUSER, author of "The Journey Inward" is 27 years old. After the conventional German education in a gymnasium Heuser left suddenly for Portugese East Africa. During the inflation in his native country he had experienced the deepest depression and perplexity. He wanted to start over again as far away from friends and customary ways of life as he could.

In East Africa he found solitude, a jungle almost completely uninhabited by Europeans and the close and intimate contact with nature that inspired him to write "The Journey Inward." This book is based to some extent on his own experience in a distant and fearful African jungle.

"The Journey Inward" is taken by Jeronimo, a young surveyor, who is trying to bury his past and begin a new future in the jungles of East Africa. He becomes embroiled in the many and vicious intrigues that are legion in the European management of the colony. He is the victim of many of the schemes of the warring factions. The character of Scorpion, the corrupt governor of the colony, and his aid, Torpido, long since deprived of any sense of morality; the beautiful blonde woman named Virginia who searches with relentless and pitiless will the secret of her parentage, and the young daughter of a drunken planter who has in early adolescence come to a strange and precocious bloom—all these characters enter the weird story.

The best part of the book concerns the native Africans. The author almost uncannily translates their psychology to the reader. They cross and recross the pages with a strange vivid reality. And back of them always, like the chorus in a Greek play, is the black swaying phantom of the jungle. If the reader finds himself thinking more and more often as the story progresses how obscurely and clumsily the author reveals the destiny and the soul struggles of the hero, how absurdly and melodramatically Jeronimo grapples with his problems, he cannot forget the beauty and the horror of the atmosphere. AWARD PRIZES AT SOUTH SIDE COOKING SCHOOL

5,600 Women Attend the Final Session of Week.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Yesterday was "commencement day" for the south side sessions of THE TRIBUNE'S cooking schol. But most of the graduates are eager to enroll again right away.

All who were lucky enough to be among the 5,600 who managed to squeeze into the Trianon ballrom for the festivities know why. It was the last day, but far from the least of the four day sessions conducted by Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, in collaboration with Mary Meade, TRIBUNE cooking editor. And it was rare fun from any angle.

Mr. Meek Shells Peas.

Laughter prevailed from the moment Donald Meek, comedian of the current "Of Thee I Sing" company, impersonated Vice President Alexander Throttlebottom. With a white cooking apron tied about him, he made a tremendous fuss about shelling peas, popping the pellets with deadly aim out into the "class," while keeping up a running fire of wisecracks.

Before that Noble Cain, choral conductor, had introduced a novelty in getting his audience to sing "rounds" of a song, pitting one part of the ballroom against another. Philip Warner was at the piano.

Early in the program came Mark Fisher, soloist and director of the Edgewater Beach hotel orchestra. He was recalled again and again, finally pleading a rehearsal to make his exit permanent.

His co-artist, Olive O'Neil, thrilled the thousands anew as she sang "Two Hearts in Three-Fourths Time." Her soprano voice, well known in Chicago and elsewhere, earned her an ovation to which she responded with an encore.

Another soprano applauded to the echo was Agatha Lewis. Brief "turns" at the microphones also were provided by Gaile Darling, one of the prettiest girls in the cast of "Of Thee I Sing," and John Cherry of the same production.

Young Dancers Popular.

For a full measure of amusement there were the flashing colors and tapping toes of a brigade of youngsters from the Cecil Barnett dancers of the Chicago Musical college. All were dexterous and nimble. One family group, comprising Marguerite, Elaine, and Edward Singer of 10017 South Peoria street, however, earned a special round of applause.

Helen Bartlett, TRIBUNE etiquette editor, informed the throng her mail hadn't been so heavy with queries about what to do and how to do it since Mrs. Chitwood's school set up competition for their attention.

"Happy Hank" Harrington read some of the poems he has been giving each morning over station W-G-N.

Pie Crust Brings Gasps.

Probably nothing but Mrs. Chitwood's choice of French pie crust for demonstration could have concentrated the attention of her "sophomores and freshmen" after such a program.

Mrs. Chitwood's advice was never to puncture an upper pie crust, as the escaping steam carries with a goodly share of the flavor of the filling. If the materials are good the pie will be excellent without "windows" in the upper crust, she explained.

Week's Prizes Awarded.

Grand prizes for the week, which will be repeated in the west and in the north side sessions, were awarded at the close of the afternoon in a drawing from the stage of all coupons turned in during the four days.

M. Kriz, of 2410 Scoville avenue, Berwyn, was the winner of the choicest trophy, a $188 electric refrigerator. The second best, an $84.50 electric washing machine, was captured by Mrs. Hannah Nelson of 3217 Osgood street.

Mrs. Kriz was not present. Mrs. Nelson was all but overcome by the surprise.

The third trophy on the list, a $39.50 vacuum cleaner, was won by Mrs. A. Augustin of 659 North May. The fourth, an $8.95 electric percolator, went to L. Brotchner, 2109 Scoville avenue, Berwyn. Emeline Gilbert of 210 E. 50th street captured the $7.75 electric iron, and the last, a $3.95 electric toaster, was drawn by Mrs. H. P. Stout, 6754 Normal avenue.

FORMER OWNER OF GOLD MINE SHOOTS HIMSELF

Fred Avery Cox, 72 years old, once the owner of a gold mine near Denver, fired a bullet into his head yesterday as he stood in shrubbery near the Buckingham fountain in Grant park. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital, where he recovered consciousness after an emergency operation.

"I'm sorry my aim was bad," Cox told Leo Angel, with whom he lived at 823 Lafayette parkway, when Angel called at the hospital. Cox had written a note announcing his intention of ending his life "in a downtown park" and left it in their room, Angel told police.

In Cox's pocket was found a photograph of a gravestone bearing his name, with the date of death still blank. Friends in Denver said the stone stands over the grave of his parents at Crown Hill, Colo., which he visited in September.

Angel told police Cox was employed until a few months ago by the Chicago Title and Trust company. He lost the last of his savings recently in trying to promote a patent lock.

Thieves Cart Away Entire Freight Carload of Coal

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Petty thefts of coal along the Alton railroad grew to grand larceny proportions today when a report reached the offices here that an entire carload on the siding at Auburn was unloaded and carted away last night. Theft of coal has increased greatly on many railroads the last few weeks, but this is the first time a carload has disappeared. Daylight raids on coal trains have been made in the vicinity of Centralia.

TELLS HOW SHE TRACED BOGAN NOTES TO WOMAN

Expert Gives Story of Threat Probe.

Mrs. Katherine A. Keeler, handwriting expert of the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory, yesterday explained how she had identified Mrs. Gussie Kallis, vice chairman of the board of directors of the Associated Retailers of Chicago, as the person who had written the threatening letters to Supt. of Schools William J. Bogan and to two high school principals.

MRS. KATHERINE KEELER.

Formal conspiracy charges were filed yesterday against Mrs. Kallis and her husband, Herman E. Kallis, in connection with the bombing of Supt. Bogan's home at 741 Gordon terrace a week ago today. He had previously received a note warning him against operation of lunchrooms in the schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Kallis were released on bail of $5,000 each late yesterday after the bonds had been approved by Municipal Judge James F. Fardy. Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne said he would go before the grand jury on Monday to seek indictments in the case.

Notes Dictated to Woman.

In telling of the tests which led to the arrest of Mrs. Kallis, Mrs. Keeler said that paper similar to that on which the notes were written was placed before the woman in the detective bureau. Police then dictated to her the exact words used in the letters received by Supt. Bogan, Roland O. Witcraft, principal of Parker Junior High school, and John Gaffney, principal of Roosevelt Senior High school.

No suggestions were made as to the arrangement or the punctuation of the message. In the case of each note the dictation was repeated several times, and the specimens were sent with the originals to the laboratory, where Mrs. Keeler was assigned to compare them. Handwriting samples of several other suspects also were taken.

Writing Specimens Tally.

"From the very beginning of the examination it was quite obvious that Mrs. Kallis' writing was the same as that of the original notes," Mrs. Keeler said yesterday. "In one of the originals and in two of the specimens she made an effort to disguise her hand.

"We could have gone on indefinitely investigating one minute detail after another and finding that her writing was identical with that on the letters. The way she dotted her "i's," crossed her "t's," spaced her letters, and ended her words gave her away completely. Occasionally she disguised the more prominent characteristics of her writing, but she always slipped on the details."

Viewed by Another Expert.

Mrs. Keeler said that she showed the letters to Herbert J. Walter, another member of the laboratory staff, who had testified in the Al Capone income tax case, and that Walter had concurred in her opinion.

"A handwriting expert must know the characteristics of the many different systems of writing which are taught in the schools of the United States and Europe," Mrs. Keeler explained. "The writing of a man educated in Germany, for instance, might seem very distinctive to a Chicagoan. When shown another specimen of German writing one might conclude that both were penned by the same person unless one were well acquainted with characteristic German writing. Several of the suspects in the Bogan case were ruled out of consideration because obviously their writing was of an entirely different system from that upon the notes."

Mr. and Mrs. Kallis were released on bonds of $5,000 each late yesterday. The bond for Kallis was posted by Benjamin and Mrs. Esther Marks, 2159 Addison street, and the bond for Mrs. Kallis was scheduled by Anna Levin, 6140 South Sacramento avenue. The bail was approved by Municipal Judge James F. Fardy.

BURNED BY BURSTING PIPE.

Walter Smith, 30 years old, engineer and janitor for the Progress Family laundry, 4677 Elston avenue, was seriously burned yesterday when a furnace pipe burst.

DUCE DEDICATES AVENUE THROUGH ANCIENT ROME

ROME, Oct. 28.—The tenth anniversary of the march on Rome was celebrated today with the inauguration, performed personally by Premier Mussolini, of a great new street linking the Piazza Venezia and the Colosseum. The street will be known as "Avenue of the Empire."

The avenue starts at the Piazzi Venezia, between the monument to Victor Emmanuel and the Trojan forum, and runs through the zone of the imperial forums. On one side the left flank of Capitol hill, which was hidden for centuries, is again exposed to view and on the other the Forum Augustus, the Forum Norva, the Forum Cesar, and the Basilica Massentius are made visible.

A New Beauty Spot.

The impressive bulk of the Colosseum may now be seen from the Piazza Venezia, in the heart of the city, for the first time. The new street is lavishly lighted and decorated with fountains and certainly has added another notable beauty spot to the many already existing in Rome.

Premier Mussolini went to the inauguration on horseback. He wore the uniform of a corporal of honor in the Fascist militia and was surrounded by his staff, also uniformed and on horseback. After cutting a tri-color ribbon, thus officially inaugurating the new street, he rode its whole length to the Colosseum, pausing to let the citizens admire the beauty of the panorama disclosed.

Marches Past Vets.

Then he assisted in a march past 15,000 war mutilated Fascists. The scene was impressive as the black shirted columns marched past behind hundreds of gayly colored flags and banners.

Mussolini finally spoke a few words, inciting his followers to even greater efforts. He said even more splendid work will be done in the next decade of the Fascist government than in the first.

The tenth anniversary of the march on Rome was celebrated throughout Italy. The inauguration of public works everywhere formed the principal part of the festivities. In all Fascist sections a message penned by Premier Mussolini was read out to the assembled Fascists. In it Il Duce urged them to continue the forward march in the next decade for the greatness and glory of Italy.

Pana Woman Celebrates Her 100th Birthday

EVENING POST REPORTED SOLD TO DAILY NEWS

Expect Today's Issue to Be Last.

Purchase of the Chicago Evening Post by the Chicago Daily News was reported last night. Knowlton L. Ames, publisher of the Post for the last eighteen months, was reported out of town. Frank Knox, publisher of the News, sent word through his secretary that "if it's about the Post, there's nothing to say."

According to reports, however, formal announcement of the acquisition of the Post, now in its forty-third year in the evening field, will be made by the News today as the last issues of the Post are run off the presses. Today's editions, it is understood, will be the last published by the Post.

First Published in 1890.

The first issue of the Post was published on April 29, 1890. Its editor, the late James W. Scott, announced in his first editorial that the paper would be "not the weak sister but the big brother of its competitors in the morning field." Herman H. Kohlsaat later acquired the paper and was its publisher until 1901.

In that year he relinquished control to John C. Shaffer. Under Mr. Shaffer the Post in 1929 constructed a nineteen story building at 211 West Wacker drive and moved there from its old location at 16 South Market street.

In February, 1931, through a judgment obtained by the Arthur Dixon Transfer company, the Post was thrown into receivership. Mr. Shaffer had previously announced his retirement from the paper. Federal Judge Woodward named as receiver George Getz, coal operator, who acted as publisher for two weeks, then sold it at auction to Mr. Ames, then publisher of the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Paper Sold for $132,000.

The knockdown price was $132,000, Mr. Ames being the only bidder, excepting Hearst's American, which entered a lower bid in an effort to get the Post's Associated Press membership. Insull financed Mr. Ames' purchase, loaning him $500,000 through the Public Service Trust, a subsidiary of Insull Utility Investments, to buy it up and carry on. Mr. Ames later settled the debt with receivers at 12 cents on the dollar.

BEG YOUR PARDON

The estate of Levi Z. Leiter was named yesterday in a suit to collect back taxes as the owner of the Midland Club building, 172 West Adams street. The estate sold this property in 1925. The error arose from the fact that the change of ownership had not been recorded upon the tax books in the office of county clerk.

Swindler of Housewives Sentenced to One Year

Mrs. Ione Smith, 52 years old, 935 West Madison street, who swindled many housewives out of small sums by "borrowing" train fare to her home, was sentenced to serve a year in the House of Correction and fined $100 yesterday by Judge Joseph A. Graber in Women's court. She was found guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses. Sixty-two of her victims were in court.

Aviation Notes

A complete new line of radio telephone equipment for communication between planes and ground stations is being installed on all United Air Lines planes flying between New York, Chicago, and Pacific coast cities, it was announced yesterday by P. G. Johnson, president of United Air Lines.

The Sky Harbor Flying club is holding the last dance of its season tonight at the airport in Northbrook, Maj. R. W. Schroeder, president of the club, announced yesterday. The dance will be a Halloween masquerade affair.

Rubber de-icing boots are being placed on the leading edges of the wings of planes operated by Transcontinental and Western Air Lines for this winter, it was announced yesterday. By inflating and deflating under compressed air, the rubber boots prevent the formation of ice on the wings.

AL SMITH IN THE CAMPAIGN.

Mr. Smith, who was Al in 1928 and is now Alfred E., has many admirable qualities, of which candor is not the least. Many people like him because more than any other man in politics he is likely to say what he thinks in open meeting and take the consequences. He doesn't always, but he does more often than most public men who face audiences.

In this campaign the Democratic line of conduct has not required much deep thinking. The transparently good plan has been to retain the natural loyalties of party men and gain in every quarter in which discontent will urge people to make a change. It is simple, elementary politics to pound Mr. Hoover and his record, hold him responsible and the rank and file of his party blameless. Thus the Democrats hope to gain the Republican votes they need, because it is only by Republican votes that Gov. Roosevelt can be elected.

Mr. Smith, however, is in two campaigns at once. This one, in which Gov. Roosevelt's chances seem so bright, only recalls to Mr. Smith the campaign in which he came to the highest spot in his ambitions and failed. It recalls also that when the chances were better he was not given the nomination. The benefit of changed times went to another man and to a man in a sense his own political protégé.

It is probably a poor opinion of Mr. Smith which holds that he does not want Gov. Roosevelt elected President. There may be some new flaw in the personal relations of the two men, but the idea that Smith would deliberately hurt Roosevelt's chances is not sustained by the former governor's characteristics. It is true, however, that in the Newark speech which has caused a flurry Smith was not taking the consequences of his frankness. Gov. Roosevelt was. The brunt of his criticism fell on Democrats who deserted him, but there was enough scattered on Republicans to violate the rule of the Democratic campaign that the fundamental elements of the Republican rank and file shall not be alienated. They must be wooed.

Mr. Smith made his grievance an issue in the present campaign. Gov. Roosevelt's supporters want it understood that no grievances survive the 1928 election. All Democrats and all Republicans are welcome to the New Yorker's banner. Mr. Smith says that some of these Democrats and Republicans did not behave so well four years ago and that he as their victim remembers the occasion.

Mr. Smith's participation in the campaign was sought and awaited by the Democratic management. His Newark speech brought Mr. Borah out of retirement in Idaho, and Gov. Roosevelt's advisers hasten to restrict Mr. Smith before the west and the south go native again.

A SAVING REMNANT IN CALIFORNIA.

The active opposition of a number of influential taxpayers' associations in southern California to the 40 million dollar aqueduct loan is encouraging. The loan has been promised by the Reconstruction Finance corporation and is intended to finance the beginning of a 200 million dollar water line from the Boulder or Hoover dam to Los Angeles and its satellite towns.

The opposition of the taxpayers is taking the form of suits to prevent the government corporation from advancing the money. It is argued that the loan is clearly in violation of the terms of the reconstruction act, which required that such advances be made only for projects which were self-liquidating, without placing any added burden upon the taxpayers. Evidence is to be presented to the court showing that if the population of southern California increases in the next generation as it has in the last there will still be an ample water supply without tapping any additional watersheds. The cost of piping water for hundreds of miles over mountainous country from the dam to Los Angeles, it is pointed out, will, in any event, make the cost of the water prohibitively high. Under such circumstances, to expect the aqueduct to pay for itself out of the sale of water is to expect the impossible.

The taxpayers' suits are all that stand between the government of the United States and as ugly a politico-financial scandal as has ever disgraced this country. The scandal began with the congressional approval of the 165 million dollar dam to impound water for which there was no adequate market, to reclaim desert lands to the further injury of American agriculture, to render a river navigable upon which no ship will ever sail and to provide power where there is already an adequate supply of cheap power. The dam is being built for the greater glory of pork barrel politicians, desert speculators, and crack-brained boosters at the expense of taxpayers; and, not content with that achievement, the looters have now arranged for another raid of 40 million dollars. If the courts let them get away with it the scandal will be remembered long after the Credit Mobilier and Teapot Dome are forgotten.

The southern Californians who have resisted this enterprise deserve the gratitude of their fellow countrymen. It is to be hoped that men of equally rugged character will be found in northern California to resist the no less scandalous loan of 62 million dollars which the Reconstruction corporation has agreed to make for a bridge across San Francisco bay. It would be interesting to know upon what basis the Reconstruction corporation calculates that the loan can be repaid. How many automobiles will have to cross the bridge each day to earn only the operating expenses, not to mention the charges for interest and the sinking fund?

HORNER AS PUBLIC SERVANT.

The governorship of Illinois calls for experience and judgment in the handling of business affairs. Judge Horner has both. He has been judge of the Probate court of Cook county eighteen years. Each year of the court from forty to fifty thousand estates are in process of settlement in that court. Over 200 million dollars in money and other property passes through the court annually. The faithful and efficient guardianship of this huge volume of property interests, chiefly that of widows and orphans and invalided ex-service men, is a duty which only business and legal ability and a sympathetic and alert sense of human cares and needs, as well as understanding of business and economic problems, can successfully fulfill. Judge Horner has met these responsibilities so well that he has been repeatedly reelected by majorities steadily increasing, and this increase has shown more eloquently than words how confidence in him and appreciation of his service have grown among his fellow citizens.

One of the chief reasons for this approval is that Judge Horner has improved methods so that estates are more expeditiously and economically handled, so that expense and delay have been reduced. This is especially important in small estates. He is credited with a plan which has been called by his name and adopted in other parts of the country. It has to do with the estates of veterans, usually small estates, and it is estimated that over 17,000 such estates have been handled in this way, with a saving to the beneficiaries of approximately $1,200,000 through remission of fees ordinarily due the Probate court and the veterans' bureau, which has coöperated. With this coöperation Judge Horner has been able to accelerate payment of back pay, insurance, and other dues in veterans' cases, and this service, which has received the praise of the American Legion, is characteristic of Judge Horner's energy and initiative, as well as of his sympathy for human needs.

Efficiency and economy as well as regard for these needs have characterized Judge Horner's years of work in the Probate court, and we think they may be relied upon in his administration of the governorship. He has taken part in many civic activities in Chicago, besides carrying the burden of his office, and his conception of the responsibilities not only of public office but of private citizenship has been practical as well as altruistic.

CANDIDATES ON THE TICKET.

No worthy candidate on the Republican ticket should be blamed for the whole ticket or any one else on the ticket. Every place on the ticket was filled at a direct primary, by direct vote of Republican voters. While political organization had in most cases and as usual a dominating influence, it was not a single but a divided influence. Different forces within the party supported different candidates and it is impossible to make a fair inclusive judgment for or against all candidates. It would be unjust and unintelligent to vote against any candidate on the ticket merely because Small was nominated and has a place on the ticket. Each candidate has a right to be judged upon his own qualifications and record, if any. Affiliations within the party are not to be ignored in considering a candidate, but being nominated at a direct primary for places on the same ticket does not constitute affiliation in the circumstances of this election. Voting against a whole ticket is no more fulfilling a citizen's duty than voting for a whole ticket, where there is no common responsibility or common basis of judgment. Every candidate is entitled to judgment upon his own case.

CAMPHOR'S DECLINE.

[Washington, D. C., Post.]

In considering the danger of monopolies it is interesting to observe how frequently checks appear to stop excesses even in the most uncontested fields. The story of camphor is typical of many another monopoly which held exclusive sway in its line, but which was, nevertheless, subjected to severe trials. In 1860 Japan supplied the entire world demand for camphor by exporting a few dozen tons yearly, which was used for medical purposes. With the discovery of celluloid, however, the demand rose rapidly, until by 1924 the production had increased to 5,000,000 tons, of which 80 per cent was used in the manufacture of celluloid and photographic film.

Yet camphor's rôle had not been clear sailing even up to this date. Before the end of the last century synthetic camphor had been discovered and the factories of Germany and France were on the point of breaking the Japanese monopoly, due to the fact that the camphor tree of Formosa, where Japan raised her great camphor crops, has no great yield until it is about sixty years old. To save their industry the Japanese tried to buy the entire output of synthetic camphor. These negotiations failing, Japan then decided to fight the manufacturers. In 1907 camphor was selling for $2 a pound in Europe, while the artificial variety sold for 50 to 75 cents. By ruthlessly cutting down her trees in Formosa without making provision for a second growth Japan threw camphor on the market at 60 cents a pound.

Later skillful purchases of the synthetic product put Japan is a position to boost the price from $6 to $30 for fifty pounds. This again turned the chemists to research for a substitute, but before one was found the Japanese dropped the price to about 30 cents a pound. By 1912 the camphor trees of Formosa had been almost annihilated and artificial production had ceased, so at the outbreak of the war the small remaining stock of camphor, which was wanted for munitions, commanded a high price.

Today various plastic compounds have replaced celluloid and even films are manufactured without camphor. There is little demand either for the genuine or artificial product, with the result that camphor today has fallen again into its original category as a medicine.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

AFTER EARNESTLY and almost pathetically urging everybody else to stand firm for the G. O. P. ticket in the November election, it now appears that Henry Ford neglected to register, and, unless he takes an oath he was sick or out of town on registration day, they say they won't let him vote. Why, Henry, what are you doing over with that crowd? You should be with us Norman Thomas boomers, for we also are most vocal during the campaign, but we don't register, either.

THE BELLE OF MORA.

Sloe-eyed was she, the mountain girl,

And many the eye glowed warm and bright

'Twas like a fair when after mass
All the men and lads thronged about the lass.

Who to more than she had been a lover,

And she'd sit all day by the Cauldon Cliff
Where last and lone she had seen his skiff.

Were her young eyes wet from a raven's skull,
That she saw strange things when the moon was full—

The form and face and the glimpse of one
Who was drowned and gone till the Judgment dawn?

For one gray, sad eve when the wind moaned low

She breasted the sea 'neath the Cauldon steeps—

STARSHAFT.

STAND BACK from the ropes next week! Nervous old ladies must leave the hall! It's the wind-up of the campaign and the animals will be turned loose; the Man Eating Roorback, the Ferocious Lie Direct, the Blood Sweating Campaign Canard, and the Snorting, Roaring Distorted Fact will all be there. It will be a great show, but—Hi, there, lady! Don't let that child stand up there close to those candidates—they're liable to blow up any time and fly all over the place!

They're in the Bread Line.

Sir: By the green graves of our sires! Jaskwhich, Lukats, Brancheau, Melinkovich, Vegar, Koken, Banas, Sheeketski, Kosky. Football stars of American colleges.

Have the descendants of Washington, Hamilton, Jones, Brown, Smith, Robinson, Perry, Jenkins, and Hobbs lost their intestinal fortitude; or has our noble race run out? Out there on the gory field of football, where honor and fame await the heroes, why is not our noble race in line?

Q. E. D.

AND EVEN IF YOU DO convince that section of the public that holds stubbornly to the idea that Franklin is quite a different name from Theodore and that it is Franklin who is running on the Democratic ticket for the presidency, they will merely shrug their shoulders and say: "Well, anyhow, I guess Theodore's son will make as great a President as his daddy did, and I'm going to vote for him, I don't care what ticket he's running on." And when you try to explain Franklin is a second cousin and not the son—well, you'll discover that you're just talking to yourself.

Oh, Three or Four Demies.

Sir: The situation has now narrowed down to a question of "bigots and demagogues," or "spigots and demijohns." What's your order? And see what the boys in the back room will have.

C. F. D.

A MAN asks a divorce in Chicago because his wife read love stories and ate chocolates while he got the meals and scrubbed the kitchen floor. Yeah, but for how many generations has the woman got the meals and scrubbed the floors while the man smoked his pipe and read the sports page? Ah, yes, indeed, for as "round and round we run, ever the right comes uppermost and ever is justice done."

But Why Brag About It?

[From the Murphysboro, Ill., Independent.]

Chicago, Oct. 26.— . . . In the great political parade that followed the Republican candidates were escorted by burglars and girl pages in costume.

A WOMAN out in California boasts proudly that she still has in her possession the first biscuit she made thirty-seven years ago. We dislike very much questioning the veracity of a lady, but we are certain she is quite wrong. We are sure we ate that very biscuit last summer at an oil station restaurant in Ohio.

THE GIFT.

You asked for nothing, but I gave you all,
That instant as we stood beneath the pear;
You did not know that when I heard you call—
The tree dropped petals on your unbound hair.

My peace, like resting swans upon a stream—
Makes inventory of the things you bought;
Which are as nothing to the things I dream—
That born of stardust have but come to naught.

That which I gave, swift as the fakir's tree—
Sprung forth an instant but to disappear;
You did not guess that with us there were three—
The need, the spirit, and the timeless tear.

Now love drifts by with sunset colored leaf,

RACHEL MACK WILSON.

AND ALL THESE MOBS in London and the British said the dole would make everybody happy and keep things quiet. My word! What's the trouble with the blinkin' dole? There must be a 'ole in it. Wot! Wot!

TREATMENT FOR CONTROL OF MALARIA.

THE trend of opinion among medical men as to some points in malaria control through treatment seems to be about as follows:

It is well to begin treatment of every case of malaria by giving a purgative.

Within an hour or two after giving the purgative quinine should be begun.

There is no reason for withholding quinine until within twelve hours of the expected chill.

There is no advantage in giving quinine hypodermically. On the other hand, when given that way its action is slow and uncertain and abscesses may follow.

If quinine must be given by injection it should be injected into a vein, but the disadvantages of intravenous injection outweigh the advantages except in extreme cases.

In hematuria the use of quinine is apt to precipitate an attack of black water. It should be used with caution.

In giving quinine for malaria there is considerable chance that it will not be absorbed. To promote absorption it is advisable to give quinine in solutions—different kinds. Given in capsule, it is more liable to absorb than when given in pill form.

The daily dose given to break the chills should be thirty grains. This dosage should be continued for one week. Three days of quinine medication is not enough. It may break up the attack, but a relapse can be expected. The daily dose of quinine required to complete the cure is about ten grains. It is best given at bedtime.

Plasmochin is of service in the prevention of relapses and in making the malarial patient noninfective to mosquitoes. It is safe, provided it is given in small doses and for a very short time. It is not a substitute for quinine, since it has but little influence on the malarial parasite in the phases in which it causes chills and fever. It is powerful in its action on this parasite in but one of its stages.

Quinine as a substitute for plasmochin has a moderate value, but in this field it ranks distinctly below plasmochin.

The use of five grains of quinine daily as a preventive is still advocated by many, but most doctors are against this measure.

The Bass treatment of malaria, which consists of breaking the chills by giving thirty grains of quinine daily for several days and following it with ten grains daily for several weeks, but with no plasmochin, is highly regarded by experienced physicians.

MANY POSSIBLE CAUSES.

R. S. writes:

1. What significance has heartburn besides indicating that the foods which cause the condition should be avoided?
2. Does it necessarily mean that the heart is not strong?
3. Can you suggest some speedy relief for the condition other than the baking soda and water remedy which does not appear to be favorably thought of in some quarters?

REPLY:

1. It may be a symptom of ulcer of the stomach or duodenum, and possibly of cancer. Probably the most frequent cause is infected gall bladder or gallstones, although nervousness and constipation are right up in the same class. Drinking whisky, excessive smoking, eating highly seasoned foods and other dietary indiscretions are among the causes. Adhesions and chronic appendicitis are also among the causes.
2. The heart is another story. However, people with heart disease and broken compensation sometimes have heartburn.
3. A popular antacid is milk of magnesia. I am sure there are one hundred preparations for you to choose between.

IT IS DANGEROUS.

W. M. writes:

1. Is a lump in the breast dangerous? I had X-ray treatments for this, which the doctor told me was gland trouble. Now it has returned. Could it be cancerous?
2. Is it dangerous to take spirits of ammonia in water for nerves?

REPLY.

1. A lump in the breast that comes back after removal is more than likely to be cancerous. All genuine lumps in the breast are potentially dangerous.
2. No. However, its continued use for that purpose is not wise. A person who has "nerves" should never lean long on anything. Leaning makes nerves worse.

A FIRE HAZARD.

Chicago, Oct. 24. — [Friend of the People.] — I am writing to report a theater which crowds the people into the theater until they have to line them against the walls, and even then they are standing in the lobby. There is only one usher on the floor and the crowds along the aisles are so great that it takes fully fifteen minutes to get out. In the event of fire, nothing whatever could avert a panic. I hope something can be done to stop this. J. C.

Division Marshal Egan accompanied by Battalion Chief Enright inspected the theater in question, and upon finding several patrons standing in the aisles of this theater warned the manager that a recurrence of this violation of the Chicago code relative to the overcrowding would result in a recommendation that his license be revoked and premises closed. GEORGE E. GRAUS,
Division Marshal in Charge of Fire Prevention.

A CORRECTION.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Does the obligation rest on the grantor or the grantee to affix revenue stamps to a deed? G. W.

STOCKHOLDER'S LIABILITY.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is a stockholder liable in a national bank after the receiver liquidates the bank? 2. How long does it take to liquidate a national bank? 3. If a stockholder only pays half of the bank liability during the process of liquidation, and the bank is liquidated, how and who can collect the balance? F. S.

1. Under section 65 of title 12 of the U. S. code, the stockholder's liability may be enforced by "any creditor." Hence it is independent of the receivership.
2. Depends on complex facts.
3. See 1.

TWO WITNESSES REQUIRED.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Kindly inform me how many witnesses are required to be present to attest and subscribe to a will in the testator's presence in the state of Illinois. W. A. G.

The Illinois statute requires two witnesses. If you do not know more about the subject matter than is implied in your letter we strongly advise you against trying to economize in the drafting of so important a document. You should employ an attorney.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 29, 1916.

LONDON.—With the capture of Campulung, the northern key to Bucharest, capital of Rumania, the Teutons are continuing their drive southward, unofficial reports indicate. Berlin at this writing has not claimed the capture of Campulung, which is the terminus of one of the northern railroads running into Bucharest, but Petrograd early this morning admitted the loss of the city. At only one point in the northern front were the Rumanians victorious. According to Bucharest, Austro-German forces were whipped in the Tretus valley. Piscul has been recaptured, the official statement says, and the Teutonic troops are fleeing in disorder. Meanwhile Field Marshal von Mackensen is continuing his advance in Dobrudja. According to Berlin, the Russo-Rumanian forces, after retreating for six days, are showing signs of demoralization.

LONDON.—The sinking of five more steamships and one sailing vessel is announced by Lloyd's. Four of the vessels were Norwegian, one Swedish, and one British.

BERLIN.—A Russian destroyer and an armed Russian patrol boat, attacked by submarines off the Russian arctic town of Sipnavalok, were driven ashore, set on fire, and destroyed, according to reports reaching Christiania from the Vardoe, Norway, wireless station.

BERLIN.—Teutonic troops have won a victory in the Dorna Watra region, near the junction point of the frontiers of Bukowina, Transylvania, and Rumania, according to today's war office announcement. Austro-Hungarian forces captured several heights from the Russians at the point of the bayonet and took more than 500 prisoners.

LONDON.—The allies in France today reported two gains at widely separated points. Northeast of Les Boeufs, in the Somme region, the British captured several important trenches. French forces in the region of Verdun captured the quarry to the northeast of Fort Douaumont.

ROME.—South of the depression between Loppio and Mori, in the Cameras and Adige valleys, Italian infantry entered the village of Sano, drove out the enemy, and destroyed his defenses.

NEW YORK.—Contributions to the Republican campaign fund total $1,667,757 to date, it was announced at Republican national committee headquarters. A statement from the Democratic national committee announced contributions to the Democratic campaign of $1,006,283. The largest single contribution to the Republican fund was $30,000, given by Harry Payne Whitney.

CHICAGO.—John T. McCutcheon took his first lesson in piloting an army biplane yesterday when he ascended 1,500 feet with Victor Caristrom, aviator, at the new central district aviation station of the United States army at the flying field of the Illinois Aero club. Mr. McCutcheon was the first member of the army aero reserve corps to make a flight at the station. One of the most interested spectators at Mr. McCutcheon's flight was Miss Evelyn Shaw, his fiancée.

REPLYING TO SILAS STRAWN.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Abraham Lincoln in debate with Douglas used the dissenting opinion in the Dred Scott case to support his argument that there could be politics in the Supreme court of the United States.

Mr. Silas Strawn states in THE TRIBUNE of Oct. 27, 1932, that "all lawyers and every layman who has even a superficial knowledge of the facts knows that there never has been and never can be any politics in our Supreme court and that no political party could control the action of the court."

Justices of the Supreme court are human beings. They vote, pray, think, and dream like other men. They possibly have prejudices and passions. They would be the last to think of themselves as gods. Mr. Strawn knows that the word "control" has various meanings and shades of meaning. He would be first to admit that we are controlled by subconscious cerebration.

Possibly Mr. Roosevelt should not have said "complete" control. Perhaps he should have said "appointments" to the Supreme court. The justices of the Supreme court are often not unanimous in their judgments. In the war, hysteria, as shown by the dissenting opinions, was not in "complete" control of the Supreme court of the United States. No political party was in "complete" control in Scott vs. Sanford, but Mr. Strawn knows that a majority of the sitting justices have a Republican background.

The chief justice was not long since the candidate of the Republican party for President of the United States. We are all ordered, conditioned, controlled by inheritance, experience, even the kind of coffee we had for breakfast. Mr. Strawn knows well enough that no political party is ever likely to be in "complete control" of the Supreme court, but he knows that Chief Justice Marshall had a Federalist background, Chief Justice Taney a slavery background, and every other justice some kind of background which exerted some control.

Mr. Strawn, of course, has no question that Mr. Roosevelt's respect for the Supreme court is exactly like his own, that is, "complete." He knows well enough that the Supreme court is not the "foundation of the government." It is a "branch" like the executive or the congress. The Republican party was in control of all branches of the government March 4, 1929. Perhaps the control was not "complete." Control does not mean dominance. Mr. Roosevelt did not say that party leaders could have ordered a presidential pardon or a judicial murder. That would be "complete" control.

When the senate, sitting as a very high court, possibly "supremest," almost convicted President Johnson, impeached by the house of representatives, would any one have thought it extravagant to say the Republican party was in "complete control" of the senate as a court and the house as a prosecutor, and that if he cut out the word "complete" that he was exactly right?

MURRY NELSON.

GOV. SMITH AT NEWARK.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—No apology need be offered by any Democrat for the Newark speech made by Alfred E. Smith; and, needless to say, he is not apologizing for a single word. The bitter truth hurts, and he handed the world the truth in an unadulterated dose, which it should take as a blessing. Some ultra-tender souls do feel terribly aggrieved because he reviewed the past so searchingly and proved conclusively that cowardice is as much in evidence today as it was in 1928. Great casuists tell us that a general review of the conscience is well every so often so that a spiritual improvement may be shown. Fortunately, we have Mr. Smith to answer for the conscience-shy, and he performed the task well. More power to him! His talk at Newark was fearless, truthful, masterly, and would to heaven we had many others as candid. M. L. S.

ON THE SKIDS!

Chicago, Oct. 27. — Al Smith gave a typical example of Democratic logic in his speech the other night when he accused the Republican party of bigotry and hypocrisy. How does he explain his loss of the Democratic south, his gain of thousands of Catholic Republican votes and his election to the office of governor of New York state? Surely he cannot attribute any of these things to so-called Republican bigotry and hypocrisy.

Roosevelt has been on the toboggan for the last two weeks and Smith's speech greased the slide for him. With the aid of a few more speeches from the Smiths, La Follettes, Norrises, Longs, and Reeds, to say nothing of the empty speeches of Roosevelt himself, Mr. Hoover will breeze through to a well deserved victory.

NATE P. WHEELER.

BUT IS THERE NO MIDWAY POSITION?

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 27.—When a young man without experience or achievements is appointed to a high executive position it is natural for him to think that this is in recognition of outstanding intellectual qualities, whereas more likely than not it merely indicates poor judgment on the part of a board of trustees.

ANOTHER FORGOTTEN MAN.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

CHARGES FRANCE BLOCKS WAY OUT OF WORLD SLUMP

Curtius of Germany Raps Failure to Disarm.

The way out of the present economic depression through world disarmament is blocked by a group of nations led by France who refuse to restore to Germany her proper status of equality among all nations. Instead, they hold to a doctrine of security that is based on fear and continue to arm themselves. If the present disarmament conference ends in failure because of those two factors the way out of the depression will be definitely barred.

These views of world conditions were expressed yesterday by Dr. Julius Curtius, former foreign minister of Germany, at a luncheon of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations in the Palmer house. He emphasized that he was speaking unofficially, but said that as foreign minister he formulated the German attitude on disarmament and felt that his knowledge of the problem was authoritative.

Puts Blame on France.

Dr. Curtius placed the blame upon France and the nations that follow her lead in armament for the failure of world disarmament efforts. Their attitude, he said, is opposed to the "Anglo-Saxon principle" of safeguarding peace by disarmament.

Dr. Curtius pointed out that the one-sided disarmament imposed upon Germany in the treaty of Versailles was to be carried out "solely in order to render possible the initiation of a general limitation of the armament of all nations." This claim was renewed later on in the Locarno agreement in 1925, he said.

Germany fulfilled her disarmament in good faith, so that eight years after the war the military commissions of control were withdrawn, Dr. Curtius said.

"Although Germany," he said, "had thus in the shortest possible time fulfilled the preliminary conditions for general disarmament and although the victors had promised in the covering letter 'to begin disarmament negotiations immediately,' Germany has for thirteen years waited in vain for the fulfillment of the solemn promise of disarmament and is still waiting."

"Doctrine of Security."

The main cause of the delay, Dr. Curtius said, is the doctrine of security set up by France and other powers.

He declared that France has secured two other means of security, the tremendous fortification system along its eastern boundary and the two-fold guarantee given to France by the treaty of Locarno, which contained a renunciation of revenge by Germany and the guarantee of military aid by England, Italy and Belgium.

SPECIAL GRAND JURY HEARS OF GLASS SMASHING

The new special grand jury, known to officials as the "Democratic grand jury," heard evidence on window breaking yesterday and nothing at all on matters pertaining to the election. Next week it is scheduled to hear evidence regarding the tax strikes and the various associations formed to promote it.

Attorney Edmund D. Adcock, designated as special state's attorney by Judge Harry M. Fisher and continued in that capacity by Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court, and Assistant Attorney General George Lavin brought several witnesses before the jury yesterday. Damage amounting to $900,000 a year is caused by slingshot vandals who break large plate glass windows from speeding automobiles. The figure was given by Joseph Nielson of the Employers' association.

The epidemic of glass smashing has resulted in insurance companies announcing an increase in rates on glass insurance from 12½ to 37½ per cent, starting Dec. 1, the grand jurors were told. The circumstances of the arrest of two men caught in the act of window breaking and who were employés of a glass concern, were given the jury with the statement that the trial of these men has been continued until next month.

No indictments were voted yesterday, but Mr. Adcock said he expects indictments before the jury is dismissed on Nov. 4.

IDENTIFIES BODY OF ANOTHER AS THAT OF HIMSELF

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Jerome Baker, 40, is officially dead in Kern county—killed in the cloudburst which struck the Tehachapis recently—but nevertheless he was arraigned on a burglary charge here today and held for trial.

Baker explained to Justice Dean Sherry how he came to be "dead" in Kern county. He was in Los Angeles when the flood struck in the mountains and went out with a sheriff's party to hunt for bodies.

"I knew I was wanted for burglary in San Diego," he said. "I found the body of a man known to me only as 'Tydings' and identified it as my own. I thought I could bring to an end the search for me."

However, after Baker returned to Los Angeles he was recognized on a street and arrested for a burglary here Sept. 11.

WALTER BROWN QUITS CITY NEWS BUREAU POST

Walter B. Brown has resigned as general manager of the City News bureau of Chicago, with which he has been connected for more than thirty years. He was granted a pension and will reside in Santa Fé, N. M. On sick leave for the last year and a half, Mr. Brown has been living in the southwest. The directorate, composed of representatives of the Chicago newspapers served by the bureau, has appointed Isaac Gershman general manager to succeed him.

VON PAPEN OPENS NEW DRIVE TO CONTROL PRUSSIA

Will Offer Hindenburg His Scheme Today.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—President Paul von Hindenburg tomorrow will receive Chancellor Franz von Papen and the president's former friend and hunting comrade, Premier Otto Braun of Prussia, who was ousted from his post on July 20 by Von Papen when Von Hindenburg made him dictator of Prussia.

Premier Braun will ask the president to respect the German constitution and enforce the Supreme court's decision, which ruled that part of Von Hindenburg's decree removing the regular Prussian government was illegal. He will point out that the constitution provides that the president must enforce the Supreme court's rulings.

Von Papen's Scheme.

Von Papen will try to counteract Dr. Braun by proposing a scheme evolved by his cabinet today. The chancellor expects this plan will free him of the necessity of asking the president to cancel a section of the decree which the chancellor himself proposed.

The cabinet suggests that Von Hindenburg appoint by decree commissars for the administration of the Prussian ministries and absorbing them in the federal ministries. Similar proposals were made by Premier Braun himself several months ago when he attempted to work out reforms to restrict the dualism of Prussia and Germany. Von Papen hopes to induce Dr. Braun to swallow the scheme as a compromise.

Republicans throughout Germany as well as the Prussian junkers disapprove of the compromise as outlined today. The republicans brand it as a violation of the Supreme court's ruling and a violation of the constitution.

German states declare than Von Papen is breaking his pledge not to make changes in state laws without consulting them. The junkers denounce it as a sign of weakness and demand that the chancellor complete his coup de'etat in Prussia by ignoring the Prussian government, whose right to exist has been confirmed by the Supreme court.

Up to Voters.

The final decision will rest with Von Hindenburg. One week later it will be in the hands of German voters at the new reichstag election on Nov. 6.

Meanwhile, Minister of the Interior Baron Wilhelm von Gayl announced tonight that "the man or woman supporting a family, and soldiers who fought in the world war will be given additional voting privileges" in the new constitution being prepared by Von Papen's government. He said that the government also proposes to raise the voting age from 20 to 25 years.

CONVICTS HALT STRIKE; PROMISED SWEATBOX QUIZ

Indiantown, Fla., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Striking convicts at a road camp near here ended a 24 hour rebellion and went peaceably back to work today on the promise of a prison inspector that incarceration of four of their number in the camp sweatbox would be thoroughly investigated.

Some 30 or 40 of the convicts struck yesterday when Capt. C. Musgrove placed four of the men in the solitary confinement cells as a disciplinary measure. They had, he said, been ringleaders of a group who the night before badly beat the trusty cook at the camp.

The others immediately went on strike, refusing to return to the stockade and declining food.

Inspector Joseph Cates pleaded with the prisoners to go to work, but they would not even answer his queries until the four men in the box had been given food and water.

Then they demanded a new captain and yardman. Throughout the day and last night they milled about the stockade yard while heavily armed guards, trusties and sheriff's deputies patrolled the enclosure.

Early today the men acceded to Inspector Cates' entreaties, but not until Cates promised them a sweeping investigation with the declarntion that whoever was responsible, guards or convicts, would be punished when the cause of the trouble was ascertained.

CONTINUE FUND TO FEED PUPILS, NURSE PLEADS

Says Lunches Protect Health of Poor.

Miss Edna L. Foley, superintendent of the Visiting Nurses' association, urged the continuance of the Hungry School Children's fund yesterday, declaring that the lunches it provides aid in building up the resistance of children against disease and keep them in better condition for study.

"You can never fill up a normal child with food," Miss Foley said. "This year the children are abnormally hungry. Any good food they can get will help to build up their resistance so that they can throw off colds and other infections more easily.

Need Food for Health.

"Being strong physically is one of the important things of childhood. Children are exposed to disease so much more than we realize. By keeping them well fed we are contributing a great deal toward their general good health.

"I do believe the Hungry School Children's fund is reaching many children and that there is a great need for the fund."

The alumnæ club of the Chicago Free Kindergarten association and Kindergarten Collegiate institute sent the fund $50 from their Anna E. Bryan Memorial fund. In former years this was used to provide an annual lecture which because the annual reunion for the alumnæ.

"With the changing times we are much happier to help in this way and we hope we may be able to do this each year as long as the need continues."

"A Mother" Sends $20.

And from "a mother" came $20 which she wishes used to feed two small children. "I have often read of the good, unselfish work you have been doing for Chicago's most worthy cause—the Hungry School Children's fund," she wrote. "Having two small children of my own I realize how thankful I would be to you for help if circumstances were reversed."

U. S. CANCELS LOW BID CONTRACT; HAS PUZZLE LEFT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—(AP)—The contract awarded to the Supreme Construction company, New York, to build the new postoffice at Jackson, Miss., was canceled today by the treasury department because the contractor failed to file bond within the period allowed.

The contract was awarded on Oct. 13 on a bid of $522,969 on condition that the company post bond within ten days. The company wanted a twenty day extension.

The treasury is considering whether the contract will be awarded to the second low bidder or whether to call for new bids. The second low, $534,900, was entered by the Penker Construction company, Cincinnati.

SHOT TO DEATH BY WOMAN.

ELM TREE CHOPPED DOWN AND 2 CANNOT TELL JUDGE A LIE

Before Municipal Judge Jay A. Schiller appeared yesterday Stanley Gill and Stanley Abraham, who live at 13317 Avenue M, and Joseph Twarog, 12351 Commercial avenue. Gill and Abraham formerly lived with Twarog, who complained that the two Stanleys had chopped down an elm tree in his front yard, and further that they had chopped away part of his picket fence so that they could carry the elm tree away.

"I cannot tell a lie," said Abraham. "Gill did it. I tried to argue with him, but I couldn't argue very hard on account of the ax he was holding."

"I cannot tell a lie," parroted Gill. "I chopped down the elm tree, but I did it because Mrs. Twarog asked me to, so she could plant a cherry tree in its place."

"What do you mean, you cannot tell a lie?" said Twarog. "My wife never told you any such thing."

London Riot Leaders Get Stiff Sentences.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 28.—As a sequel to yesterday's clash between 20,000 unemployed "hunger marchers" and the police in Hyde park, 14 riot leaders appeared in the police courts today. Several appeared with their faces covered with bandages, mute evidence of the beating they had received from London's foot and mounted police.

Two men were sentenced to six months in prison at hard labor for assaulting police officers and other cases were adjourned. Sir John Gilmour, home secretary, informed the house of commons that the rioters had hurled iron bolts and other missiles at the police, 19 of whom were injured.

Find Nail Studded Clubs.

"I saw those clubs myself," he said, "and I ask you to believe that they were there by deliberate intent. In another truck police found more clubs of various kinds. I want to commend the police for their behavior and I wish to appeal to the general public to help in maintaining order."

Bad weather, more than anything else, kept the unemployed quiet today. For the seventh successive day, there was rain, fog and cold.

Guard Montagu Norman's Home.

A heavy police guard was drawn about the residence of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, last night following a mysterious telephone message that the unemployed intended raiding the house and wrecking it.

The "hunger army" spent last night at various points in the city. The largest body of 750 men, women and children was accommodated by the Public Assistance institute at Fulham.

This group formed a procession today under police escort and attempted to collect subscriptions to pay their train fare back home.

Police are preparing for possible trouble on Sunday, when the unemployed will hold a massmeeting in Trafalgar square.

Urges Fighting Corps.

Wal Hunnington, leader of the "hunger march," today called upon the unemployed to form a fighting corps. He said that still more jobless are moving toward London.

"The march will become so great that the unemployed will take power," he threatened.

Meanwhile the house of commons decided to cut short the debate on the Ottawa conference agreements in order to begin discussion of the unemployment relief problem next Friday. This is three days earlier than had been intended.

Ends Life After Shooting Detective Who Led Raid

After shooting and seriously wounding Detective Peter Sopsic of East Chicago as he lay asleep in his home yesterday, John Kuzerorin, 46 years old, owner of a soft drink place in Indiana Harbor, committed suicide. The shooting was said by police to be in revenge for Sopsic's raid on Kuzerorin's place and the latter's arrest on bootlegging charges. Physicians said the policeman would live.

ILLINOIS CO-ED KILLED IN AUTO ON WAY TO GAME

Driver Unable to Explain Why Car Upset.

Miss Jayne Rodenhouser, 21 years old, a first year student at the University of Illinois, was fatally injured last night when the automobile in which she was riding to Chicago with three fellow students was overturned in a ditch on Cicero avenue near Oak Forest. Miss Rodenhouser's home was in Peoria, where she was graduated from Bradley Tech last summer.

Driver Loses Control.

Vincent Del Beccaro, 19 years old, 218 South Seeley avenue, was the driver of the car. The other two passengers were Leonora Wetzle, 18 years old, 5448 North Artesian avenue, and Leo C. Mackelden, 20 years old, of Madison, Ill.

Del Baccaro was unable to explain the accident, except to say that he lost control of the car, a light roadster. Miss Rodenhouser was riding with Mackelden in the rumble seat, and was pinned beneath the car when it turned over.

County highway police rescued her from the wreckage and took her to St. James' hospital in Chicago Heights, but she died shortly after her arrival there. The other three students were treated at the hospital for bruises and cuts.

County Death Toll 932.

This death and three others yesterday increased the Cook county automobile toll for the year to 932. The other victims:

Mrs. Rebecca Steinberg, 73 years old, 3701 Polk street. Died at the Robert Burns hospital yesterday. She was injured Sunday evening at Independence boulevard and Polk street.

Chin Wing Hee, 41 years old, 575 South State street, a porter at 23 West Randolph street. Died at St. Luke's hospital a short time after being struck by an automobile at State and Randolph streets. A cousin identified the body.

DR. E. L. HARTIGAN, POLICE SURGEON 20 YEARS, DEAD

Dr. Eugene L. Hartigan, 43 years old, assistant police surgeon since 1912, died yesterday of pneumonia in the Mercy hospital. He complained of feeling ill Wednesday, but returned to his duties in the police building on Thursday. His condition became worse and Police Surgeon Elmer W. Mosley persuaded him to enter the hospital.

DR. HARTIGAN.

Dr. Hartigan was an attorney as well as a physician and had been admitted to practice in Illinois. He was graduated from the Northwestern university medical school and the De Paul university college of law. Dr. Hartigan, who lived at 7623 Champlain avenue, taught in the De Paul university law school until two years ago.

VICTIM CATCHES COWBOY BANDIT FROM WILD WEST

Into Chicago from the wild, open spaces of Montana came James Dale 18 years old, on Tuesday. He had been a cowboy who wore chaps and carried a pistol, and when a chance acquaintance told him yesterday that he would be a good stickup man the suggestion fell on fertile soil.

Last night the pair loaded their pistols with bullets and themselves with liquor and walked into a drug store at 559 East 71st street. They made Philip Blythe and William Schneider the owners, and two customers stand with upraised hands while the cash register and their pockets were looted of a total of $30.

Then Cowboy Dale ordered the victims into a rear room. The tactics were faulty, for Schneider seized a pistol there and fired at the westerner. The cowboy bandit's pistol was faulty also. When he tried to shoot Schneider it snapped harmlessly.

Encouraged, Schneider ran out and the desperado from the range ducked behind a counter to save his life. There he surrendered ingloriously and was turned over to the police after half the $30 had been taken from him. The other robber, who was unidentified, escaped with the rest of the loot.

MADRID PARLEY PULLS ONE FANG OF CENSORSHIP

MADRID, Oct. 28.—The efforts of United States delegates to the international communications congress to prevent stricter censorship regulations for private cable and wireless messages, as proposed by various nations, bore fruit today when the censorship committee approved by acclamation regulations submitted by the Americans.

The new regulations, while providing for the stopping of a message for the same reasons listed in the existing international rules, contain an additional clause making mandatory an immediate notification to the senders in case of censorship.

Judge Eugene O. Sykes, head of the United States delegation, in presenting the American compromise said the United States opposed every impediment to free communication, but if a stoppage clause must be included it should be "clear, plain and unequivocal." Great Britain, Canada and Russia supported him.

The new regulations would authorize, as does the existing St. Petersburg regulation, the stoppage by a government of messages deemed dangerous to the safety of the state or contrary to the laws of the country protecting order and decency, but provides that governments must immediately notify senders of the stoppage of a message or any part of it.

Rites in Evanston Today for Mrs. Mary C. Warner

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel at 1460 Sherman avenue, Evanston, for Mrs. Mary C. Warner, 58 years old, of 154 Church road, Winnetka, who died of heart disease Thursday night. Burial will be at Graceland. Mrs. Warner was the wife of Mason Warner, president of the advertising company at 360 North Michigan avenue bearing his name. Also surviving are five children, Mrs. Vivian Newitt and Dorothy, Donald, Mason Jr., and Lynn Warner.

RITES TODAY FOR MRS. KATHERINE M. CREMIN, 73

The funeral of Mrs. Katherine M. Cremin, 72 years old, will be held today from the home of her son, Joseph, 20 East Scott street, with burial in Calvary cemetery. Mass will be celebrated at St. Ita church. Mrs. Cremin died Thursday night at her home at 5527 Wayne avenue.

She was the widow of John F. Cremin, who established the Chicago real estate firm of Cremin & Brenan in 1886. Mrs. Cremin is survived by three sons and four daughters. They are Joseph W. and Thomas B. Cremin of Chicago and John F. Cremin of Birmingham, Ala., and Mrs. Harold G. Ward, Mrs. Barry Byrne, Mrs. Bernard J. Smith, and Mrs. Frank E. Smith.

Hold Services Today for Rev. John McKinney, 75

The Rev. John McKinney, 75 years old, a retired Episcopal clergyman, will be buried in Memorial Park cemetery this afternoon, following services at the Church Home for Aged Persons at 5445 Ingleside avenue. Dr. McKinney died there Thursday. He was educated at Hobart college, Geneva, N. Y., and came to Chicago in 1920. He had held pastorates in Iowa and elsewhere and assisted in parish work here. Surviving Dr. McKinney are three children, Perry, Maurice, and Doane.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

LONE U. S. WOMAN ESCAPES BANDIT HORDE IN CHINA

Travels by Herself Until Picked Up by Boat.

FOOCHOW, China, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Miss Leona Burr, a Congregationalist missionary from South Dakota, arrived here today in a motorboat with two other missionaries after a nerve wracking trip of 200 miles to escape a horde of Chinese communist bandits.

Miss Burr was stationed at the Shaowu mission beyond the head waters of the Min river, 200 miles northwest of here. The bandits, harried from the rear by provincial troops from Kiangsi, threatened the mission and she fled alone.

Travels by Herself.

For fifty miles she traveled by herself through a bandit infested region until she encountered Dr. Edward Bliss, another American Congregationalist. Dr. Bliss had acquired a motorboat, and was making for Foochow with an Australian missionary. They took Miss Burr aboard.

Eventually they reached Yenping, but the Min river country behind them was swarming with bandits, kidnaping whomever they laid their hands upon.

Miss Burr said the northwestern part of Fukien province was overrun by communists, who are looting towns. She said she did not know the whereabouts of other American and British missionaries in the danger zone. She assumed, however, that they were all trying to escape.

In China Since 1919.

Mitchell, S. D., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Miss Leona Burr, reported today to have safely arrived at Foochow after a 200 mile motor boat trip through a region infested with Chinese communist bands, is the daughter of Mrs. B. S. Burr Sr., who lives with her sister. Miss Burr has been in China since 1919 except for a few years spent as a teacher in a missionary school in India and a furlough home about two years ago.

Good Morning!

In "Once in a Lifetime" this company has attained a double barreled achievement. The first barrel is a workmanlike and exceedingly entertaining adaptation of the uproarious stage satire. The second—which possibly should have been mentioned first—is a reputation for good sportsmanship. There was no deleting of lines or situations that kidded Hollywood. Instead, they were permitted to blossom as the sunflower. Universal has, to its everlasting credit, proved Hollywood able to take a joke and pass it on with a grin, even if the joke WAS on the picture colony.

Honestly, I get prouder of motion pictures every day of my life! They're growing! The people who are making them are growing. By fits and starts and pains—maybe—but, still, lustily taking root in good old common sense and reaching aspiring tendrils toward the sky.

The play by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, who, it is said, had never been to Hollywood before they wrote it, starts its story with the start of talking pictures.

Then, as everybody knows, the world of the cinema went just plain cuckoo over the wonderful invention dropped into its lap.

A vaudeville trio—two men and a girl—down on their luck, trek to Hollywood. May Daniels and Jerry Hyland are smart. They nourish the brilliant idea of starting a school wherein formerly silent players shall learn to talk in a manner that shall not confound the world. George Lewis, the other member of the trio, is just a dumb Indian nut eating stooge whom they love and who loves them.

Not for the world would they leave George behind, though he is just the big tame bull in their china shop of plans. . . . Ha, ha, is the laugh on them! In their scheme of things, even as it is in heaven, the first turns out to be last and the last first. . . . !

The film sports the wealth of killing incident and dialogue that made the play the joy it was. And what a cast this movie boasts!

Aline MacMahon, in the leading feminine rôle, delivers one handsome performance! She's proved in numerous less important assignments that she was a comedienne of parts. This trip she establishes her right to be classed with Marie Dressler, Edna May Oliver, and the other grand and glorious girls who make laughter a necessity and a pleasure.

Russell Hopton is great as her brainy sidekick, and Jack Oakie is immense as the dumb cluck who comes to rule their world.

Onslow Stevens plays a forgotten man—an author who never gets to see the god who hired, pays, and gives him nothing to do—with delightful irony and great facial expressiveness. Gregory Ratoff as Herman Glogauer, the god-president of Glogauer Productions—is almost too good to be true. Louise Fazenda caricatures a lady columnist with zest and perception, and there are loads of other capables who simply slay you.

"Why, this is a rave!" you say. When there's something to rave over—rave, says I.

"And I'm to play a prima donna," she said enthusiastically, referring to her part in the play "Encore," which is to go into rehearsal immediately upon her return. "But I'm not through with the movies. Indeed, I'm not through with anything."

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we make in our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

Mild winter days are good days to have your trees and shrubs put in first class condition for spring. Competent outdoor workmen are easier to secure this time of the year than when the spring weather arrives and every one wants something done. Every community has a committee on local employment and you can consult this committee in regard to getting a man for this work if you don't have any one in mind. Have your trees examined to see if they are growing as they should. There are tree surgeons ready to give them first aid treatment if they are showing signs of a near "breakdown."

British Surgeon Tells of Cancer Study Progress

Sir George Lenthal Cheatle, prominent British surgeon and member of the medical faculty of London university, addressed the annual meeting of the Chicago Gynecological society at the Drake hotel last night on the subject of tumors.

Sir Lenthal is observing the progress of American medical research and has visited Kansas City, Omaha, and St. Louis, having been elected an honorary fellow of the American College of Surgeons at their congress in St. Louis, Oct. 19. In Chicago he visited the cancer department of Michael Reese hospital and the Albert Billings Memorial hospital.

The most important development in cancer research recently, according to Sir Lenthal, was the work accomplished by Dr. R. J. Ludford of the Imperial Cancer Research fund of London. Dr. Ludford discovered, he said, that normal living cells pick up a dye called trypan blue, although living cancer cells do not pick up the dye.

"This is the only staining difference that I know between normal and malignant cells," Sir Lenthal said. "Why this difference exists nobody knows. The discovery may form the basis for future important observations."

Sir Lenthal finds no basis for the professional jealousy sometimes discerned in the comparisons made between the scientific accomplishments of European and American medicines.

"Medicine and surgery are international," said he. "If a thing is worth knowing in Europe, it becomes known in America and Australia next morning. There is no boundary limiting the worldwide interchange of medical knowledge."

Sir Lenthal is a veteran of the Boer war and the world war. He was stationed at the Dardanelles as a naval surgeon with the rank of rear admiral.

"The world war advanced the knowledge of plastic surgery," he said, "but the other branches of surgery—no."

Approves Movie Contract of Miss Holm, Swim Star

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Mrs. Daisy Canfield Moreno, wife of Antonio Moreno, movie star, came to court with Eleanore Holm today and was accepted as technical guardian of the attractive Olympic swimming champion when Miss Holm applied for court recognition of her contract as a motion picture actress. Being only 18 Miss Holm's contract had to be approved by the court. The court action reveals that Miss Holm is to receive salary starting at $300 a week and eventually bringing her to $2,000 a week in case the Warner Brothers studio takes up all her options.

Specimens of Hybrid Oak Are Presented to Museum

Specimens of a new hybrid oak, found at Willow Springs, Ill., have been presented to the department of botany of the Field museum by O. M. Schantz of Berwyn, the discoverer, it was announced yesterday. According to Paul C. Standley, associate curator of the museum's herbarium, the hybrid is a cross between the bur oak and the white oak. Mr. Standley said said that natural hybrids between species are not common in the United States.

New Woolies a Delight for Cold Weather

Anti-Scratch Materials Are Stylish, Too.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

ARE you planning a polar dash through the coming winter, with all the necessary "woollies" to keep you from extinction? . . . If you are, you couldn't find better heating unmentionables than are now being hung cozily around the wide-awake shops. Starting from scratch, warm woollies have leaped into the shopping arms of the coldest of cold blooded shop hounds.

These same infinitesimal descendants of oldtime harsh woollen atrocities are as filmy and fragile and as warm as a wandering equatorial breeze. And with what a difference . . . our female ancestors, according to the best historians, must have been a hardy lot, but they surely did go in for heavy winter lingerie . . . if we have weakened and become sissies, that distressing criticism simply can't be proved by our modern scraps of wool that keep us warm, cozy, comfortable, and as slim as a shadow, even though we are covered with more than the usual layers.

The new trifles are sleeveless, although sleeved models can be procured if necessary . . . the well fitted, slender, thin all-togethers are marvels of minimum material combined with heating units. They are the thinnest wool things you have ever snuggled yourself into, but they are as warm as toast and cling tighter than your own skin.

The old full length models are extinct . . . evidently daily Spartan exposure of slender ankles has resulted in a race of female gadabouts with little or no feeling left in their ankles. However, you will find lots of near knee length numbers that you can anchor under the top of your hosiery, and some others that descend below the knee cap.

The most popular models look exactly like flesh and peach tinted copies of the summer sun-tan bathing suits that decorated the beaches all last summer. The various sections that are woven in ribbed formations trim as well as make these wind-breaking models fit ardently. They are ribbed at the waistline and around the band of the shorts.

If you crave winter hug-me-tights fashioned like the brief scant silken shorts and vest that you enjoy in the summer, you can buy a supply immediately and for prices that will keep you warm for weeks. Whatever you need in the way of base supplies for a season of icy dawns and days when you battle the blasts of a shivering winter is now within your grasp . . . this is no time to procrastinate; buy the clever little cozy wonders while the new models are available, and before you become snowbound.

Should your personal and active dislike of sensible and reasonable woolens keep you from buying the things, there are a lot of new glove silk foundations that will no doubt do gallant service toward keeping you warm. These heavy, long wearing garments are extremely practical, easy to chase through the soapsuds, hang over a hook to dry, and smoothly available for wear without the aid of an iron, and very artistically designed and trimmed . . . what else could a persnickity shopper ask for? Exceedingly low price tags flutter from these silken things as persuasively as on the wool trifles!

Theta Xi Chapter Will Be Installed at N. U. Today

The Monacoans, a local fraternity at Northwestern university, will be installed today as the 37th chapter of Theta Xi, national social fraternity, in a ceremony at the Evanston Masonic temple, 1453 Maple avenue. The Monacoans fraternity, with a chapter house at 1815 Orrington avenue, was founded in 1921 by a group of Northwestern students who visited Monaco on a European trip.

Betty Offield Aids Needy Children

Miss Betty Offield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Offield, has been devoting several hours a week of her busy life to the splendid work being carried on by the Red, White and Blue club, which is located in what was formerly an old brewery in the center of a very needy neighborhood. The brewery has been remodeled into a pleasant, well aired and neatly kept place where thousands of poor children of that neighborhood are given well balanced and well prepared meals, and taught useful things such as sewing, cooking, and handiwork of all sorts. A supper dance for the benefit of the club is to be given on Armistice night, Nov. 11, in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman. Mrs. Edward R. Fifield is president of the board of the club. MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Copyright 1932 By News Syndicate Co., Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

CLASS DAY.

"One of my first assignments as an investigator was to search through the ruins of a fire for evidence," said Prof. Fordney to his class.

"Being anxious to show my thoroughness, I hunted diligently and took back everything I found that could possibly have any bearing on the crime. It wasn't much; a badly melted signet ring, initials indistinct; a common old pocket watch with only the second hand and the figures four, six, and nine on the dial remaining readable; a cigaret case twisted beyond recognition; an oddly shaped button, and—my pièce de resistance—a jeweled ornament set with marquise diamond surrounded by rubies.

"This latter piece particularly intrigued me. Although it resembled a brooch there was no pin on the back of it or any indication there ever had been. Neither was there a loop of any kind, so it could not have been worn as a pendant.

"By the time I returned to headquarters I had a highly romantic and fanciful story to account for the jeweled ornament. After reading my inventory to the captain I started to tell him of my theory when, with a snort that could be heard a block, he chased me out of the room and I——"

Perhaps you have one you would like Prof. Fordney to submit to his class. If so, send it to him in care of this paper. He will be delighted to see what his students make of it.

[See solution on page 27.]

Buy Hosiery Long Enough for the Foot

Short Sizes Apt to Cause Troubles.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Stockings may not belong in a beauty department. But if not, where I ask you, do they belong? If they haven't much to do with ankle beauty, leg neatness, then makeup bears no relation to the facial charm.

Good times and bad, we women spend a prodigious amount of money on stockings annually. We follow the season's styles in hosiery color, sometimes with benefit and sometimes to the detriment of our nether extremities, as, for example, when the summer pinkish shades were worn on plumpish calves. There's a neat little study in the tone of stocking to be worn with the frock or suit so that both leg and ensemble will benefit by the smartest choice.

Many women still hold to the theory that the darker the stocking, the less obvious the stoutish leg. It isn't true in an era of light color wearing. Attention is more often called to the leg by the nature of its very sombre dressing. I refer to the black and the very dark brown shades that one sees now and then. The gun metals and the light fall tans and browns are better.

But it was more of stocking lengths we'd speak. And for two reasons: one, to keep down the stocking bill; the other, to keep down the chiropodist expense. More runs come from stockings that are too short than from any other one cause. And short stockings can cramp your walking style every bit as effectively as short shoes.

Short stockings cause more ingrown toenails, I'm told by a reliable pedicurist, than short shoes, these days. The man's theory is that women are educated now to wear shoes that are long enough, but they do not seem to recognize the harm done to feet by too short hosiery. Young mothers seem more awake to this feature where their children's feet are concerned than they are to their own danger of causing foot malformation through the too short stocking.

It's better for both stocking economy and foot health to get a half size larger than you've been wearing if you've been having trouble of any kind. Even the heel hole is less apt to appear where the foot of the stocking is not drawn too tight!

City's Society Will Enjoy Many Gay Halloween Affairs Tonight

Debutante Set Will Be Guests of Robert J. Thornes in Lake Forest; Other Happy Parties on Calendar.

BY JUDITH CASS.

HOBGOBLINS and spooks and jack-o-lanterns will be out tonight, although Halloween isn't until Monday most of the parties that are to be given to observe the festival with traditional rites and merrymaking are on tonight's calendar. The debutantes and their beaux will spend the evening at a party that the Robert J. Thornes are to give for their daughter, Laura, at their Lake Forest residence, and since the Thornes' Halloween parties became famous in the days when the older Thorne girls, now Mrs. George Corson Ellis, Mrs. George Gillespie, and Mrs. Herman Dunlap Smith, were younger, all the younger set eagerly is anticipating tonight's festivity.

It is to be a juvenile party and all the guests have been asked to wear baby clothes. The party is not Miss Thorne's presentation to society, for her formal debut will not take place until after the family comes back to town for the winter.

Another Halloween party in Lake Forest tonight at which the guests will be slightly older than Miss Thorne's friends will be the benefit dinner dance that the Lake Forest Arden Shore committee is to give at the Deerpath inn. Guests may wear either evening dress or costumes and there will be bridge, backgammon and other games for diversion between dances.

Among those who are having parties are Mr. and Mrs. William A. P. Pullman, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Morrill, Mr. and Mrs. George Corson Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. George F. McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. W. Calhoun Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Isaacs Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd B. Evans.

Gay Parties at Tavern.

There will be numerous gay parties at the Halloween dinner dance at the Tavern tonight, the largest of which will be a Dutch treat one of about fifty, including the John W. Roots, the Robert Pyzels, David Leavitt, and Robert Whitehouse, Bernard F. Rogers, the Luthern W. Bodmans, Henry Monroe, the Chauncey B. Blairs, and the Frederick W. Copelands are among those who will entertain guests. One of the features of the entertainment will be an exhibition of motion pictures taken at the recent Latin Quarter ball.

The members of the dinner party that Miss Emeline Bush will give tonight at the Saddle and Cycle club for Miss Virginia Skinkle and Sidney Heap, who are to be married on Nov. 12, will go to the Tavern after dinner for the festivities and dancing there. Miss Carol Bush, who left last night with a party of young people for Ann Arbor to attend the Michigan-Princeton football game this afternoon, expects to return in time for her sister's party.

Mrs. Laflin to Give Reception.

All of Mrs. Louis E. Laflin's friends [and they include practically all of Lake Forest] will drop in at her house in Lake Forest some time this afternoon to attend the reception she is giving for her son and his bride, Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Laflin [June Kennedy of Pittsburgh] who returned recently from their honeymoon in the West Indies and Europe.

Mrs. Laflin's other son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Laflin, are to receive with her. There will be dancing for the younger guests. Pouring and assisting in the dining room will

'Panther Girl' Wins Her First Studio Battle

Chicago Boy Friend Will Visit Set.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The Paramount studio and Kathleen Burke, its 19 year old nation-wide contest winner from Chicago, broke even in their argument today.

That is, Miss Burke isn't wearing an engagement ring or making plans to get married in the near future. In return the studio is laying off of remarks or suggestions to her about not seeing so much of her boy friend, Glen R. Rarden, of Chicago.

Rarden, who is a former member of University of Indiana football squads and now has a commercial photography studio at 443 Deming place, Chicago, found his home town too lonesome after Miss Burke left for Hollywood, so he came on here, too, several weeks ago. Miss Burke smilingly admits that letters from her may have influenced him.

Rarden's frequent visits to Miss Burke on the set and the couple's meetings after working hours late at night were noted with interest, but not friendly interest, by some of the representatives of the studio, and as the movie studios are noted less for their tact and more for their bluntness, it was suggested to Rarden that he stay away from the set, and moreover, that he not see the girl friend for a soda or a midnight snack after working hours, because she might do the morrow's acting assignment better.

Miss Burke's retort was short and snappy, and Rarden now continues to be welcome around the studio and elsewhere in the young actress' company.

When Roscoe Ates came to Hollywood it was with the idea of getting his foster daughter (now his legally adopted daughter Dorothy) a job in the movies. She had been on the stage with Roscoe and he thought the films held a future for her. But it turned out that Roscoe was chosen as the film find—not the daughter—and starting with "Cimarron," he rapidly found himself famous. Today Ates experienced the thrill of seeing the daughter before the cameras at last. She has a part in the short reel comedy which the R.-K.-O. studio regards as important. It is called, "So This Is Harris?" and features Phil Harris, orchestra leader.

"White Moth," an original story which is being dressed into screen script by Zoe Akin, is the name of the Ann Harding story at Radio, which Dorothy Arzener is to direct.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Miss Bundy is in poor health and acting peculiarly. She had hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff, and he and his wife, an ill-bred pair, hold a strange influence over her. Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half Russian niece, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline tells Neil that her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly seances in the library. Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, and his sister, Rachel, are friends of Neil's. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. She is giving money to a man she meets secretly. Caroline promises to visit Emily Brascliton, an old friend, in Paris. Natasha drives her to London. Natasha returns a few days later and tells Neil that her aunt gave her a pearl necklace, which she sold. She receives a wire which Caroline sent from London, asking her to look for an alligator bag left in the car. The bag is not found. Caroline doesn't reach Paris. The police are notified. Her body is found in a ditch near her estate. She'd been brutally murdered. The Tilburys are left Caroline's fortune, on condition they search for the Holy Grail in the ruin of an ancient abbey on the estate, which Caroline believed to be her father's wish. Natasha is arrested. It is learned that the man she'd been meeting secretly was her wastrel brother, Michael, who has fled the country. Natasha is brought to trial. News is received of Michael's death.

INSTALLMENT XLII.

THE PRISONER'S STORY.

Having got through what evidently was a trying ordeal, Albert Stokes shambled to his seat, where he mopped his forehead with a shaking hand. Only Neil followed his departure, for at this juncture a new sensation arose in the calling of Alfred Tilbury.

The audience strained forward eargerly to catch sight of the much discussed man. Slightly self-conscious under the eyes fixed on him, the former bailiff took the oath and waited with deference for counsel to begin.

He admitted having been vaguely disturbed over his employer's telephone call, mainly because of his inability to catch what was said. Although he felt sure Miss Bundy had lost something she valued, he could not make out what it was. It was to relieve his mind that his wife had gone to Glastonbury the following morning and again on Sunday, he being too ill to get out of bed. On Monday, still so weak that it was in defiance of the doctor's orders he was up at all, he determined to make inquiries in person for Miss Andreyev, hoping she might shed some light on the matter which was troubling him. Not until he learned about the telegram did he realize how it was the alligator bag which had caused the excitement, and as that was after his own knowledge of Miss Bundy's nonarrival at her destination, he became extremely worried. He could not help connecting the lost bag with Miss Bundy's disappearance, though he had not worked out anything satisfactory in his own mind. He was greatly astonished to hear Miss Andreyev had not seen her aunt off after going all the way to London with her.

No one stirred while Natasha was handed the coat and hat she had worn on the fateful Friday.

Counsel: Was there any ill-feeling between you and the prisoner? Witness: Not on my side. I sometimes got the notion she wasn't keen on me being at Stoke Paulton.

Counsel: I am told that you and your wife were engaged in some sort of occult research with the deceased. Had this anything to do with the prisoner's attitude towards you? Witness [with the utmost candor]: I shouldn't wonder if it had. You see, Miss Bundy never discussed her private affairs with the young lady, and as Miss Andreyev never knew we was only doing it to please Miss Bundy, she may have got wrong notions in her head.

The witness throughout did not deviate from his mild mannered impartiality. Not once did he indicate a wish to injure Natasha. Having created an impression of frank simplicity and earnest desire to acquit himself justly in a painful situation, he left the stand amid murmurs of approbation.

Following this came a lengthy analysis of the prisoner's telegram to her brother, sent soon after her arrival in London. It ran thus: "Can get money, meet me according to plan, spend night Bianchinis," and was signed "Tasha." The jury's notice was drawn to the phrase, "according to plan": also to the fact that no train was mentioned, counsel's inference being that here was evidence to show a carefully arranged scheme dependent on given conditions. The whole thing tallied perfectly with the landlady's statement that Andreyev had been told to expect a wire if a definite event materialized. This event did materialize, and Andreyev received his message per agreement. As to the construction to be put on these facts, the jury must decide for themselves.

A deposition from the Paris police was read and comments on it given. Michael Andreyev was accused by his employer, M. Joseph Waldemar, a stock broker, of inflicting personal violence on him and of absconding after using clients' money for private speculations. M. Waldemar had at first refrained from taking action, but on learning the extent of the defalcation, reported the matter to the authorities. A rumor reaching him that Andreyev was in England, a warrant for the fugitive's arrest was issued.

The morning was wearing to close when the last and most important witness was called. It was the proprietor of the filling station near Bristol. Breathless attention greeted his appearance in the box. Neil took an iron grip on himself and looked. What he saw did not reassure him—a beefy, bull necked man with a bristling mustache and round, staring brown eyes, not easily intimidated. The coarse hands which grasped the book showed no signs of tremor.

The supreme moment for the prosecution had come—yet photographs are deceptive things, the one used by the police in this instance being three years old, faded, and showing Natasha in evening dress. The witness, confident as he was before, might falter when it came to the test.

No one stirred while Natasha was handed the coat and hat she had worn on the fateful Friday. She put them on, tucking her hair under the little felt cap and adjusting her collar with steady hands.

Counsel: Herbert Rowntree, I wish you to look closely at the young woman in the dock. Take plenty of time. Is she or is she not the driver of the car which stopped at your establishment on the evening of March 20th? Witness [staring hard and sucking in his breath]: Yes—she's the one. I recognize her clothes, and I recognize her face.

Counsel: That, my lord, is the case for the prosecution.

Mr. Gregory Cairnes, K. C.: My lord, I call the prisoner.

She was there, motionless, the target for bulging eyes, a girl of twenty-two, with a straight, firm bearing, and a pale Slavic face.

Cairnes, an Edinburgh Scot, who had fought his way to the front ranks by a series of brilliant victories, was burly and unprepossessing to look at.

Neil knew that since yesterday Cairnes had spent long hours in consultation with Natasha; that by placing her in the box he was banking to a large extent on her youth and personal appeal, but that his decision was an error of judgment was painfully apparent. How could the girl, shattered by the news of her brother's death, be expected to win back sympathy long since alienated? A single glance at her deadened exterior showed how useless it was to seek in her those qualities which sway emotions.

When, without any warning, her brother arrived in England, he told her nothing of his real reason for leaving Paris. Depression, nerves, general fedupness was his excuse. Natasha was feeling much the same, weary of monotony, longing for change. It occurred to her the two might strike out together, particularly as she sensed in Michael an instability which needed a strong guiding hand. Her affection did not blind her to his shortcomings. She knew him to be a spendthrift and a little inclined to drink and take gamblers' chances, but he was clever and versatile, and with her to keep him in order might be steered into a useful career.

With this in mind, she sought out her father's old friend, Serge Wassilieff, a Russian now living in London. Wassilieff promised to secure work for them both in the motor transport in Persia, provided they could find money for their fares. She planned to set aside her salary for the purpose, and in time could have managed very well if her brother's resources had not come to an abrupt end. From this event onward she had Michael to support.

Thinking to lessen his expenditure and remove him from the temptations of London life, she persuaded him to take up his residence in Bath. She quite understood his unwillingness to inform their aunt of his proximity. From the first Miss Bundy had taken what seemed an unreasonable dislike to Michael, and would have strongly disapproved if she had known her niece was taking care of him.

Counsel: Can you explain why you did not introduce him to any of your friends? Natasha: If I had done so my aunt would have got to know about him. Besides, he was really in no fit state to meet strangers.

She had been, in fact, rather troubled about Michael's pronounced neurasthenia, indications of which had been noticeable from an early age. She attributed it to the shock sustained when, a boy of thirteen, he had seen their father butchered by the revolutionists. Even his taking the name of Addison—a family cognomen, incidentally—was to her mind a symptom of his morbid wish to dissociate himself from the past, although he rationalized it by saying how difficult it was for a foreigner to obtain work in England. He could only, of course, have held a position for three months at a time on account of labor regulations. Actually he did try to secure several posts, but without success.

Bright Sayings of the Children

A brave young patient came in to pay her first visit to the dentist. Trying the easiest avenue of winning over this bright eyed maid of four summers, the dentist said, "Joan, where did you get those beautiful brown eyes?"

"They just came with me," was Joan's nonchalant reply. G. T. K.

Some time ago my cousin and I went for a walk and took her little niece with us. When we returned little Irene wanted to open the door so my cousin handed her the key. Not being able to find the latch, she turned to us and said, all excited: "Auntie! Robbers have been here and they even took the keyhole." D. K. K.

Thornes Will Be Hosts to Debutante Set.

Today's debutante is Miss Julia Hull Kramer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Kramer of 1320 North State street, who is to be presented by her parents at a tea from 4 to 7 o'clock at the Fortnightly. The debutante's parents will be assisted in receiving by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Ross, and by another aunt, Mrs. Carl R. Gray of Omaha. Her own attendants will include the Misses Edna Doering, Marion Gordon, Eleanor Page, Eleanor Litsinger, Betty Brawley, Betty Whatley, Barbara Eldridge, Martha Lee, Helen Marie Castle, and Miss Gladys Gray of Omaha.

Christen Hill Baby Tomorrow.

Patrick C. Hill is arriving in town this morning from Fort Worth, Tex., and his brother, Anthony Hill, is arriving about the same time from Toronto, to be here for the christening tomorrow afternoon of Rue, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. "Pat" Hill.

The christening is to take place at 4 o'clock in the chapel of St. James's church. Mrs. Shreve Badger [Theodora Winterbotham], Mrs. Hill's cousin, and an aunt of Mr. Hill's in London are to be the godmothers, and Robert Allerton and Peter Colfax of London will be the godfathers, but Mrs. Badger will be the only one of the godparents present at tomorrow's ceremony, for neither of the Londoners are here and Mr. Allerton sailed yesterday for Europe. Potter Palmer will be his proxy at the christening.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill and wee Rue will return to their home in Fort Worth the end of next week. Mr. Carpenter will be going to New York the middle of next month to play his "Patterns" with the Boston Symphony orchestra at its New York concert on the 19th.

Miss Janet Fairbank is giving a house party this week-end at Butternuts, the Fairbanks' Lake Geneva residence, for Miss Marion McFadden and her fiancé, "Jim" Hume. Miss Fairbank's vacation of a month is drawing to a close and before long she will be busy again with radio work and concerts which she is to give in Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, and various other places as well as in Chicago, I understand.

Miss Fairbank's mother, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, is busier than ever just now, for her new novel, "Bright Land," is to be in the hands of the publishers by next Friday and nothing, even politics, is being allowed to interfere with that important work. The title comes from the quotation, "Westward look, the land is bright."

The plot cannot be divulged yet, other than that it is a story of pioneer days. After the book is out of the way Mrs. Fairbank will give the last of her famous house parties for this season—twenty or thirty house guests is a common thing over weekends at Butternuts—and then she and her family will move back to town for the winter on Monday the 7th so that they will be here to cast their ballots on the 8th.

Preview Will Benefit Blind.

Mrs. John F. Jennings, the new president of the Lighthouse Volunteer Aids, and Mrs. Wilbur Calhoun Smith, who is publicity chairman for the organization, came in yesterday to announce that a preview of the sound picture, "Goona-Goona," taken on the exotic island of Bali, is to be given for the benefit of the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind next Thursday night in the Tower room of the Drake hotel. Tickets are being sold by all the Aids and also may be obtained at the door that night.

Mrs. Silas H. Strawn is to preside at the Town Hall lecture this morning in the Drake ballroom, and will introduce Sir Frederick Whyte, English diplomat, who has spent much of his time in the last decade in the far east, who will talk of the romance and mystery of vast Asia. Mrs. Press Hodgkins will be in charge of the sale of tickets at the door this morning. Part of the proceeds goes to the Emerson Settlement house, of which Mrs. Hodgkins is a board member.

Mrs. Waller Borden has invited about one hundred friends to a reception at her residence, 1030 Lake Shore drive, tonight to meet Judge Henry Horner, Democratic nominee for governor. Judge Horner will speak, also Mrs. George Bass and Andrew R. Sherriff.

Fashion Show Nets $15,000.

All of the charitable entertainments are netting far less this year than similar efforts in previous years have brought in for the various philanthropies for which society women work, but with conditions such as they are that is to be expected, of course.

A dollar goes further, however, this year than it did three or four years ago. The net receipts of the St. Luke's fashion show are $15,000, just about half what was realized for the hospital last year. But both the price of tickets and exhibitors' fees had been cut, so that although the crowds were as large at both showings and more exhibitors than before, the proceeds are much less than heretofore.

The junior Edward L. Ryersons' son, Morton, received the little car that the woman's board of the hospital had been selling since midsummer and turned it back to be resold for the cause. Then Mrs. Frank Hixon received it and she has given it to the hospital to be used by whatever department the board decides needs it most. The board will meet next Wednesday to make its decision.

Four thousand dollars was realized for the Service club's charities by the revue, "Stepping High," which was given recently by the club, it was announced at a board meeting yesterday at Mrs. Albert F. Madlener's home, 233 East Walton place.

Miss Helen Stuyvesant Voorhees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Greenwood Voorhees of Lenox, Mass., is to be married this afternoon to Lincoln Bradford Hockaday, son of Mrs. Isaac Newton Hockaday of Evanston, at Trinity Episcopal church in Lenox. Miss Margaret Hockaday, sister of the bridegroom, is one of the four bridesmaids and Newton Hockaday will be his brother's best man.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Hockaday are to live in St. Louis, where Mr. Hockaday is on the editorial staff of the Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Hockaday was graduated from the Wykeman-Rise school in Washington, Conn., and later studied art in Paris and New York. Mr. Hockaday was graduated from Yale in 1928.

Mrs. Myron F. Spada is leaving today for her residence in St. Augustine, Fla., accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Frank Fleming of Jacksonville, Fla., who has been here for a visit.

The South Shore Country club will have a cabaret supper party tonight. The entertainment committee of the club announces that on Saturdays during the winter there will be dancing in the dining room from 7:30 to 9 o'clock and in the ballroom from 9:30 until 2 a. m.

Quebec Will Change Law on Theaters to Admit Children

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

QUEBEC, Oct. 28.—Quebec's theater laws, by which no child under 16 is allowed to attend movies, is to be modified during the course of the next session of the legislature in order to permit children being admitted at certain times and under certain conditions.

Premier Taschereau informed a delegation of theater men today that he would consider such a change in the law next January.

The reason the law was amended to prohibit admission of children was because of the Laurier Palace theater fire in Montreal in 1926, when 77 children lost their lives.

Theater men claim the law is too drastic. They point out that a majority of the theaters are fireproof

Rev. J. E. Kearney Made Bishop of Salt Lake

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Under a mandate from the vatican, signed by Pope Pius XI., the Rev. James E. Kearney, pastor of St. Francis Xavier's church in the Bronx, was consecrated bishop of Salt Lake by Cardinal Hayes, archbishop of New York, in St. Patrick's cathedral today. The ceremony was attended by a large number of new bishops, former parishioners, and of Catholic clergy from the entire metropolitan district and various parts of the country. Fifteen bishops took part in the ceremony.

Mirande Creates Burgundy Red Frock with Fashionable Velvet Sleeves

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Velvet sleeves have received the okay of the fashionable woman and have become one of the first features of winter dress styles in Paris. They appear in woolen frocks, but they come into the greatest prominence on silken dresses for the end of the day. Frocks wearing velvet sleeves are usually made of one of the many dull silk crêpes that are fashionable. Thus a contrast of surface is supplied, and the sleeve becomes much more decorative.

The Mirande dress shown today is made of a dull crêpe in dark burgundy red, and its sleeves are the same color, but in a shiny silk velvet. The raglan cut of these sleeves, and their unusual leg o' mutton puffs, which begin well below the shoulder caps, make them more than ordinarily decorative.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The secretary of war and Mrs. Hurley returned to their country place, Bellmont, near Leesburg, Va., this afternoon from their short visit in Philadelphia.

The Turkish ambassador, Ahmet Muhtar, is in New York celebrating the ninth anniversary of the birth of the Turkish republic. He will hold a reception tomorrow to the Turkish colony in New York.

The former Spanish ambassador, Don Juan Riano, who is the guest of the Spanish ambassador, Don Francisco de Cardenas, was entertained at dinner last night by Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Welles at their country place, Oxon Hill, in Maryland.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. S. Chambers, son and daughter-in-law of Robert W. Chambers, novelist, have arrived here from their wedding trip and taken possession of their home at 2216 Massachusetts avenue. Mrs. Chambers is the former Miss Barendia Gardiner, daughter of the late Col. Cornelius Gardiner, U. S. A., stationed a long time in Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Chambers were married here last spring.

Sparring Card Partners Make Others Suffer

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Why is it that a bridge table can turn an otherwise peaceable enough pair into a couple of rarin', fightin' Kilkenny cats?

You've been present when a trick was lost and one or the other or both of the supposed congenial pair let loose a flood of verbiage that sounded like nothing so much as an explosion of years of pent up resentment! The ludicrous feature is that there may be no resentment! Well, not more than is ordinarily experienced and met with the spirit of good sportsmanship required of two temperaments trying to live amicably under one roof.

It's this missing sportsmanship that is regretted by those who must listen to a bridge warring husband and wife. True, others than husbands and wives are guilty of unpleasant bridge table conduct. But somehow, friends or strangers, with rare exceptions, manage to observe good manners sufficiently not to criticize or call down a bridge partner.

Husbands and wives, of the bridge fighting kind, simply do not bring sportsmanship or manners to the table. Which would be all right if only they themselves suffered. But their wrangling mars the enjoyment of others present.

They say a man's character and temperament are revealed in a poker game. We wonder if women were permitted to sit in at poker sessions if a lot of good male character reputation wouldn't suffer. Still, we think the character test not so good with poker or backgammon because in these games each player's game concerns himself. In bridge there is the partner's playing, over which we see the worst exhibitions of loss of self-control, bad temper, and plain bad manners. These are put on by husbands and wives—yes, and other family members, too.

As a sure for the irritations met with in family life, good manners have been offered by our best authorities time and time again. But there seems to be something about the intimacy of living together under one roof that dissipates the polite graces and concessions. And nowhere is this lack of good taste so apt to be exhibited as when family members fall in as bridge table partners.

If lecturing must be done over the play that cost a trick, let it be done at the regular curtain lecture hour. Anyway, spare the two luckless souls whose ill fortune it is to be placed at the table with a warring pair!

Explorer to Tell of Air Trip Over Peruvian Wilds

Robert Shippee, explorer and aviator, will tell about the aerial exploration of Peruvian jungles in a lecture this afternoon at the Field Museum of Natural History. Taking off from Lima, Peru, in two Bellanca monoplanes, a party headed by Shippee and George R. Johnson flew over towering peaks and deep jungles, mapping and photographing the territory, much of which had never before been charted. Where the terrain permitted, they explored the country on muleback, finding many ancient Inca fortresses.

Mrs. Hutton Plans Early Return to Temple Pulpit

New Orleans, La., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton plans to be back preaching in the Angelus temple at Los Angeles "a week from Sunday." With her husband, David L. Hutton, she returned here last night from a "rest cruise" through the Caribbean. She secluded herself in a cabin while her husband announced her plans, but submitted good naturedly to the siege of a battery of photographers. Hutton said they would leave tonight for Los Angeles.

"Are there any questions?" That comforting query in grade school days used to be the appropriate winding up for all classes. It also is the correct finale for a week of TRIBUNE food chats—so on with the Question Clinic!

First, a query from Miss E. W., who writes: "I wonder if you would be able to get hold of a recipe for fudge that can be molded. This fudge can be stored in a crock and molded whenever a person wishes to do so."

The trick of a kneaded fudge, Miss W., is not in a special recipe but in the exact method of preparation. The standard recipe [2 cups sugar, 2 squares chocolate, 2-3 cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, and 1 teaspoon vanilla] is the one to use. Simply combine the sugar with the heated milk, add the salt, butter, and chipped chocolate, and mix until thoroughly combined. Leave the cover on until the mixture has reached the boil, then remove and boil to exactly 11? degrees C. or 236 degrees F. This is slightly higher than when the fudge is to be stirred.

Now add the vanilla and cool without stirring until room temperature. Beat until the candy sets when dropped from a spoon—until the gloss just leaves it. Turn out and knead until smooth and heavy. Form into a roll and store in airtight metal or glass container. When needed, take out the roll and cut in slices or reknead into balls or bon bons.

Next from Mrs. M. I. She says: "I was so happy to find your suggestion for a Russian party and will use it soon at an informal meeting of our club, which is studying conditions in Russia. But could you suggest a menu for a Russian dinner for a formal occasion?"

"Yes, I'll tell you about a delicious dinner I once had in a charming Russian restaurant in New York City. The first course is an appetizer called Zakuska. Serve individual plates on which are any or all of the following: A small sardine, thin slice of hard cooked egg, tiny sweet pickles, celery heart, canapé spread with caviar, canapé spread with sardine paste, and wedges of lemon sprinkled with paprika. The second course should be bortsch—the Russian vegetable soup served invariably with much thick sour cream atop each bowl. The main course may be small meat balls, mushroom sauce, baked potatoes, and small whole carrots accompanied by a chiffonade salad, also served with sour cream. A heavy, dark, sourish bread may be bought at many foreign bakeries and will go well with the meal. For dessert serve fresh fruit and black coffee.

Mrs. M. K. is anxious to know why the meat she serves always seems dry. Honesty forces her to admit that it cannot always be the fault of the meat, although she is sure, too, that she is following the correct methods of preparation.

Mrs. K., if you feel that your methods of cooking the meat are not the cause of your difficulty, perhaps you are buying cuts of meat that are deficient in fat. The water content of the meat, of course, will evaporate in cooking, and if there is not enough fat to keep the meat moist, it will naturally become dry. Don't feel when buying meats that the presence of a little fat means that you are not getting your money's worth.

Baptist Leader Reports Church Spiritual Gains

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Although gifts to churches have decreased owing to economic conditions, the spiritual condition of the churches is better than any year before, declared the Rev. A. E. Peterson, Chicago, general superintendent of the 88th annual convention of the Illinois state Baptists church, being held here. He reported baptisms have been more numerous than in previous years. More than 300 delegates are registered and the number will be increased tomorrow. The annual meeting will close Sunday.

Child Quickly Responds to a Friendly Voice

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"Margaret," says her mother, "is getting to be unmanageable in some ways. I can't reason with her any more. She's 7 and is getting to have a defiant temper. She sometimes won't give me things when I tell her to—and she acts terribly when I take things away from her."

This last sentence is the key to the trouble. I mean that any one who will take things away from a child of 7, simply has the wrong slant on managing children. If a mother will make that mistake she is probably making many others—and their fruit is temper and defiance.

Why, if Uncle Tom [our cat] has sneaked a chop bone from the kitchen table, and Scottie has bulldozed him into giving it up, and Scottie carrying her delicious prize off, and we don't want her to have it because chop bones splinter—we can get Scottie to give it to us by firm but friendly talk and a persuasive voice. And Scottie is only a dog!

Things shouldn't be taken even from little children by force. I've seen people pry the clinging fingers of a struggling or crying child loose from some coveted object, sometimes to the destruction of that object—when if they only knew how, the same baby could be made to open those firm, chubby fingers of his own accord. And it is not from theory but years of experience that I speak. There's a certain something about the voice you use to a little child, a something about your manner which inspires him with confidence, which quiets him and conveys the assurance that you know he will do what you ask so that he doesn't feel a resistance towards you—and his fingers will uncurl or he will hand you the object himself.

This is only one thing—one act chosen out of the mother's description. But it is a symbol—it represents a whole attitude—it shows the "with" feeling that often does not but should exist between a father or mother and a child.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 28.—Notre Dame's football league of nations is all set to take the first hurdle in its path toward another possible and probable national football championship. The hurdle will loom in the shape of Pitt's Panther eleven tomorrow and 60,000 spectators are likely to witness the very thing they fear—the rout of a team which was regarded as a title contender until it proved itself unable to score on Ohio State.

The Notre Dame boys visited the hillside stadium this afternoon to acquaint themselves with the scenery. Three complete elevens went through a lot of plays and while so doing howled like Comanche Indians, the latter feature being calculated to throw fear into any Pitt spies who might have been peeking in on the scene. The practice even included work on goals from the field, but there is hardly any reason to think that the high scoring Notre Dame team will stoop to such boyish tactics to win. At least one of the 140 touchdown plays is bound to work.

Who to Start?

Hunk Anderson, the Notre Dame coach, was still arguing with himself tonight on the matter of starting his first or second teams, the latter being the popular procedure. Anderson likes to think Pitt is tougher than Pitt itself will admit. One minute he was voting for opening the show with his regulars. Then he figured it might be a good idea to kick off with the first team line and the second team backs. Between now and 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon he will probably think of a dozen other schemes and then at the last minute decide definitely that the job warrants the presence of the entire first squad.

As a mater of fact who is who at the start is of no consequence. They'll all be in there sooner or later. The second team back field, made up of Vejar, Koken, Sheeketski and Banas, is almost as skilled as the prize quartet of Jaskwhich, Lukats, Brancheau, and Melinkovich. The first line has something on the second string wall, but not as much as some folks might suspect. And if these two elevens should need any outside help there is a capable third team ready to convince the Panthers it would be advisable to surrender.

O, Doctor—Please!

The Pitt folks were still moaning today over the fact that their team really is as badly handicapped with injuries as claimed the last week. In fact the ailments are worse than admitted, to hear them tell it. Jock Sutherland, the Panther coach, sent out word that his quarter back, Bob Hogan, would not start because of his lame shoulder. Even Tormey, the center, may be withheld. There is only a slim chance that Reider, captain and right half, will appear. And Isadore Weinstein, the bulky full back who intended to play with his broken nose protected by a special rubber guard, may be kept on the bench for fear of additional injury.

If the Hogan injury isn't a hoax the quarter back job will be handled by Cutry. Sebastian will act in behalf of Capt. Reider in the back field. Weisenbaugh, a sophomore, will take over Weinstock's place if necessary.

Heller Better Hold Up.

With Reider either entirely absent or slowed down considerably by his lame leg, the so-called Irish will have only the elusive Warren Heller to watch, but even his pet tricks may be ruined by the superiority of the speedy Notre Dame ends and tackles. If anything should happen to Heller the Panthers would be in a rather sad spot. Nicksick, his understudy, was ruled ineligible yesterday for forgetting to attend classes. The only lad now available for an emergency at left end is Howdie O'Dell from Sioux City. He hasn't been in a major game this season.

Tomorrow's fight will be the sixth between the two schools and Pitt has yet to accomplish a victory. In 1909 the Panthers succumbed before Notre Dame by 6 to 0. In 1911 they turned out a scoreless tie. In 1912 Notre Dame had to resort to a field goal to win by 3 to 0. In 1930 the final count was 35 to 19 and last fall it was 25 to 12.

Wahoos Have Tried for 48 Years and Failed.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 28.—Dartmouth hasn't won a football game from Yale in all the 48 years the schools have conducted an intermittent rivalry and, naturally, there is some curiosity just now as to whether the Wahoos of the present team can break through and win one at least when they meet the Yales in the Bowl, a mile out of town, tomorrow afternoon.

There is always some curiosity as to this matter on Friday nights in New Haven when the Dartmouths come down out of their hills, but the curiosity is rather special this evening, considering how little the Yales have been able to do in four games thus far this season. They have scored only one touchdown, and it does look as though this time the Dartmouths will come upon the Yales when they are kneeling down tying their shoe and deal them an emphatic punt in the trousers.

It's One More Chance.

But they have come upon the Yales before when, if they weren't really tying their shoe, they certainly seemed to be doing so, only to have the Yales hop up storming and either smack them around or hold them even. They have played 15 games since '84 and Yale won all except three ties played in 1924, 1930 and 1931. In only four of

READY FOR ILLINI SIEGE

What Today's Big Games Mean to Contending Teams

Pittsburgh-Notre Dame—Notre Dame, unbeaten, sees Pitt as another step in its march to national title; upset victory by Pitt would compensate for tie by Ohio State last week.

Michigan-Princeton—Michigan still undefeated. Both want victory as important intersectional honor.

Chicago-Illinois—Victory for Maroons would leave them unbeaten in Big Ten with championship still a possibility. Illini hope for first conference victory in two years.

Minnesota-Northwestern—Each has lost one Big Ten game. Winner still has outside chance of sharing in conference championship.

Ohio State-Wisconsin—Each has lost one conference game. Winner still has chance of sharing in conference championship.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 28.—Northwestern's Wildcats, arriving here from Evanston at 8 o'clock this morning, were greeted with Minnesota hospitality of a brand far different from that expected tomorrow at Northrup field, where a majority of 40,000 homecoming spectators will be rooting for Gopher victory over hostile invaders who today were received as friends.

As the 35 Wildcat football players, looking more like sleepy Wildcats than fighting fellnes after rising so early, clambered from their special cars, Athletic Director Frank McCormick and a coterie of Gophers were on hand to shake hands with Athletic Director Tug Wilson and Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern. Expressions of respect, indeed fear, for their friendly rivals were so mutually expressed that one instinctively looked to see whether any fingers were crossed.

Pug Takes a Button.

Minnesota had provided a fleet of autos which bore bannered expressions of "Minnesota welcomes Northwestern." Thus the Evanstonians rode to the comparatively quiet residential hotel which is their headquarters here. Followed breakfast, interrupted by Minnesota sorority co-eds who, on a dare, attempted to sell homecoming buttons to the Purple warriors.

"Take a button?" said Capt. Pug Rentner. "Surely we'll take a button. We'll take the entire homecoming." Others followed Pug's lead and most of the Wildcats were decorated with these badges.

Northwestern in turn observed the amenities when a dozen players visited Myron Ubl, Minnesota back, at the University hospital, where he is slowly beating an attack of pneumonia and abscess on the lung following a practice drill injury in which the chances were 50 to 1 against him. Ubl will not see the game, by physicians' mandate, but is now considered well on the way to recovery despite a 40 pound loss of weight during his illness.

Unlimber at Stadium.

Following lunch the Wildcats were given the use of the stadium at 1:30 o'clock, where the final preliminary unlimbering workouts were given. They were not of a nature to disclose Northwestern strategy in tomorrow's battle, which naturally will center around passes and Olson's kicking. In the signal practice, Harry Leeper, sophomore from Fort Wayne, Ind., was in a back field position instead of George Potter, who has a weak shoulder. Jerome Gottschalk, another sophomore, was at guard in place of Cliff Kinder, also on the injured list.

From their practice the Wildcats were taken in a bus back to their hotel, where most of them caught up on sleep until dinner time. Later there was a visit to a movie, but at 10 o'clock all were in bed. The program tomorrow is breakfast at 8, light luncheon at 11:30, and then to the game which means so much to the Wildcats and Gophers.

Coaches Attend Reunion.

Ohio Partisans Have Badgers Beaten Already

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Oct. 28.—Ohio State partisans are all churned up over the 0 to 0 tie the Buckeyes accomplished against Pitt last Saturday with the result that any one with money to bet on Wisconsin can place his roll just around any corner in the downtown section of this charming metropolis.

Doc Spears, coach of the Wisconsin football team, added fuel to the flame of Buckeye confidence shortly after he tumbled out of his stateroom at 7:30 o'clock this morning. Doc said he couldn't see how Wisconsin possibly could hold down the score tomorrow, what with Ohio State having such a tremendous advantage in weight, and experience, and everything. Wasn't it just like Doc to talk that way?

Of course, the Badger coach really was sincere when he talked about the Buckeyes outweighing his outfit. Wisconsin has only one man on his team who tops 200 pounds—Right Guard Mario Pacetti, who scales 205. Three of his starting linemen do not reach the 180 mark. On the other hand only one of Ohio State's linemen weighs less than 190 and only two weigh less than 200.

Giant Ohio Tackles.

Coach Sam Willaman of Ohio State plans to start both of his giant tackles, Blackie Conrad and Ted Rosequist, who, admirers claim, are the biggest pair of tackles in the country, weight and length to count. Conrad is 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 214 pounds. Rosequist is 6 feet 4½ inches tall and weighs 216 pounds.

Columbus observers claim an advantage for the Buckeyes in every position except full back. Although many figure that a star full back is essential to the clicking of the double wing

Tigers' 'Hold 'em' Complex Defies Wolverines Today

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 28.—The Princeton Tiger, with more spring in his system than in memory of the present university generation, is ready to meet the Wolverine of Michigan here tomorrow. The only intersectional contest for either eleven, it marks homecoming not only for Michigan graduates but also for Princeton's coaches.

Forty thousand are expected to see the game. It's homecoming to the Big Ten for Fritz Crisler, former Chicago player and coach, later director and coach at Minnesota; for Tad Wieman, who returns to the university where he served as head coach and as assistant; for Campbell Dickson, Chicago star who now is end coach at Princeton; for Earl Martineau, one time Minnesota half back and for Keene Fitzpatrick, who trained football stars at Michigan before assuming the same duties at Princeton.

Tiger Is Underdog.

Indeed, tomorrow's game might be a great, big, joyful reunion, and a round of pleasantries, if it didn't seem certain Princeton would take a larruping. But Princeton can take it probably without detriment to its new found spirit. Strange as this may seem to coaches in the western conference, where competition is keener than in any other major organization, Crisler said today that the season at Princeton already is considered quite successful. And Princeton has won only one game, tied two, and lost one.

"Everything's splendid, so far," Crisler reported anent his first season on the eastern seaboard. "I've had all the coöperation any coach could ask for and none of the criticism I might expect. This is difficult to believe, but our team was threatened with over confidence from the approval it received after holding Columbia to a 20 to 7 score.

"We came close to scoring on both Cornell and the Navy and I think we would have won both games except that the players have developed a 'hold 'em' complex. They've been on the defensive so much they don't feel at home in the other half of the field."

The Princeton squad arrived in Detroit this morning at 10 o'clock and went immediately to the Dearborn inn. After a morning blackboard session and lunch the boys worked out at Ann Arbor at 3 o'clock before the regular Michigan drill.

It is too much to believe that Princeton can defeat Michigan. If Princeton scores it will be something of a record, since Northwestern is the only team to have crossed the Michigan goal line in the last ten games.

Keep Stagg as Coach? O.K., Says Hutchins

The movement afoot at the University of Chicago among athletes, fraternity men and other undergraduates for the retention of A. A. Stagg as football coach yesterday enlisted its latest and probably most important supporter in Robert Maynard Hutchins, youthful president of the university.

Dispatches from Cleveland, where President Hutchins addressed an educational group at a luncheon yesterday, stated that he made it clear that Mr. Stagg was in no sense retired as football coach. Stagg was automatically retired as athletic director recently by a university ruling affecting faculty members over 70 years of age.

Hutchins pointed out that Stagg coached football along with his faculty duties as head of the department of physical culture. There is no faculty rule pertaining to the age limit of a coach, Hutchins said, so that Thomas Nelson Metcalf, who succeeds Stagg as athletic director next year, is at liberty to recommend Stagg as football coach if he desires.

Hutchins intimated that, although he does not wish to influence Metcalf in the recommendations for the coaching position at Chicago in 1933, the selection of Stagg to lead the Maroon eleven again would meet with his approval.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The thirty-sixth revival of one of the oldest and most stirring shows in the football repertoire of the Western conference—the Chicago-Illinois game—will be presented this afternoon on the stage of Stagg field with a 2 o'clock curtain and an attendance already suspected at more than 25,000.

There is a strong likelihood that today's spectacle will be filled with more heroic fireworks than any of its predecessors, which is going almost too far, for a glance through the programs of former "drammers" put on by these two companies reveals that their performances have made Frank Merriwell and East Lynne look like a Chinese problem play. True, the casts in today's presentation boast no such names as McCarty, Thomas, Grange, or Pogue, but there have been several revisions in the present script which may bring forth stars more luminous than these before the curtain falls.

It's Stagg vs. Zuppke.

One of these revisions has to do with the fact that the game probably will be the last argument between two of the oldest producers in the business—A. A. Stagg and Bob Zuppke. This is not a mere scheduled contest of coaching genius, for although the Maroons have won 17 games to Illinois' 14, with three ties, it was Zuppke who almost evened up the series. He began coaching the Illini in 1913, and since that time the Orange and Blue has won twelve games to the Maroon's five in the annual meetings, with a scoreless tie in 1917 and the 21 to 21 drama of 1924 added.

Incidentally, Illinois will honor Stagg in a brief ceremony before the game, when the tribe of the Illini, represented by Howard B. Hare, Glen Paxton, Ralph [Slooey] Chapman, and George E. Woods, will present the Old Man with an "I" blanket, symbolizing the varsity letter.

Welcome Back Mendenhall.

The weeping and wailing following the announcement that Pete Zimmer, the half back who figured in both of the Maroon touchdowns against Indiana and who otherwise has conducted himself efficiently all season, was somewhat nullified by the report that Hugh Mendenhall had become eligible.

It might be thought that Mendenhall should be an ex-Maroon by now, but he is still very much around. He starred as a sophomore half back in 1927, but didn't go so well the following year when he was shifted to quarter, and finally dropped out of school after the season due to scholastic embarrassments. He since has rectified these almost heroically, for he needed five Bs to return, and by dint of three summer school courses and two of home study has made them all up, official recognition of the last arriving late yesterday.

Another cheering note was sounded when it was learned that Pat Page Jr., who excels at blocking and kicking, would start at full back. Young Pat, who was injured before the Indiana game, was withheld from it, although he could have played.

Summers Quits Hospital.

Still more gloom was lifted from the Maroon campus with the release of Allan Summers, defensive star, from the hospital yesterday morning after it appeared that he was laid low by the recurrence of an ankle infection.

The Maroon starting backfield will be of a considerably different hue than that which started last week, with two strangers appearing. They will be Page at full back and Flinn, light but speedy, at left half. The quartet will be completed by Capt. Birney at right half and Vin Sahlin at quarter.

Illinois' ball carrying detail will be composed of Berry at quarter, Froschauer and Yanuskus at the halves, and Walser at full.

Nichols Down 5 Times, but Lasts to Lose Decision

Boston, Mass., Oct. 28.—(AP)—After being knocked down five times in the first round George Nichols of Buffalo gave Adolph Heuser, German light heavyweight, a furious 10 round battle tonight, but Heuser's oxlike strength wore down Nichols in the late rounds and the German was awarded the decision.

Carnegie Tech Holds Temple to 7 to 7 Tie

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Carnegie Tech's football team tonight proved the stone wall against which the hopes of Temple university for an unbroken string of football victories this season were shattered. Carnegie held Temple to a 7 to 7 tie.

PIGEON HOLE IS FAVORITE TODAY DESPITE IMPOST

BY FRENCH LANE.

The handicappers have cut out quite a job for old Pigeon Hole in the Dearborn handicap at Sportsman's Park this afternoon. They are asking the old fellow, whose legs are not as spry as they used to be, to carry 122 pounds in the 6½ furlong dash.

Pigeon Hole will be out after his eleventh victory of the season in Chicago and it will be his fourteenth start here since he began his winning streak.

Martie Flynn to Carry 118 Pounds

Old Martie Flynn was also pushed around a bit when the handicappers slapped 118 pounds on his back. There are eight other lightly weighted sprinters in the combat, including the old flyer, Morsun, the younger Out bound and Ald. Coughlin's Very Well.

Despite the 122 pounds Pigeon Hole was made the overnight favorite. He won his only start over the half mile track recently and won it most impressively. Martie Flynn was among his victims that day.

Many of the spectators in the crowd of 4,000 at Sportsman's Park yesterday thought Jockey E. Arcaro would win the daily double. He was in the saddle on Column Right in the second race and on King Halma in the third. He was home an easy winner on King Halma. He was beaten a half length on Column Right after riding the 2 year old son of Dress Parade-Pantalette all over the track. Miss Hutcheson was the winner and when hooked up with King Halma the $2 tickets were worth $46.48.

The best race on the program was the Evanston purse at a mile and an eighth. It brought a spectacular finish as Eveline F., racing for E. Johnson of Chicago, plowed through the heavy track, came from behind and won by a neck from Greenwald. Tryandagain, heavily backed, was third, but was quitting badly in the late stages. Eveline F., despite a good performance over the track a few days earlier, was an outsider in the betting and paid 8 to 1 to her backers. The time was 2:07, so slow that it appeared as if the horses were only walking at times.

W. G. [Plunger] Yank of California is lingering on at the half mile track until the end of the Chicago season. He was out yesterday wearing a heavy overcoat and thick gloves. There were earmuffs on his cap. Yank at times during the last dozen years has been the biggest player in America. At other times he hasn't known where breakfast money migh. come from.

No player in the country has experienced more ups and down. He plays his own handicap figures and they say he is some $40,000 winner on the Sportsman's Park meeting. He plans to invade Miami this winter. He might come back with a half million dollars or he might wire somebody for carfare to Chicago. That's the way it goes with the plungers.

De Paul Risks Clean Slate at Omaha Today

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Two undefeated teams will clash tomorrow when De Paul university of Chicago and Omaha meet in a homecoming game.

De Paul's starting back field will carry the most punch and deception the team has mustered in many a game. Capt. Mat Steffen and Bill Oldani will perform at half back, Marty Stadler will guide the team at quarter back and Ted Jablonski will start at full back.

Two rugged guards, making their first appearance in the lineup in several weeks, will lend the De Paul line the necessary weight. They are John Sexton and John Reid.

AMERICAN BIKE TEAM STRONGER FOR 6 DAY RACE

Four strong American teams will oppose the foreign riders in Chicago's twenty-eighth International six day bicycle race which starts in the Stadium Wednesday night. In recent years foreign teams have been consistent winners, but in the coming race American entries appear to be strongest in several races.

Reggie McNamara, veteran of 79 six day races, and Harry Horan of Newark, N. J., are America's outstanding team. McNamara has won sixteen races and Horan two. Horan and McNamara won a six day race in Berlin, Germany, a few years ago. They made as a team in the last Chicago race and finished third.

North Dakota Wins, 13-0, on Snow Covered Field

Grinnell Passes in Final Period Beat Drake, 7 to 0

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Grinnell defeated Drake tonight, 7 to 0, using a series of forward pass plays to score a touchdown in the fourth quarter. It was Grinnell's first victory over Drake in six years.

Detroit's Long Runs Beat Georgetown, 13-0

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Two long runs, one for 75 yards and the other for 51, gave the University of Detroit a 13 to 0 victory over Georgetown university in a bitterly contested football game tonight.

DARTMOUTH TRIES FOR 16TH TIME TO DEFEAT YALE

The Yale line was so useless against the Army last week and the Yale backs were so ineffective in their attempts to block the Cadets that it seems as though the coaches must have started from scratch last Monday in their effort to organize a football team to maintain the old tradition that Dartmouth can't win in New Haven.

It is useless to attempt to say whether they have improved the club, however, because that can be demonstrated only in a game. They held their practice in secret in the Bowl this afternoon, only three persons being admitted to the premises who were not officially attached to the squad.

Guards Are Demoted.

They were President Angell, the head man of the school; Mac Farmer, the general athletic director, and Paul Barnett, the press agent, who didn't go out even though he was eligible but sat in his offices in the new gymnasium and team barracks, breaking in a new five-gaited swivel chair.

A couple of Yale guards were demoted and a couple of other boys were moved up from the extra list provisionally into regular jobs in the attempt to stiffen or stouten or toughen the line. Al Converse, who is one of the rich Wall street and Greenwich Converses, and James De Angelis, described as a New Haven townie of the Alb

FRONTIER DAYS! ONE SHOT DROPS BISON IN TRACKS

Becker's Mauser Finds Vital Spot Swiftly.

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Black Hills, S. D., Oct. 28.—All that we needed this morning was a band of Indians on horseback. Shortly after breakfast we started across the hills on the kind of hunt with which our western Indians always are associated. Buffalo was the game. Rare are the opportunities these days for any huntsman to test his rifle skill against this game which in the 60's and 70's roamed the plains in countless thousands. Here in South Dakota a herd of several hundred offers one of these rare chances to reenact in part some of the thrills and the drama that must have attended the old time hunts.

This morning we had the feeling that we were an actor in a huge open amphitheater where the west has staged many buffalo performances. Even the setting for this hunt was perfect. There were prancing saddle ponies, big rifles in saddle scabbards, and riders in "chaps" who might have to act as a rescue squad in case a buffalo bull should charge us when we were on foot.

A Four Hour Combat.

Deer looked at us from the green pine timber as we chattered in the bright, but frosty mountain sunshine. But we paid them little attention because the boys were telling us how, two years ago, one buffalo hunter put in four long worried hours from the time he fired his first shot until he finally downed the enraged old bull which he engaged in combat. The details of how this savage buffalo charged the hunter, chased the horsemen, and sent one man into a tree, were carefully explained. The bull led the hunters a chase for miles before the finishing shot was fired.

It took us nearly an hour of hunting through the rolling timbered hills of the buffalo range before Cecil Gideon manager of the state game lodge, pointed out a pair of big bulls. Over to our right Frank T. Fetzner, superintendent of Custer state park; Theodore Shoemaker, and John Endicott were riding the hills for a huge and mean dispositioned bull.

We found nothing reassuring in the looks of this pair of buffalo. They were magnificent animals, rich, blackish brown in color, with massive heads, high humps, thick frontlets and boards, and sizeable horns. The larger of the two appeared as big as a log cabin. Both stood sullenly watching us from their stand in thick timber as we dismounted at a distance, loaded our Mauser, received a cheery good luck from the horsemen, and prepared to make a stalk. Moving into the thick pine timber, we tried to get set for a shot. Then the big bull stirred uneasily and slowly started toward us. We retreated, without any argument or hesitation.

Bob Draws Bead on Shaggy Beast.

Both of the bulls then moved down a draw into another clump of timber and again we dismounted while mentally registering the fact that there were plenty of climbable trees close at hand. There flashed through our mind an occasion last year when one ugly old fighter out here was merely nicked by the first shot of a hunter and didn't stay down until after he had chased one of the boys on horseback for nearly a mile and 11 shots had been used against him.

For fifteen minutes we crawled and walked, working as close as we dared to this 1,300 pound shaggy beast. We drew a careful bead on his head, and, squeezing the trigger, sent a 220 grain bullet on its way. Fortunately the shot was placed just right, and the old monarch dropped. The horsemen got set, all watching closely, and, as we afterward learned, hoping to see this old fellow get up and charge us. But there was no such exciting climax. The 1,300 pound bison was down for good.

Purdue Ready to Push N. Y. U. Around Today

New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Thirty-five Purdue football players arrived in New York bright and early this morning and immediately went to the Westchester Country club in Rye. They held a brief limbering up drill on the polo field this afternoon, the final workout before the team takes the field tomorrow against New York university at Yankee stadium.

Another running guard or two will trouble N. Y. U., for Purdue is proud of what its publicity department calls a "pair of watch charm guards." Last week Capt. Bob Smith of Colgate turned in a highly effective job of leading the interference as a running guard. Tomorrow Purdue will present Bob [Rip] Peters and Howard Letsinger in the guard posts.

Peters Ex-Rye Prep.

Peters is a lightweight at 165, while Letsinger weighs 168. Peters, a junior from Rye, N. Y., will endeavor to show his New York friends how the home town boy made good on a Big Ten conference eleven. He attended Rye High, Peddie, and White Plains High before going to Purdue, where he is specializing in aviation. He has won his major letter in fotball and freshman numerals in football and wrestling.

HOOSIER SOPHS TO START

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—A passing battle is expected here tomorrow afternoon when Indiana university and Mississippi State football teams meet in an intersectional game.

Both teams polished up their passes in final drills here this afternoon. Arriving late today, the southerners were reported to be in fine shape.

Indiana's starting lineup will include sophomores and former substitutes as a result of the shakeup following Indiana's defeat at Chicago last week.

back technique such as Ohio State employs, the team never seems to be willing to rate its full back with the rest of the team. This time the comparison shows Harold Smith being givn an edge over Vuchinich.

The dopesters here like Carroll better than McGuire at right half and they think Capt. Hinchman is a better left half back than Linfor. Wisconsin partisans, however, take violent exception to this analysis, even though they have heard Coach Spears say he greatly fears Carroll's terrific speed. No mention has been made of the fact that Linfor and McGuire form a pretty hot passing combination, in addition to their ability to carry the ball places.

Cramer Regaining His Form.

As regards Cramer at quarter, most every one is willing to concede the Buckeyes have an edge over Nello Pacetti, who calls the shots for the Badgers. Cramer, a standout last season, was something of a disappointment in the Michigan and Indiana games, but last week seemed to be getting back to stardom in the game against Pitt.

Cramer's specialty, returning punts after catching the ball on the dead run, thrills the customers here and may give the Badgers a lot of trouble, for they haven't seen any one who can approach Cramer's trick of shagging the ball while dashing in high gear.

While the Badgers take the worst of it, in man for man comparisons, however, there are several other factors which lend great encouragement to followers of the Madison lads.

The Badgers have scored against every team they have met. In three major games the Buckeyes have had to be content with one touchdown, the one that gave them a 7 to 7 tie against Indiana. They were shut out by Michigan, 14 to 0, and, as previously mentioned, the Pitt game ended in a 0 to 0 tie.

Badgers Not So Battered.

Wisconsin had a breather game with Coe last Saturday, and while there has been some Wisconsin moaning about the physical condition of the Badger squad, it is not likely there are as many bruises as to be found among the boys only a week out of a scoreless battle with Pitt.

Wisconsin, too, is likely to show some tricky pass plays. The Buckeyes aren't expected to show as foxy an attack as the Badgers. Coach Willaman has complained that he was hindered in preparing deceptive plays by the rain, which fell yesterday and the day before during the practice sessions. Today, however, the sun was shining merrily, enabling the Buckeyes to catch up on some of the lost time.

And speaking of the weather. A warm day has been forecast for tomorrow, with rain "during the afternoon or evening."

Both Frown on Mud.

Ohio has played all four of its games under perfect weather conditions and is not sure that a muddy field would be an advantage despite the edge in weight. The Badgers are quite certain they don't want to work in the mud. A duplicate of today's weather, cool and clear, would be their dish, they said after this afternoon's workout in Ohio State's stadium.

Tomorrow's clash will be the eleventh between the two teams. In the previous battles Ohio State has won five, including a 6 to 0 victory on a blocked punt last year. Wisconsin has won four, and the game in 1930 was a scoreless tie.

My Greatest Thrill in Football

[As told to Harvey Woodruff.]

My greatest thrill in football came in Chicago's postseason game with Wisconsin on Dec. 9, 1899. That was the year Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin boycotted Chicago for some reason unimportant now, and Wisconsin, headed by its great kicker Pat O'Dea, cleaned up nicely among the boycotters. Wisconsin beat Michigan, 17 to 5, on Thanksgiving day at the west side ball park as a rival attraction to the Chicago-Brown game, which Chicago won 17 to 6.

Chicago had a clean slate except for ties with Iowa and Pennsylvania, so alumni at Wisconsin and Chicago began agitation for a "play-off" for the championship. The game finally was arranged for Madison.

My thrill came when the score was 6 to 0 in our favor—touchdowns counted 5 points then with an extra point for the kick—when one of Pat O'Dea's long punts was downed on our 30 yard line. I was kicking and playing quarter back [editor's note—Kennedy weighed 198 pounds as a quarter back]. We planned to kick in our territory because my punts were longer than O'Dea's due to a special defense Coach Stagg had worked out to hurry O'Dea.

Speed Makes Two Bad Passes.

WALTER SCOTT KENNEDY.

Chicago surgeon, made a poor pass. I downed the ball on our 20 yard line. Then Kel made another bad pass. Evidently the opposing center was getting away with murder, for Kel was a true passer. That gave us the ball on the 10 yard line, third and last down [three downs then], with me ready to punt from our goal line.

The pass again came high, but I jumped and got it. Art Curtis, a great tackle, now a Chicago surgeon, and Eddie Cochems, end, were right in front of me and about to hit. There was no protection for the kickers in those days. I tossed the ball to one side and took a swipe at it as I was thrown.

I knew I had hit the ball and I hoped it had at least gone over the line of scrimmage. When I got out from under the pile of Wisconsin linemen, I saw a bunch of players down by Wisconsin's goal line and I couldn't figure it out. Some kind of a fumble seemed the only solution. Maroon players were standing around the ball, however, waiting for a Wisconsin man to touch it.

Kennedy Fooled O'Dea—and Kennedy.

My punt, it seems, had gone over O'Dea's head and rolled down the field. It was the longest punt I had ever made. That was some thrill. We won the game, 17 to 0, and the champion ship.

Walter S. Kennedy now is publisher of the Albion, Mich., Evening Recorder. He played at Chicago in 1896-'99 and was captain his last two years, when he played quarter back. He was picked all-American by several sports writers and placed on the second team by Walter Camp when the latter named Clarence Herschberger on his first team. Herschberger was the first western man so honored. Kennedy was named on all-western elevens for three years, either as half back or quarter back. He also earned letters in baseball and track. One daughter was graduated from University of Chicago in 1931.

Princeton Is Out to Hold Wolverines

Then, too, Princeton has lost by injury three of its most valuable players, most important of whom is Art Lane, the best tackle on the squad, whom Crisler praised today as one of the best in the east. Lane broke his collarbone in the Columbia game.

Another tackle, Goose Gosnell, was injured in the Cornell game, while the same game cost the services of Draudt, Princeton's outstanding half back. Draudt's injury and the injuries to Jack Heston and Stanley Fay of the Michigan team caused the collapse of one of the side lights on tomorrow's contest.

Fay, Heston, Draudt, and Jack Bales, who now has replaced Draudt, formed the back field at Lake Forest, Ill., academy, where they played under Ralph Jones, now coach of the Chicago Bears.

Princeton's backs are very light and the line is none to heavy to withstand the hammering of Michigan's forwards and the plunging of Regeczi and Petoskey. Katz Kadlic, 155 pound sophomore quarter back, directs Princeton's team. Bales, the starting left half, weighs 150 pounds. Jack James, the full back, who broke his arm last year and missed the greater part of the season, is the heavyweight of the backs. James weighs 185 pounds.

Harrison Garrett, whose uncle is the United States ambassador to Italy, is the heaviest player on the squad. Garrett weighs 220 pounds and plays right guard. His father, also a Princeton man, won the shot put and discus events in the Olympic games at Athens, Greece.

NATALIE WINS SECTIONAL CUE TOURNEY TITLE

Pasquale Natalie of Chicago won the title in the northern sectional pocket billiard championship tournament which closed last night at the Kleckhefer Recreation when he defeated Joseph McCann of Detroit in the afternoon game, 100 to 58, in 38 innings. In the final game last night Natalie met Marcel Camp and lost, 100 to 66.

Willie Hoppe finished his exhibition at three cushion billiards last night at the Bensinger Randolph room when he defeated Jack Fisher of New York 50 to 7, in 33 innings. In the afternoon Hoppe defeated Len Kenney of Chicago, 50 to 46, in 49 innings. Hoppe had a high run of 10. Kenney had a 6. Hoppe left for Detroit immediately after the game, where he will appear in another exhibition match.

Too Dark for Iowa Squad; It Loses, 21-6

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—George Washington university defeated the University of Iowa, 21 to 6, before 18,000 in Griffith stadium tonight.

Nig McCarver, George Washington's half back star, carried the brunt of his team's attack, scoring two touchdowns and contributing several long runs.

Laws Runs 75 Yards.

Joe Laws of Iowa, however, provided the outstanding play of the game when he raced back to his own 25 yard line late in the fourth quarter, picked up a punt Kriesmelmeyer had kicked over his head and raced 75 yards for Iowa's only touchdown.

Two Negro youths on the Iowa team, Wallace, quarter back, and Dickerson, end, were kept out of the game because Coach Jim Pixlee of George Washington advised it.

Pixlee, it was said, had asked that the two players also be kept off the players' bench on the side lines.

George Washington scored first in the waning minutes of the opening period when McCarver raced around Iowa's left end for 9 yards and a touchdown. Johnny Baker added the extra point from placement.

Iowa showed flashes of strength during the second and third periods with Laws and George Teyro heading its attack, but was never able to gain consistently.

Fenlon Scores.

Johnny Fenlon, George Washington quarter back who has been out for two weeks, entered the game in the fourth quarter with a steel brace protecting an injured shoulder and scored his second touchdown on a one yard plunge after a sustained march. Baker again added the extra point.

McCarver leaped into the air to catch a 29 yard forward pass from Baker in the final minutes and stepped over the Iowa goal line. Baker kicked the extra point again. The lineup:

EVANSTON SEEKS SHARE OF TITLE; PLAYS OAK PARK

York, Glenbard to Clash at Elmhurst.

Evanston's unbeaten football team will meet Oak Park, defending champion of the Suburban High School league, at Evanston this afternoon. Victory will assure Evanston of at least a tie for the 1932 championship.

Predictions of an Evanston triumph are based on Oak Park's loss of three regulars — Brandt Bede, tackle; Roy Zinkel, end, and Johnny Armour, half back, as well as a 7 to 6 defeat at the hands of Proviso.

In Evanston's back field will be Cornie Champion and Cliff Frank, who are tied for the league point scoring honors. Others in the starting back field are Mel Haines and Eddie Martin.

Tilden Plays Lindblom.

Another suburban game, York against Glenbard at Elmhurst, heads today's schedule. York, rated as the strongest eleven in the West Suburban league, will be seeking its third consecutive victory. Glenbard, 1931 titleholder, has been held to a scoreless tie by Hinsdale and defeated West Chicago in its two league contests.

Lindblom and Tilden, eliminated in the race for the central section championship of the Chicago Public High school league, will meet in the 17th game of their series at White City stadium. Tilden has won only two games in the series.

McKinley, which last week scored its first west section victory in its history, closes its season against Harrison Tech, the sectional leader, at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue. Schurz will seek to maintain its lead in the north division, meeting Lake View at Logan Square park, Kedzie and Elston avenues.

St. Mel in Action.

St. Mel, now having undisputed possession of first place in the west section, faces St. Ignatius at Crevier stadium, Van Buren and Albany streets, in the only Chicago Catholic High School league game scheduled today. Five games are scheduled for tomorrow.

Bill Bennett, Fort Sheridan heavyweight, knocked out Mitz Minikel, who substituted for Johnny Long, in the first round. In three other four round preliminary bouts Danny Neenan beat Fred Hawkotte; Jimmy Richards was awarded the decision over Jimmy Aubrey, and Jack O'Connor whipped Johnny Reba.

Gophers Glad to See N. U.; May Regret It

Add to Gophers' Weight.

Minnesota followed Northwestern in its final practice with its lineup intact except for Capt. Walter Hass, whose presence in the game is doubtful owing to a leg injury. He is the chap who was expected to run back Olson's long spirals. Bill Proffitt, 202 pound sophomore, was in his place, adding about 25 pounds to the Gophers advantage in weight.

As the probable lineups now stand, Minnesota will have an advantage of slightly more than six pounds to the man in the line, and nearly ten pounds in the back field. Current betting odds are 10 to 7 with Northwestern favored, which appears to be a false price, or even money with Minnesota spotted 3 points.

Weather predictions are for colder weather with rain or sleet, which causes this correspondent to wish he had brought a heavy overcoat instead of a topcoat, but possible Minnesota hospitality may include a fleece lined coat from the equipment room.

BLACKHAWKS TO USE ST. PAUL AS HOCKEY FARM

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—The St. Paul club of the American Hockey league will be used as a Chicago Blackhawk farm, Kay Iverson, manager of the Saints, said today. The Blackhawks, however, will not be allowed to recall players at any time.

When the Blackhawks take players satisfactory replacements must be made, Iverson said. The Blackhawks several days ago released Arthur Weibe, defense, and Louis Tudel, forward, to the Saints. The Blackhawks are coached by Emil Iverson, Kay's brother.

Xavier, Loyola of South Tie on Forward Passes

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Xavier university fought a heavier Loyola of the South Eleven to a 6 to 6 tie here tonight. Passes paved the way for both touchdowns. Xavier's coming in the second quarter and Loyola's in the third.

You'll agree they're the equal of standard $8 shoes

It's quite interesting to watch the way men are switching from standard $8 shoes to Crosbys. Interesting, but not surprising. Consider their fine cobbling, their costly imported Scotch grains, Cordovans or calf skins—consider their British background—and you, too, will agree that Crosby's are every bit the equal of standard $8 shoes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—Gains up to 6 points in the speculative railroad group featured an otherwise dull and uneventful market today.

Renewed interest in carrier liens was traceable not only to the uptrend in carloadings and the rise of net operating incomes, but to reports concerning payment by the Reconstruction Finance corporation of $31,000,000 loan to the Baltimore and Ohio.

Interest was stimulated in the general railroad list, but gains elsewhere we.. for the most part, confined within a range of about 3 points on the upside of the market. Among the most buoyant issues were those of Rock Island, Erie, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, and New York Central.

Treasury Bonds Up.

Trading in treasury bonds was slightly more active today, and prices for the most part were a shade above yesterday's closings. Treasury 4s and 3¼s and Liberty 4¼s, were the most active in this group.

High grade rails did not respond to the better income statements for the simple reason that they were already at or close to their recently established high prices for the year. Good public utility bonds were a shade higher, among them American Telephone 5½s and two issues of 5s, Bell of Pennsylvania 5s, Columbus Railway 4½s, New York Steam 5s, and Pacific Gas 5s.

Foreign bonds were quiet and followed no general trend. German 5½s and 7s were steady around yesterday's closings. Argentines were fractionally higher.

Loan to Pay Bonds.

Today's burst of strength in Baltimore and Ohio 4½s, due 1933, was based upon reports from well informed quarters that the Reconstruction Finance corporation had advised officials of the road that the $31,000,000 loan to be applied toward payment of the bonds at maturity March 1 next would be paid around the middle of November.

NEW OHIO ISSUE.

The Harris Trust and Savings bank is offering $400,000 Hamilton county, Ohio, emergency relief 4 per cent bonds. The bonds are due serially Sept. 1, 1934 to 1940.

Interlake Iron.

I have read with great interest your articles on sound investments, especially on bonds. I would like to see what you can say as to Interlake Iron 5s, due 1951. I own one bond, and I feel I should find out more accurately just what its prospects might be.—W. S. R.

Interlake Iron corporation is the outgrowth of By-Products Coke corporation. The major portion of its business is normally the manufacture and sale of merchant pig iron. This is sold to manufacturers of special steel who supply the agricultural implement, automobile, railroad equipment, building, machinery, and other trades.

On Aug. 9, 1932, a press dispatch stated that all the company's blast furnaces, except one in Chicago and one in Toledo, which were banked for emergencies, were blown out. The bulk of the company's current revenue is from the sale of coke.

For the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1932, net loss was $339,000, against net loss of $575,000 for the preceding quarter. Net loss for the first nine months of 1932 was $1,305,000, against loss of $505,000 for the corresponding 1931 period.

Both prices and volume in 1931 were less than in 1930. Net sales in 1931 were $13,400,000, which was 41 per cent less than sales of $22,600,000 for 1930. Sales for 1929 were $18,726,000.

Loss before interest in 1931 was $590,000. Interest for the year was $767,000. In 1930 interest was earned 4.34 times, against 6.16 times in 1929 and 4.23 times in 1928.

The company sold $5,000,000 of bonds in 1931, which increased its funded debt to $13,942,000 as of Dec. 31, 1931.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $14,537,000 and current liabilities were $2,534,000. Cash and marketable securities were $664,000 and notes payable were $700,000. Working capital was $12,003,000, against $8,091,000 the year before.

A press report appearing about the middle of 1932 stated that the company had anticipated its 1932 sinking fund requirements.

The $5,966,000 By-Products Coke first 5½s, due 1945, and the $5,000,000 Interlake Iron 5s, due 1951, are secured by a first mortgage on all properties of the company, subject to a $2,730,000 divisional lien. They are speculative.

Consolidated Gas of New York.

HOME OWNERS CLAIM U. S. HELP TOO INDIRECT

Problem May Go to Congress Again.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Although the federal Home Loan banks have only been in operation a few days, suggestions are already beginning to be made that the act be amended so that its funds might be more directly available to the hard pressed home owner.

As it stands now the home loan system promises to be a distinct disappointment to owners of real estate. They are rapidly discovering that any benefits resulting from the creation of this system are indirect benefits as far as the home owner is concerned.

The system has been set up primarily to bolster building and loan associations throughout the country. In easing credit for such institutions, funds will be released, but cash is not necessarily passed along to the home owner.

A Credit Reservoir.

Each Home Loan bank is primarily a bank of discount. It is to serve as a credit reservoir for building and loan associations, insurance companies and savings banks in much the same manner as the federal reserve bank serves its member banks.

Just before the home loan bank bill was passed by congress an amendment was tacked on which authorized the home loan banks to lend directly to the home owner when the applicant meets certain requirements, but the restrictions are so exacting that in most cases if the home owner could satisfy them he would be able to get a loan from other sources.

In financial circles it is believed that as these restrictions become more generally known as disappointed petitioners are turned away, the demand for more direct relief will grow. Congress will then be faced with the problem of deciding whether the system should be made more lenient to extend credit to a widening circle of petitioners.

One of Two Things.

The home loan bank can be one of two things, but not both. It can remain a bank of discount like a federal reserve bank, jealously guarding the capital invested in it. Or it can extend its operations into the field of mortgage banking, making loans direct to applicants and function for owners of urban real estate as the joint stock land banks have functioned for the owners of farm property.

Thus far strenuous attempts have been made to avoid in the home loan bank experiment the mistakes made in the joint stock land banks. Loans are made chiefly to member institutions.

The act expressly states that the securities sold by the home loan banks to raise money with which to make loans are not "instrumentalities" of the United States government and that the government does not undertake to guarantee them.

Demand U. S. Make Good.

It was because the joint stock land bank bonds were offered as "instrumentalities" of the federal government that investors are now demanding that the government make good their losses.

The home loan banks combined with have $134,000,000 of capital stock outstanding. Additional money is to be raised by the sale of debentures. Of the total capital stock $9,000,000 has been raised by subscriptions from building and loan associations and $125,000,000 has been subscribed by the United States government.

The government, having specifically announced that it would not guarantee the securities of the home loan banks, will probably be called upon to buy them—through the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

One innovation has been made, however, that may help create a market for the debentures of the home loan banks when and if they are issued. The law provides that borrowers from home loan banks may use the debentures at par to pay off their loans.

Therefore, if the price of the debentures should drop the borrower from the home loan bank would be in a position to buy them in and save money on paying his loan.

Movement to Divide Work Seen Gaining

BY SCRUTATOR.

Almost every day brings word of this or that industrial corporation joining the "share the work" movement by abbreviating daily or weekly work shifts and employing more workers. This is the plan urged by A. W. Robertson, head of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company and also chairman of President Hoover's committee on industrial rehabilitation. It also has been recommended by Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

A. W. ROBERTSON. [A. P. Photo.]

While acceptance of the plan as an emergency measure to relieve current employment has been fairly general, there is evidence that many industrialists are considering it as more than a temporary measure. In fact, the question is raised whether a shorter work day or week or both may not be born out of this depression.

Makes a Survey.

Along this line the national industrial conference board has conducted a nation-wide survey to learn the sentiment of business and industry toward shorter work periods. It was found that a large majority of industrial concerns already have adopted some plan of spreading work by operating their plants on a part time basis, by rotating shifts and staggering work periods, or by a combination of both methods.

But more significant than these emergency efforts is the fact that the experience of plant executives is leading a considerable number of them to consider a permanent five day work week. Reports received from 1,503 manufacturing establishments showed that 114 were operating on a five day schedule. Twenty-five of these companies had adopted the abbreviated week before the depression.

Of the remaining 89 companies which had shortened the week as an emergency measure during depression, nearly half stated definitely that the short week would be continued even after business recovery. Another 20 per cent of these companies expressed the opinion that the shorter work schedule probably would be permanent, while about 30 per cent regarded it as an emergency measure to be continued during depression.

Accepted by Workers.

It was found that shorter work schedules at unchanged hourly rates of pay have been accepted by workers without much protest, both because of emergency conditions and because curtailment was recognized as unavoidable. However, it was recognized that there are obstacles to a continuation of the plan in normal times.

On the one side is a group of labor organizations, welfare and civic organizations and politicians who want a five day work week adopted without any reduction in the earning power of the workers. They demand, in other words, that increased hourly wage rates be granted to compensate for the shorter work period. Opposed to this group is a large group of business men and manufacturers who refuse to consider any plan that will increase costs and raise prices. They make the strong argument that the producer must make a profit on his goods by selling them at a price consumers will pay and it is of no benefit to workers to increase the cost of production if, as the result, the producer is driven out of business.

Whether these differences can be composed is a vital issue in establishing a permanent shorter work period. It is the consensus that workers would prefer, as a first step, the five day week to a shorter work day. The shorter week would give them more concentrated and usable leisure than an equal amount of free time broken up into small daily installments.

SILVER SOARS ON BUYING WAVE FROM FAR EAST

5,000,000 Ounces Sold to One House.

New York, Oct. 28.—Strong buying, originating in the far east and executed chiefly by one house, came into the market for silver futures on the National Metal exchange today, lifting prices from 50 to 75 points in one of the biggest days in the history of the market. December silver, the most active contract, closed at 27.68 cents an ounce, up ¾ cent.

The buyers concentrated on contracts calling for nearby deliveries, particularly December, from which it was deduced in the trade that the interests active in the market really wanted silver and were not merely trying out a speculative maneuver. Selling came chiefly from commission houses, the silver trade itself having been virtually cleaned of its holdings during recent weeks.

Recalls Silver Speculation.

The movement aroused keen interest in silver circles not only because of the sudden and somewhat mysterious character of the buying but also because it closely resembled a similar development a year ago which led up to an excited public speculation in silver. Now, as was the case a year ago, the market for spot silver is virtually bare, while little silver is available for nearby delivery.

The house which executed the bulk of today's orders, Krauht & Gilson, was reported to have purchased more than 5,000,000 ounces of the total of 6,350,000 ounces traded in. Near the close of trading this house purchased 42 lots, or 1,050,000 ounces, of December silver and bid for 40 more lots which it was unable to obtain.

London Silver Sags.

The spurt in silver futures was the more unusual in that bar silver in London had declined from 3-16d to ⅛d before the opening of business here. Bar silver in New York was quoted at 26¾ cents an ounce, a gain of ¼ cent.

The silver market has been in the doldrums for months and silver experts have looked for little change, despite a statistical improvement in the position of the metal due to an estimated decrease of more than 40,000,000 ounces in production for the current year. World production of silver is estimated at about 155,000,000 ounces, which is a drop of over 105,000,000 ounces from the record year of 1929.

Demand from the far east has shrunk greatly and there had been little expectation of a major improvement in that direction. Germany has been a steady buyer for coinage purposes but her purchases have been thriftily undertaken in small lots and have not been a market factor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—The pound sterling gave further evidence today of having reached a resistance level after its sharp fall in the last two weeks from $3.45 where it had been pegged for about two months. The exchange today moved within a range of half a cent and closed about midway between its high and low for the day at $3.2825, up ⅝ cent from Thursday's final price.

The gold standard European exchanges were reactionary. Francs lost ⅛ point to 3.9288 cents, guilders were down ½ cent to 40.335 cents, and Swiss francs lost ¾ point to 19.295 cents. The belga, at 13.92 cents, was unchanged.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

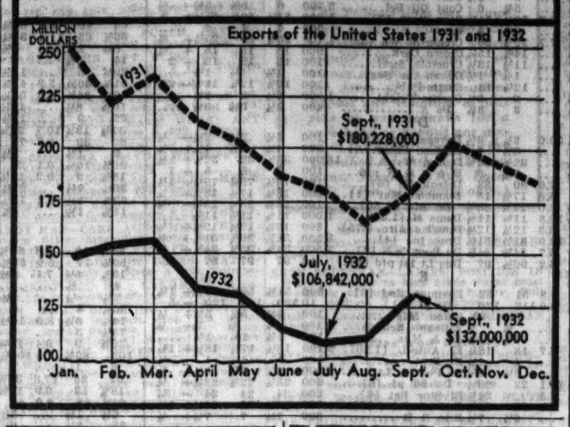
New York, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Directors of the Bethlehem Steel corporation have approved the acquisition of the Seneca Iron and Steel company of Blasdell, N. Y., it was announced today. Bethlehem will take title to the properties immediately. Seneca has a capacity of 180,000 tons of steel sheets. It will become a division of the Lackawanna plant of Bethlehem, which is nearby.

Electric Auto-Lite Comp. 9 Month Net Is $1,458,719

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—Report of the Electric Auto-Lite company for the first nine months of 1932 showed an income of $1,458,719 after all charges, equal after preferred dividends to $1.39 a share on the common, compared with $3,741,074, or $3.95 a common share for corresponding months of last year.

Seasonal Expansion in Exports Is in Progress



Trade Reviews Find Business Gains Greater

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—Improvement in the general business situation is reported by the trade reviews of the week. They call attention to the fact that various factors such as car loadings, electrical energy output, advances in coal movement, have all contributed to maintain business through the current months and while there is a tendency toward leveling off, many reports are being received of improvement in certain lines.

Dun's Review says in part:

"Further indications of a greater degree of stability in general business were in evidence this week, reports of fresh gains coming from some parts of the country, while in other sections previous advances were almost entirely maintained. Although some hesitancy has appeared, this has been attributed to the uncertainties which precede a presidential election.

Bank Credit Expanding.

"Reassurance in future developments, however, is being provided by the field of finance in the slow expansion of bank credit, the continuance of gold imports, the release of currency from hoarding and the reopening of closed banks."

"Some wholesale lines are now experiencing in-between season dullness, with fill-in orders their chief source of activity. There is also a general tendency on the part of business to hold off until after the presidential election, although it is not likely that with this uncertainty out of the way there will be a startling upturn.

Situation Improves

"But while marked recovery will be slow in coming there is good evidence that the fundamental situation is continuing steadily to improve. It has been apparent for nearly three months that confidence has been gaining. One good effect of this has been the stoppage of hoarding which has hastened the progress of banks in strengthening themselves. While basic industries are still slow ot show any real activity, their pulse has been gradually quickening. Most encouraging is the increased traffic for the railroads."

PRICE BROTHERS, PAPER MAKERS, DEFAULT BONDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 28.—[Special.]—Announcement was made here today by Price Brothers, one of the leading independents in the Canadian newsprint industry, that they will be unable to pay their Aug. 1 bond interest tomorrow, the last day of grace allowed. Interest was due on about $11,000,000 of 6 per cent bonds, a sum of $330,000 being called for.

Bondholders now are in a position to foreclose and take over control of the company from Lord Beaverbrook, the Canadian born British peer who took over control last June. The company follows Abitibi and several other newsprint organizations into the desert of bond defaults.

France, Chile Approve Agreement on Nitrate

PARIS, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Representatives of the French and Chilean governments today initiated an agreement by which the sale of Chilean nitrates in France will be facilitated through the release of frozen French credits in Chile as payment. It is understood that Chile will supply a substantial proportion of French nitrate imports for next year, although import quotas for various countries have not yet been allotted.

Nickel Plate Notes Will Be Stricken from N. Y. Board

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—The New York stock exchange will strike the New York, Chicago, and St. Louis railroad three year 6 per cent notes that matured on Oct. 1 from the list on Nov. 1.

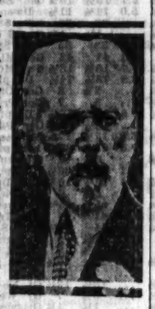
CYRUS H. K. CURTIS, 82, RETIRES AS PRESIDENT OF PUBLISHING HOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 28.—Cyrus H. K. Curtis, president of the Curtis Publishing company since its formation 41 years ago, resigned that post at the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors today and was elected chairman of the board. It was explained that Mr. Curtis, now 82 years old, wished to be relieved of the cares and details of active management and believed that "the younger generation should assume these."



CYRUS H. K. CURTIS.

The chairmanship of the board is a newly created position.

At the express wish of Mr. Curtis, George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, who had been first vice president of the company, was elected to the presidency.

MONTREAL GRAIN SHIPMENTS PASS 1931 AND 1930

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 28.—With several weeks still to go, the port of Montreal already has passed its complete 1931 and 1930 records and will, in the course of the next day or two, pass the complete 1929 record, as regards shipments of grain.

Up to yesterday grain exports out of Montreal have totaled 89,657,645 bushel for the 1932 season. The entire 1931 season's total was 89,512,312 bushels; in 1930 only 81,669,864 bushels were exported, while in 1929 the exports were 90,694,208 bushels.

This year's exports are running 18,000,000 bushels above the total at the same time last year. The encouraging total, the best in four years, has been accomplished in the face of much lighter exports of American grain through this port in 1932.

The port activity is largely responsible for giving Montreal a better economic condition than prevailing in most large cities of the continent at this time.

I. C. C. PROBE INTO SEATRAIN LINES TO OPEN NOV. 10

Washington, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission decided today to open its investigation of the Seatrain Lines, Inc., here Nov. 10.

The investigation also will embrace application of the Missouri Pacific railroad and the Texas and Pacific for a ruling as to legality of their ownership of stock in the company.

N. Y. Department Stores Report Sales as Improved

New York, Oct. 28.—September department store sales in the second federal reserve district, embracing New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut, represented the smallest decline in the daily average since January, the Nov. 1 monthly review of the federal reserve agent at New York reports. Total September sales of the leading apparel stores were only 12½ per cent below a year ago as compared with a 22 per cent decline in August.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—What the brokerage house analysts are fond of describing as "pre-election apathy" continued to rule operations on the stock exchange today. Up to the last thirty minutes or so of trading only three issues of the more than 1,200 listed could boast a turnover of more than 10,000 shares, the aristocratic trio being United States Steel common, United Aircraft, and Lackawanna railroad.

A flurry of short covering just before the close broadened the favored group somewhat, but the total fell sadly short of the three-quarter million share mark set on the last "big day" some sessions back.

Business Is Limited.

What business the ticket had to reel off was supplied largely by floor traders themselves in a desperate effort to pay salaries and typewriter oil bills. It has been so for two weeks or thereabouts now, ever since the market began to run into the heavy fog of election uncertainties. Observers believe it may be so until the tumult and the shouting dies in the still watches of Nov. 8.

There wasn't much to choose from when it comes to recounting the group of individual stock features of today's market. Some of the more active descriptions finished with a net gain of a point or two and the rank and file were fractionally higher, but none had any particular reason for the improvement to look back to. Covering by shorts made nervous by the resistance of the list has been showing to liquidation sales in the last few days seemed about as convincing an explanation of the late display of strength as any.

Rails in Spurt.

Railway shares continued to exploit the third quarter earnings figure now appearing in their behalf and on the whole the group made about the best showing on the board. Buying, as usual, centered in such issues as Union Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, Atchison, Lackawanna, and Southern Pacific, and the gains ranged up to nearly 2 points.

Lackawanna was particularly active for a while in the forenoon dealings. No reason was vouchsafed for the sudden show of spirit by the issue beyond the fact that it has a habit of staging a little spurt once every two or three months. Baltimore and Ohio may have received some help from reports that the Reconstruction Finance corporation will grant the road's loan request next week.

Some of the utilites were favored—after a fashion. American Telephone, Peoples Gas, Brooklyn Union Gas, Electric Power and Light, and one or two others rose a point or so.

Buying Is Distributed.

Buying was distributed without much favor among the more active industrials. Even such recently subdued specialties as McKeesport and Eastman Kodak fared fairly well.

Auburn recovered about half the loss it sustained yesterday and Case Threshing Machine had little trouble in moving up when wheat began to coöperate with it in the afternoon.

A bunch of prefererd stocks, including those of American Agricultural Chemical, Bayuk, Eastman, Loews, McClellan Stores, Remington Rand, and Studebaker fell 3 to 7 points. Gainers of the preferred group included those of American Ice, Glidden, and the Fair, which rose 2 to 4 points.

National Biscuit advanced nearly 3 points in the first rally it has enjoyed in more than a week. The stock has been under some pressure of late, due to fears of heavy depreciation of the municipal bond holdings of the company.

Washing Machine Makers Say Industry on Upgrade

Manufacturers of household washing machines meeting here today said the industry is definitely on the upgrade. E. N. Hurley Jr., president of the American Washing Machine Manufacturers' association, said "each of the last three months has shown a gratifying increase in unit sales over the preceding months."

N. Y. Central Pledges Stock for Bank Loans

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 28.—The New York Central railroad has pledged all its $13,145,000 of Reading common stock, $3,515,000 of its $6,840,000 Reading first preferred, and $8,990,000 of its $15,015,000 Reading second preferred for bank loans, it is disclosed in the trunk line's application to the interstate commerce commission for $2,500,000 work loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. These holdings had previously been pledged for bank loans, but the New York Central's statement last Dec. 31 showed them unincumbered.

The New York Central previously has borrowed $17,999,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Its most recent application for government aid disclosed that its bank loans increased from $64,500,000 on May 31 to $65,900,000 on Aug. 31, the difference of $1,400,000 comprising loans of $900,000 from the First National bank of Cincinnati and $500,000 from the Mellon National bank of Pittsburgh.

Banks' Loan Near Limit.

Bank loans placed May 31 remain unchanged, according to the new statement, some national banks in the list having lent to the New York Central amounts close to the limit to which they are restricted by law in aiding any one company. The loans thus contained are as follows:

Securities corporation of the New York Central railroad, $10,000,000; J. P. Morgan & Co., $8,000,000; Guaranty Trust company, $7,000,000; First National bank, $11,00,000; Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, $6,000,000; Irving Trust company, $10,000,000; First National bank of Chicago, $5,000,000; Chase National bank, $3,000,000; National City bank, $4,000,000; Cambria and Indiana railroad, $500,000.

The loans were made between Oct. 7, 1931, and last Aug. 31. They are demand loans and pay 5 per cent interest. Until recently the loans from banks were secured by most of a $75,000,000 of 5 per cent refunding and improvement mortgage bonds, maturing in 2013.

Would Transfer Collateral.

This collateral would be transferred to the Reconstruction Finance corporation in the amount of $53,000,000 in return for the new loan, the Reading securities being used to replace the bank loan collateral.

The application estimated that net income of the New York Central in September was $5,900, and it showed that as of Sept. 30 the railroad had a bank balance of $24,616,000, including $22,872,000 available cash balance, and $1,744,000 in outstanding vouchers. The statement forecast that the bank balance on Jan. 3 would be $11,992,000.

J. R. THOMPSON SALES DECLINE; PROFIT SHRINKS

The John R. Thompson company, restaurant chain operators, yesterday reported sales for the third quarter of $2,978,547 and net profit of $48,566. The net is equivalent to 16c a share on the common stock. In the comparable period last year the company reported sales of $3,664,945 and net profit of $220,332, or 74c a share.

For the first nine months of 1932 sales totaled $9,395,997 against $10,615,388 in the first nine months of 1931. Profit for the period was $385,820, equivalent to $1.28 a share as compared with $803,733, or $2.68 a share in the same period of 1931.

South Dakota Reinstates Halsey, Stuart & Co. License

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pierre, S. D., Oct. 28.—The state securities commission today reinstated the license of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Chicago investment house. The order allows the company to resume business immediately. The action was taken after a hearing held at the request of Halsey, Stuart & Co. The hearing was originally scheduled for Nov. 10, but at the request of Halsey, Stuart & Co. was moved up to today.

NAME RECEIVER FOR TRUSTEE SYSTEM CORP.

Hearing on Ruling Set for Nov. 15.

Temporary receivers were appointed yesterday in federal court for the Trustees System Service corporation and its subsidiary, the Trustees System Discount Company of Chicago. Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson named Clyde L. Day receiver for the parent company and John J. Krause receiver for the subsidiary firm. A hearing was set for Nov. 15 at which time Judge Wilkerson will decide whether the receiverships shall be permanent.

JUDGE JAMES H. WILKERSON.

The parent company is a 13 million dollar concern operating in the small loan and real estate field in the middle west, eastern and southeastern states through 21 subsidiaries. The Chicago company is a $7,500,000 concern which operates in this territory as a small loan, real estate improvement and mortgage company. Both concerns have large amounts of securities outstanding in the hands of the public.

Widow Brings Suit.

The receivership action was brought on behalf of Mrs. Mary Bell Jerrems, widow of the founder of the Jerrems Tailoring company, a holder of $10,000 of the notes of the parent company. Two separate bills, one against the parent company and one against the subsidiary, were filed by the law firm of Montgomery, Hart, Pritchard & Herriott.

The bill alleges that the companies had contracted to repurchase approximately $2,500,000 of their bonds and that they are unable to do so under present conditions. In order to avoid multiplicity of suits and the disintegration of the properties equity receivers should be appointed, the bill stated.

Securities Widely Held.

Securities of the two companies are widely held in the Chicago area. Intensive sales campaigns in the stocks and notes have been carried out in this area in recent yars. Early this month the company announced that directors had decided to suspend dividend payments on the preferred stock which had formerly been paid at the rate of eight per cent annually. It was also stated at that time that the company had abandoned its policy of redeeming its notes before maturity on demand. The sales literature of the company had stressed the extreme liquidity of the notes and stated that holders could cash them at any time.

The operations of the parent company have been carried on the Chicago area through the Trustees System Discount company of Chicago. The latter concern erected the office building at 201 South Wells street which houses the offices of both companies. The building, which was completed in 1930, is carried on the books of the subsidiary company at $3,845,740. This represents about half the total assets of $7,554,913.

There is a first mortgage bond issue of $1,513,500 outstanding against the building. The Chicago company has outstanding 40,293 shares of $50 par preferred stock and 81,600 shares of $5 par common stock.

Total liabilities of $13,657,904 of the parent concern include approximately $6,000,000 of 6 per cent serial gold bond payable on demand at par and accrued interest, according to the bill.

The parent company was incorporated in Virginia in 1918. It was formed as a holding company for several small loan concerns. Two of the present subsidiary companies were organized prior to the formation of the parent concern. The first organized was the Trustees Loan and Guaranty company, Inc., which was started in Birmingham, Ala., in 1914. The second concern was the Trustees System company of Louisville, Ky., formed in 1916.

Operates in 21 States.

The parent company now controls small loan companies in 21 cities located in the middle west, eastern, and southeastern states.

The parent company marketed the stock and supplied the management for its subsidiaries. The principal officers are F. J. Gibbons, president; D. J. Corcoran, vice president, and J. G. Born, secretary and treasurer. These men also serve as officers of the Chicago subsidiary.

Among the cities in which the company operates subsidiaries are Baltimore, Birmingham, Ala.; Camden, N. J.; Chicago, Indianapolis, Louisville, Ky.; Newark, N. J.; Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Reading, Pa.; Trenton, N. J., and Wilmington, Del.

INDEPENDENTS TO FIGHT ALLIANCE OF RESTAURANTS

A showdown fight with the Hotel and Restaurant International alliance was forecast last night at a meeting of members of the American Restaurant association in the Steuben club building.

The alliance, it is charged, is trying to organize the association, which is comprised of independent restaurateurs, for the purpose of regulating wage scales, and for the further purpose of levying $1.50 weekly dues on employés. Some of the independent restaurants which refused to join, have been picketed.

Several complaints have been made to the authorities, the latest by Rogas Chefas, part owner of the Atlantic inn, 6352 North Clark street. He charged that organizers for the alliance ordered his partner, James Andrews, to discharge their employés and hire others who belong to a "waitresses' union." The association is being advised by Attorneys N. G. De Dakis and Rocco De Stefano.

Atlantic & Pacific Orders Usual 25c Extra Dividend

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company today declared the usual 25 cent extra dividend on the common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly dividends of $1.50 on the common and $1.75 on the first preferred stocks. Both common dividends are payable Dec. 1 to stock of record Nov. 4. The preferred is payable Dec. 1 to stock of record Nov. 11.

NET PROFIT OF NAT'L DISTILLERS GAINS SHARPLY

National Distilleries Products company reports for the nine months ended Sept. 30 profit of $405,465 after interest and depreciation, but before federal taxes, compared with $76,516 in the first nine months of 1931. For the quarter ended Sept. 30 profit before federal taxes was $86,036, compared with $97,965 in the preceding quarter and loss of $4,621 in the September quarter, 1931.

Government Financing to Show Sharp Decline

New York, Oct. 28.—New state and municipal financing scheduled for next week amounts to $4,240,022, the Daily Bond Buyer reports. This compares with $15,968,969 in the past week and a weekly average for the year to date of $18,499,110.

Canada May Send Official Wheat Salesman to Orient

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 28.—(AP)—A proposal to send an envoy to China to arrange sales of western Canada wheat will be considered at the first meeting of the prairie premiers in Regina Saturday, it was learned today.

Leaving for Regina to attend the "prairie parliament" session, Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta announced such a proposal would be discussed because of the "deplorable drop in wheat prices."

See Big Market.

The emissary would be commissioned to build up a demand for Canadian wheat in the orient. When sales were placed, all three of the provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, would benefit.

Premier Brownlee disclosed the idea was suggested to the western premiers by Herbert Marler, Canadian minister to Japan, who felt there was a wide potential market in the orient, although there would be strong competition from Australian wheat.

Paid by Wheat Board.

It is proposed the expenses of the envoy would be paid from the wheat board surplus trust fund, which is devoted to the advancement of agriculture.

Premier John Bracken of Manitoba and Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan as well as Premier Brownlee will be in attendance at Regina meeting, the first to be held since the Winnipeg gathering of prairie government officials decided to gather monthly to discuss problems common to each province.

S. O. of California Wins Fight with Sinclair for Richfield

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 28.—The Standard Oil Company of California was finally victorious today in its tilt with the Sinclair interests for possession of the Richfield company with the acceptance by the Richfield bank creditors of the Standard's new bid of approximately $22,500,000.

In accepting the Standard offer the Richfield creditors, representing banks in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago, and New York, invited the bondholders and trade creditors' committees to take similar action.

Bid Raised $5,500,000.

The Standard's final and successful offer is an increase of $5,500,000 over its original bid and is virtually the same as that offered three months ago by the Sinclair interests, negotiating through a subsidiary, the Consolidated Oil corporation.

As outlined by G. Parker Toms, chairman of the Richfield bank creditors' committee, the Standard Oil company offers:

Debentures amounting to $17,500,000 of a new Richfield Oil company, guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Standard Oil company. The debentures are to bear 5 per cent interest, mature in twenty years, and subject to call in whole or in part at 100 and accrued interest on any interest date.

Give 200,000 Shares of Stock.

In addition the Standard Oil company proposes to provide an amount not to exceed $5,000,000 for the payment of nonparticipating unsecured creditors and bondholders. For providing this fund the Standard Oil will withdraw debentures, but no stock, equivalent to debentures dissenting creditors would have received.

IOWA FARMERS TO BE OFFERED 7 CENTS FOR CORN

Prices of Wheat Close Slightly Lower.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Farmers in the Estherville-Storm Lake-Algona-Mason City-Pocahontas territory in Iowa, one of the largest commercial corn shipping areas in the entire country, will find bids posted at country elevators this morning offering them from 6¾@7¼c per bu for new No. 4 grades of corn for shipment during the November-December 15 period. If the country elevator man wants the grain for immediate shipment they might secure from 1c to 2c per bu more and if their cash corn grades No. 3 an additional premium of from 1c to 2c might be given.

While the farmer may husk the corn himself and save 1½c per bu other producers are not as fortunate and will have to make a deduction of that amount from the net return to them. If an allowance of 1c per bu for shelling is deducted it would leave about 4¼c per bu for the No. 4 mixed to cover all tax, interest, plowing and seeding, hauling, and other charges. On the basis of a yield of 50 bu per acre the net return to the farmer on this basis would be $2.25, or barely sufficient to cover taxes.

Trader Is Bullish.

One of the leading local traders whose operations in the corn market several years ago attracted world wide interest, expressed himself as extremely bullish, calling attention to the fact that the decline of a few cents per bu in the December delivery at Chicago would materially contract the area that could ship grain to Chicago and still secure any return whatsoever for it.

In the Sioux Falls, S. D., territory, which covers part of extreme north western Iowa, bids for new No. 4 grades of cash corn at country elevators would have been around 4¼c per bu. This section frequently ships corn to Chicago. In the Mitchell, S. D. district, which is not tributory to the local market, bids on the same basis as used for other parts of the west would have suggested a price of 1¾c for new No. 4 mixed corn, or barely sufficient to cover the prevailing rate for husking corn this season.

Crop Estimates High.

There is a strong probability that the actual corn crop secured this season will fall 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 bu under the yields as estimated by the department of agriculture. According to one of the local experts, huskers, when they are paid 1½c per bu, will probably not pay much attention to nubbins when they go through the rows, and he estimates that at least one bu per acre will be lost on this account.

Danubian corn was reported as offered at equal to 1c under American c. i. f. Rotterdam yesterday, and with the recent advance in cash premiums in the local market there was little interest taken in the market by exporters. No sales were reported during the day, and it was said that ships were available for nearby loading for liberal quantities of grain to go to Montreal.

Futures showed an easy undertone and closed ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher, with December closing at 24¾c, May at 29¾c@29¾c, and July, 31⅝c.

Trade in Wheat Slow.

Trade in wheat was not large, and while bearish sentiment predominated early, the finish was on a strong rally with the close at net losses of ⅛@¼c. Strength in the northwest was a factor in causing the upturn. Buying at Minneapolis against sales here by spreaders carried the former up around 1c from Thursday's finish, and Winnipeg also showed relative firmness, closing ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower, with December at 47⅝c in Canadian funds.

Export demand for North American wheat was much slower with sales of 500,000 bu estimated in all positions, including some hard winter at the gulf to Greece and some Manitobas from the Pacific coast to the orient. The trade was much interested in a report that Canada might take steps to increase its sales to Japan and China.

Oats were dull and closed unchanged ¾c higher, with December finishing at 15⅝c, May, 17⅞c, and July, 18¼c. Rye was unchanged to ⅜c lower with some spreading under way between here and the northwest. December was 29c and May 32⅜c at the last.

HEDGE SALES BREAK PRICES OF COTTON

Renewal of hedging sales in increased volume filled up all buyers and were mainly responsible for lower prices due to a less active domestic and foreign demand. Weather conditions over a large part of the belt were favorable for a liberal movement of the crop. Early offerings were early absorbed, but a renewal of pressure satisfied buyers and prices receded with a close on futures in Chicago of 6 to 8 points lower, with other markets off 8 to 11 points, New York leading the break. Spot cotton dropped 10 points, with New York 6.35c; New Orleans, 6.30c; Houston, 6.15c, and Galveston, 6.30c. Spinners' takings for the week were 368,000 bales, and into sight movement 766,000 bales. The Murray-Clement Curtis crop report increased the estimate to 11,455,000 bales compared with 11,425,000 bales by the government last month. American Crop Service says ginning's estimate of the last crop report will be slightly larger. Prices follow:

The speed at which hogs have been tobogganing into new lows for the fall season slackened some yesterday. Short supplies checked the break at the start, but this proved to be only a temporary foothold, for prices commenced crumbling again before the market had progressed far. Toward the close further concessions of 5@10c were granted.

Considering the better quality of the spring pigs, current quotations are no higher than those at the low time last spring. Yesterday's peak at $3.40 for fancy grades was only 10c above the 36 year low of $3.30 last May, established by medium grades. The general average at $3.30 stood 15c above the low day.

Receipts Are Small.

Aggregate receipts continue very small. The eleven leading markets handled only 391,000 during the first five days of the week. This total compares with 550,000 for the corresponding period in 1931 and with 532,000 two years ago. Other points were under most pressure. One of the big middle west markets quoted a top of $2.95, while four other centers had tops of $3.05 and $3.10. A rather liberal run of hogs at St. Paul from northwest territory was said to be mostly stock delayed by storms earlier in the week. However, the season for shipments from that section of the country usually opens toward the end of October.

Cattle Prices Ebb.

Cattle buyers took yesterday's meager supply of 1,500 head reluctantly at slowly ebbing prices. Sentiment was bearish and trading progressed slowly. Because of the evident weakness of the market, some sellers ignored bids and locked up a few lots of cattle for next week's selling. No exceptionally good cattle were in the pens. One load of 1,157 lb averages topped the market at $7.75, the majority of offerings consisting of the class selling at $4.50@6.00.

However, despite the indifferent attitude of buyers yesterday, the cattle trade has given a fairly good account of itself considering the heavy burden of adverse factors hanging over it. At the most, the rank and file are steady to 25c lower than a week ago. Top grades of steers show 15@25c advance for the week, while the general market is still 25@50c above the lowest spot of last week.

Trend Is Reversed.

A recovery yesterday contributed to the unsettled condition of the lamb market, which has been fluctuating more lately. Light supplies reversed the trend, though there were no substantial price gains registered. The market held a good steady to strong basis, but the only support was the light run of stock, as packing houses quoted no improvement in the wholesale trade for the dressed carcass.

The season for fed western lambs has opened and these comprised a larger share of yesterday's receipts, selling largely at $5.00@5.50. Prime range lambs also reached the outside figure, while a few scattered natives were hand picked by city butchers up to $5.60. Country buyers seemed to have plenty of money for medium to good feeders at $4.25@4.75 and took a few of the best black face offerings up to $5.00.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 300 cattle, 4,000 hogs and 3,000 sheep, against 216 cattle 3,364 hogs, and 3,758 sheep the previous Saturday, and 2,217 cattle, 14,315 hogs, and 4,521 sheep a year ago.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil closed 9 points higher today on scattered trade buying of May, promoted by the steadiness of grains and stock which offset the easiness of lard and cotton. Sales were 450 barrels. Bleachable spot closed 3.30c; December, 3.04c; January, 3.08c; March, 4.13c; May, 4.28c.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Rayon manufacturers are beginning to accept yarn orders for delivery in the first quarter of the year. Knitters are buying. Cotton goods held steadier but were still generally quiet. Heavy silk crepes are selling moderately. Wool goods held steady. Burlaps quiet.

HOWARD J. WHITE PURCHASES HOME ON NORTH SHORE

BY AL CHASE.

Howard J. White of the architectural firm of Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, and his wife, Mabel E. White, have purchased the fourteen room residence at 32 Linden avenue, Wilmette, from Adolph and Hilda Lindstrom. The property has 250 feet of riparian rights. It overlooks Wilmette harbor and covers more than an acre. In exchange Mr. and Mrs. White conveyed to Mr. and Mrs. Lindstrom their residence at the northwest corner of Sheridan road and Colfax street, Evanston, which occupies a lot 100x180.

William H. Johnson Jr. of Baird & Warner's Glencoe office represented both parties in these two transactions Mr. Lindstrom was assisted by Hedberg & Bistor. On each deal, according to the county records, there were fifty-nine revenue stamps and an incumbrance of $35,000, which would give an indicated total for each property of $94,000, or $188,000 for the two Reports Two Other Sales.

Two other home sales were reported by Baird & Warner. The New England colonial home at 1387 Lyman court, Ravinia Woodlands, Highland Park, was purchased by Mr. and Mrs Andrew L. Campbell from the Chicago Title and Trust company, as trustee. The house contains eight rooms and three baths and is on a large wooded lot. The property was held at $30,000, it is stated. Mr. Campbell is associated with Arthur Young & Co., accountants. William H. Johnson was broker.

The other transaction was the purchase by Dr. and Mrs. Francis I. Krusska of Beverly Hills of a twelve room house occupying a five acre tract on the Midlothian Country club grounds. It was formerly held at $40,000, although the sellers, the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, trustee, revealed no consideration.

Zander to Address Realtors.

Henry G. Zander, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board and past herd of the National Association of Real Estate boards, will speak on the subject, "The Federal Home Loan Bank and Its Relation to Real Estate," next Wednesday evening before the Chicago Real Estate board, at 32 West Randolph street. Mr. Zander is vice chairman of the federal Home Loan bank for the Seventh district, at Evanston.

The annual election of officers, directors and standing committees and the regular monthly meeting of the realty board will take place following a dinner which will be served at 6:30 p. m. Several important changes in the board's bylaws will be brought up for consideration of members.

Packard Motor Car Co. of Chicago

CUTS PRICES

Last Saturday we announced a price reduction on our entire stock of high grade, not high priced used cars, BUT this business brought an influx of additional trade-ins that increased our stock greatly above our normal inventory. Our efforts are now directed to a disposal of our stock of used cars and without any buts, ands, ifs, exceptions or reservations.
